Nickel Plate Arts receives $10,000 Duke Energy grant

Funding will fuel arts programs for underserved residents

NOBLESVILLE — Nickel Plate Arts has received a $10,000 grant from the Duke Energy Foundation to support community-building efforts in Hamilton County’s Jackson Township. The funding will help the organization invest in the creative economies of communities currently battling population decline. The grant will fund several significant initiatives in Atlanta, Arcadia and Cicero, including the development of strategic plans to strengthen arts and culture in each community. Specific projects include a makerspace and collaborative arts workspace in Atlanta, a series of community-centered arts events in Cicero and an operating plan for the Arcadia Arts & Heritage Depot.

“It’s easy for our attention to be diverted to Noblesville and Fishers because those communities are larger and more robust,” says Nickel Plate Arts Director Aili McGill, “but we think that our greatest impact in 2017 will be in Jackson Township, through the unification and strengthening of the projects outlined in our grant application.”

The grant will help Nickel Plate Arts connect underserved residents with cultural, arts and entrepreneurial opportunities. Grassroots efforts will include

The County Line Local media keeps focus at home

By FRED SWIFT

In Hamilton County we have local news media, but it reaches a limited audience among the county's 300,000 residents. There are three publications including the Reporter and one local TV channel. Most of our residents are "tuned" to the Indianapolis media which includes several TV channels, numerous radio stations and a major daily newspaper.

You may ask, so what? The problem is that Indianapolis media does not cover all the local news, and what is covered sometimes gives the Indianapolis and Marion County view of a situation. Many of our people therefore miss a lot of Hamilton County news and information.

Something I have found is that the Indy media sometimes relays the desires of their city's leaders to see surrounding counties help pay for projects and services that are of principal benefit to Indianapolis. There may be an argument for a regional approach to certain improvements. But, not always and not when our people do not know when or how to make their voice heard in the decision-making.

The fact is our big city neighbor often finds a need for money, and Hamilton County is a good place to look for that. Whether it's sports and convention facilities, public transportation, greater assistance for public education or other matters Indianapolis political leaders go to the state legislature. The major media often reports these requests for help from that city's point of view.

When there is talk of "a regional approach" or regional cooperation that usually means our county is involved in the discussion. Again, not always a bad thing, but something we should be aware of. A few years ago "government reform" was a topic of potential legislation. That included proposals to have a single county executive, elimination of townships, one county-wide library district and no more elected judges. Fortunately for this county most of that failed to pass into law. All we lost was our elected township assessors.

Some of the news media not only reported on this so-called reform, but supported it. While this might have been good for some areas, if local residents didn't read local papers they could easily get the idea this legislation was a good thing for all.

The point is Hamilton County citizens should pay attention to how initiatives in Indy and subsequently the Statehouse affect our county beyond what a TV reporter tells us. The Reporter tries to do that.

Five of 20 Teach Plus educators come from Hamilton County

Teach Plus, a national non-profit that empowers teachers to lead improvements in policy and practice, has selected 20 highly-effective teacher leaders as Fellows of the inaugural Indiana Teaching Policy Fellowship. During the twelve-month program, Fellows will look to magnify the impact they have in their classrooms through personal interactions with education leaders and opportunities to advocate for policies around key state-level issues, such as the creation and expansion of career pathways for teacher leaders.

“It was a pleasure to meet with the Teach Plus Fellows,” said Superintendent of Public Instruction Jennifer McCormick. “I am encouraged by their commitment to strong, healthy education policies that serve students and respect teachers. I look forward to working with them in the future.”

The new Fellows come from across the state and teach in a variety of urban, suburban, and rural districts. Of the 20 educators, four come from the Fort Wayne area, five come from central. Local Hamilton County teachers include Carmen Napolitano and Abby Taylor of Fishers, Megan Bilbo and Allison Larty of Noblesville and Kelly Day of Westfield.

The Fellows come from elementary, middle, and high schools, across many subjects. Fellows bring a wide range of years of experience and have entered the profession from a variety of teacher prep programs. Many of the Fellows are leaders in their schools and communities and have been recognized for their outstanding instruction. The demand for the Fellowship was highly competitive, with 72 applicants for 20 spots in the final cohort.

Letter to the Editor

Dan Stevens reflects on Dick Russell

In 1975, Dick Russell and I joined the Hamilton County Sheriff’s Dept. as patrol deputies. Dick was a seasoned officer with a few years of experience under his belt and I was an untested rookie. We struck up a friendship and Dick took me under his wing and showed me the ropes. He was there when I covered my first fatality and guided me through the investigation and report process even though his shift had ended. I learned a lot about life, loyalty, brotherhood, getting the job done right and the importance of having a sense of humor and laughing, especially in our line of work. Over time Dick and I became great friends. He stood as Best Man at my wedding to Peg. Our daughter was nearly born in the back seat of his patrol car on the fourth of July in 1978. Dick agreed to serve as Chief Deputy during my tenure as Sheriff. He expected good work, honesty, and common sense from the officers he worked with and commanded. He taught by example. His sense of humor was amplified by his infectious laugh. If Dick got tickled when telling one of his stories, you were lucky to hear the end of it, but you would always be laughing just as hard listening to him trying to finish. When Dick accepted the Chief Of Police position at Noblesville he brought a new level of energy, expectation and work ethic. His 13 years as Chief speaks highly of his leadership and vision. Dick Russell exemplified what we expect from our law enforcement community: professionalism, integrity, compassion, common sense, and the ability to laugh. He shared with me the skill to be a good leader, hard worker, loyal friend. Dick, Kate, Peg and I shared many trips together, especially our visit each summer to the FBI National Academy annual conference. We watched our kids grow up, become productive citizens, and start their own families. Dick loved to fish and loved even more teaching his grand kids how to fish. Thank you Dick Russell for all that you gave to your to community, your family, your friends. I will miss you my friend, mentor, and brother....Hamilton County will miss what you represented.

Duncan’s free throws send Millers past Hot Dogs

Duncan

Noblesville got a big victory at one of Indiana's most historic gyms Friday night. The Millers edged Frankfort 56-55 at Case Arena. Noblesville clinched the game when Rico Duncan made two free throws with 2.6 seconds left to push the Millers ahead, and soon give them the win. Noblesville led 10-6 after the first quarter, but the Hot Dogs came back to lead 22-18 at halftime when they made a buzzer-beating 3-pointer. The Millers re-gained the lead by the end of the third period, 37-36, and held on in the fourth. Max Flinchum scored 19 points to lead Noblesville's scoring. Nolan Ginther reached double-double status with 15 rebounds and 14 points. Duncan finished the game with 11 points. The Millers are 7-7 for the season, and will host Class 4A No. 5 Logansport at The Mill at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Braves sweep Guerin Catholic...

Brebeuf ends GC boys’ win streak

The Guerin Catholic boys basketball team's five-game winning streak came to an end Friday, as the Golden Eagles fell to Brebeuf Jesuit 58-51 in a Circle City Conference game at a standing-room only Eagles Nest. The Class 3A No. 9 Braves led 12-11 after the first quarter, and were ahead 21-17 late in the second. But Jack Hansen brought GC back, scoring six points to get the Golden Eagles tied at 23-23. Brebeuf hit a 3-pointer to take back the lead, but Zach Munson's free throws cut that advantage to 26-25, which would be the halftime score. The Braves opened the second half with a couple baskets to move ahead 30-25, but Guerin answered with a 13-5 run. Kian Sills got it started with a 3-pointer, Hansen drained a couple free throws, and then a Munson 3-point shot rolled in, and rolled the Golden Eagles to a 33-32 lead. Brebeuf made a '3' to once again reclaim the lead, and Guerin Catholic responded with five unanswered points. Munson tied the game with a layin, Luke Godfrey's basket pushed GC in front, and a free throw from Sills gave the Golden Eagles a 38-35 lead. But the Braves made a three-point play with 40 seconds left in the third period, and that would make the score 38-38. Brebeuf then opened the fourth quarter with two 3-pointers, and then held its lead between four or nine points for the remainder of the game. "They forced us to change our lineup more than we forced them to change theirs," said Guerin Catholic coach Pete Smith. "When we got up 38-35, we had two empty possessions and we needed to get more separation." Hansen scored 14 points and pulled eight rebounds. Matthew Godfrey made three 3-pointers on his way to 13 points. The Golden Eagles finished conference play with this game, settling their record at 3-3. Overall, Guerin Catholic is 10-6, and travels to Lafayette Central Catholic next Friday for an 8 p.m. game against the 1A No. 4 Knights.
