Ice ice baby

By JANET HART LEONARD
Friday the 13th, a full moon and a predicted ice storm. Grab your purse, grab a grocery cart and grab all the fixins' for French Toast. I head to the grocery store on Thursday evening about 7:00 p.m. Surely most of the people would have already stopped earlier to buy the necessities and not so necessary items in case they were stuck in for the weekend. I was wrong.

So as I entered the parking lot I realized this was THE PLACE to be. Not what I wanted to see. I grabbed a cart and passed fifteen people in line for the self checkout. I rolled into the bread aisle. There were three loaves of our favorite bread. Whew, good thing I got there when I did. Milk...check. Ice cream...check. I don't even like ice cream except when I'm iced or snowed in. Not sure what that is about.

I decided that ham and beans and cornbread sounded good. The ingredients for chili were a must. Oh yes, and spaghetti. Maybe a meatloaf? Soon my cart was piled high with enough food for a week of an icepocalypse. The fact that I went to the grocery when I was hungry did not help. Even a salad sounded good.

I meandered through the aisles as did a plethora of Noblesville people. What is it about impending snow or ice storms that gives us such a strong desire to fill the refrigerator and pantry? Oh yes, I know, I lived through the Blizzard of 1978. Snow drifts piled in the double digits. The town closed for days. Our cupboard may not have been bare but it didn't have the not so necessary items that I craved.

Hibernating for days does seem to increase my appetite and for me, a desire to cook and bake. Actually one day at home and I'm in the kitchen, my happy place.

Caucus selects Allman as Fall Creek Township trustee

By FRED SWIFT

Fall Creek Township has a new township trustee today. Doug Allman was selected yesterday in a caucus of the Republican precinct organization.

The caucus was needed because former trustee Jeff Hern resigned to take a seat on the County Council to which he was elected in November.

Allman was a member of the township board. His seat there will now be filled by another caucus within the next month.

County Republican Chairwoman Laura Campbell said 35 of Fall Creek's 37 precincts were represented in the caucus which elected Allman over Bill Smythe.

State law provides that the political party to which the departing official belongs shall have the right to choose a successor. Allman will fill out the term which runs through December 2018.

Helping make a Bachelor's degree more attainable... VU and Grace College develop partnership

Grace College has reached two new agreements with state colleges regarding adult learners. Vincennes University and Crossroads Bible College graduates are now eligible to transfer to Grace College to complete a Bachelor of Science degree through Grace's Opportunities for Adult Learners program (GOAL). Vincennes and Crossroads graduates with an associate degree will receive a $100 per credit hour discount in tuition from Grace.

The GOAL program is designed for adults who desire to complete their bachelor's degree while continuing full-time work and life responsibilities. Students may choose the residential or online Bachelor of Science in Management degree, the online Bachelor of Science in Human Services, or the online Bachelor of Science in Business Administration degree. Two Indianapolis-area commuter locations host classes: 9302 N. Meridian St., Indianapolis, and 835 W. Worthsville Rd., Greenwood. Classes meet one evening per week and two Saturdays each semester, allowing students to complete their degree in 16 months.

Grace College, Vincennes University, and Crossroads Bible College share a common commitment to higher education accessibility and affordability. "Vincennes University is delighted to announce this partnership with Grace College," said VU President Chuck Johnson. "Working together, we will enhance access to higher education and increase affordability for generations of Hoosier students."

"For Crossroads Bible College, this is yet another opportunity to advance our mission to glorify God by training Christian leaders to reach a multiethnic urban world for Christ," noted Crossroads Bible College Vice President Dr. Bob Kellemen. "We're excited to partner with Grace College to provide students this unique opportunity to complete their bachelor's degree."

"We look forward to partnering with these institutions for many years to come," said Grace College President Dr. Bill Katip. "Our philosophies are complementary. We are confident that working together will allow more students to earn bachelor's degrees and, in the process, potentially change their lives in a very positive way."

Vincennes University and Crossroads Bible College join Ivy Tech, Harrison College, and Ancilla College in partnering with Grace College to make bachelor's degrees attainable for more Hoosier students. GOAL program candidates must have at least 60 college credits with a cumulative GPA of 2.0 or higher. Some credits may be earned from life experience. Students who wish to transfer from any accredited college are welcomed to apply. GOAL cohorts begin each fall and spring at Grace College. For more information or to apply, visit www.indy.grace.edu or call 855-927-4631.

As I waited in line to check out, I saw the other carts in line and apparently I am not alone in my need to cook, bake and eat during times of weather stress. Midwest people must all have the same cravings.

It was about 8:00 p.m. when I packed my bags of "just in case" items into my Ford Flex. I got home and carried 15 or so bags in two trips. Yes, I am one of those who hates to carry in groceries so I try to break my record of the fewest trips between the car and the house. Never mind that the weight is more than my chiropractor would allow me to carry.

And so the wait begins. I check the radar. I check the WFAH (Weather For All Hoosiers) Chris McNew website. I consult with Matt Gamble, my other go to weather guy. I've stocked up and now the cooking and baking begins.

What if the predictions are wrong? No problem, we will still eat well. Be easy on the forecasters, remember they aren't God and it is always better to be safe than sorry...or hungry.

C'mon ice I got this covered. Ice Ice Baby!

How to take care of bruised, fragile skin in winter

Many people who bruise easily breathe a sigh of relief in the winter, because long sleeves and leggings or slacks can conceal myriad skin issues. But, it's important to note that while the outside world can't see what's going on under the layers, leaving these skin issues untreated may lead to more serious problems down the road.

A healthy skincare regimen is important no matter what season it is, particularly as you age and skin becomes more fragile.

"Just like our bones, aging skin can get brittle and break," says dermatologist, Dr. Helen Torok. "Over time, the skin's barrier can be broken down due to a variety of factors. Luckily, you can help prevent skin aging issues with an effective year-round skincare routine. While your skin transitions from one decade to the next, taking preventative measures to help maintain a strong, healthy and resistant skin barrier is key."

As skin ages and thins, it can become more vulnerable to insults that might not have bothered it before, manifesting in black and blue bruises on your body. However, by using a product like DerMend Moisturizing Bruise Formula, you can help fragile skin that is prone to bruising and restore skin's natural barrier that may have been affected by aging, sun exposure or certain medications. This dermatologist-recommend cream contains ceramides, retinol, arnica oil and glycolic acid and is available at Walgreens, CVS, Rite Aid, and Walmart stores nationwide.

According to Dr. Torok, "Applying DerMend twice daily to the areas of your skin that are prone to bruising can help improve skin's appearance and restore it to better health. It's important to be proactive and consistent with application."

There are also other factors besides thinning skin that may lead to bruising and the breakdown of your skin's barrier. These include aging, genetics, medication and lifestyle. Sun damage can also play a major role. The sun does not just disappear in winter and neither should your sunscreen and other UV protection. Too much sun exposure over your lifetime can make you more susceptible to skin problems later in life. Apply sunscreen to exposed skin year-

Short-handed ‘Blazers fall to Lutheran

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

A short-handed University boys basketball team took to the "U" Center Saturday night to play Indianapolis Lutheran.

Despite not being at their full roster, the Trailblazers fought to the end before falling to the Saints 49-44. University is now off for two weeks, as the 'Blazers are in the midst of the school's January Term, where students take a special three-week course on a wide range of subject of their choosing.

Some of those subjects involve trips out of town - where better to study Incan Civilization than Machu Picchu itself? But it also means normal activities at UHS usually take a break, and that includes basketball.

University, now 8-6, wasn't even supposed to play Saturday, as this game was originally scheduled for Nov. 26. But Lutheran made a deep run into the football post-season, reaching the semi-state in Class 1A, and thus the game had to be re-scheduled.

It was worth the wait, as it was an exciting game. The Trailblazers had control of roughly the first quarter-and-a-half, going ahead 14-5 with 5:21 left in the second period. David Howard scored 6 points, including a 3-pointer that broke an early tie.

The Saints scored six unanswered points to cut UHS' lead to 14-11, but University finished the half well and held a 19-13 lead at halftime. Foster Flamion helped out with two layins; he had also ended the first quarter with a 3-pointer.

The 'Blazers led 23-16 with 5:34 remaining in the third, but that's when Lutheran made its move. The Saints used a 10-2 run to jump ahead 26-25 midway through the period. A three-point play from Flamion got UHS back in front, and he hit two foul shots with 1.4 seconds left in the quarter to gave the Trailblazers a 33-30 lead.

But the Saints' Dre Jones hit a last-second jumper to end the third, and that put University ahead by just one, 33-32.

Lutheran then scored the fourth quarter's first seven points to take a 39-33 lead.

The Saints held the lead from there, although University didn't go down without a fight. A 3-pointer from Josh Alford got UHS within 41-39, and Flamion drained a 3-pointer with less than 30 seconds left to get the Trailblazers within 45-44. Lutheran sealed the game by going 4-of-4 from the line in the final 15 seconds.

University coach Brandon Lafferman didn't use J-Term as an excuse: While he was pleased with the defense, he said that offensively, his team was having the "same kind of problems we've been having throughout the season, which is ball-handling, too many turnovers, missing shots

Outscoring Northrop 22-5 in the 4th...
Millers win big at Fort Wayne

Noblesville got a comeback victory on the road Saturday, blasting through the fourth quarter to beat Fort Wayne Northrop 54-41.

The Millers trailed 36-32 going into the fourth period, but outscored Northrop 22-5 in that final period.

Three players landed in double figures for Noblesville: McGwire Plumer scored 12 points, with Max Flinchum and Corby Mertens each scoring 11. Flinchum drained three 3-pointers.

Ryan Barnes led the rebounding with seven boards, while Grant Gremel grabbed five. Plumer handed out nine assists.

The Millers are 6-7 for the season, and go back on the road Friday for a game at Frankfort.

we should make, and that was kind of the story all game, and I think that's why we didn't win."

Howard and Flamion both scored 15 points for the Trailblazers. University did get several new players into the game, as the absences and injuries have created an opening for other players to take the court.

"Right now at this stretch of the season, we've got a really tough schedule the last few games, and we've been fighting injuries," said Lafferman. "Other guys are getting the opportunity to step up and play minutes, which I think down the road is going to be a good thing for us."

University's next game is scheduled for Jan. 28, when it hosts Anderson Prep Academy in a Pioneer Conference game.
