Overnight I-69 lane closures this week

The REPORTER

Milestone Contractors plans alternating lane closures on northbound and southbound Interstate 69 during overnight hours this week for road construction, including removing the Brooks School Road bridge deck over the interstate.

Construction is dependent on favorable weather and schedules are subject to change:

- Tuesday night between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., the right lane of northbound I-69 was closed between State Road 13 (Exit 214) and State Road 38 (Exit 219) to place temporary concrete barriers along the construction zone.
- Wednesday and Thursday nights between 8 p.m. and 6 a.m., the left lane of southbound I-69 will be closed between State Road 13 (Exit 214) and Campus Parkway (Exit 210) for paving.
- Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights between 9 p.m. and 6 a.m., one lane will be closed and one lane will remain open on northbound and southbound I-69 as crews remove the Brooks School Road bridge, which is south of Campus Parkway Exit 210.

The Brooks School Road bridge over I-69 is closed until August for reconstruction. During the closure, traffic is detoured to Promise Road via 126th and 136th streets.

Fishers invests in Geist park

The REPORTER

Mayor Scott Fadness announced plans to invest in a 70-acre waterfront park at Geist Reservoir. The park will be developed at the last-remaining undeveloped parcel of the 1,900 acre reservoir, located approximately at 111th Street on the east side of Olivo Road.

“The Geist area is one of Fishers’ most distinct assets and this park sets forth a momentum for the long term sustainability of Geist Reservoir, its residents, and our community at large,” said Mayor Scott Fadness. “In conversations with multiple residents and stakeholders, I’ve heard time and time again the argument that the long term vibrancy of Geist is a concern. Part of that involves environmental, boat traffic, and new development. My hope is that this park development helps to mitigate those concerns for residents and turn Geist into a distinct asset for all of Fishers.”

Conceptual designs of the park, to be named at a later date, show the possibilities of the park development: amphitheater, fishing dock, public beach, kayak, boardwalk, natural playscapes and opportunities for adventure races, triathlons, paddle boarding and more. Fishers residents will have the opportunity to be involved in the final design of the park. No motorized boat launch will be permitted in the park area.

“To have a major natural asset like we do with Geist Reservoir is a great opportunity to encourage residents to enjoy nature a little more and unplug,”

In 2002, Sutherland, with his music partner and best friend Jude Cole, began a small record label called Ironworks. The goal of this label was to record local musicians and distribute their music at a time when the music industry was going through a monumental shift. In early 2015 Sutherland played Cole two songs he had written and wanted to record as demos for other artists to record. Cole responded positively to the songs and the album grew organically from those recordings. Their collaboration resulted in Sutherland's album: 'Down In A Hole'.

Giving up favorite activities to pay for medical bills?

StatePoint

After the work day is over and the long list of household chores is completed, there are important things young adults want to do with their free time. Whether it's gut-busting hilarity at the new comedy club or sweating out those toxins at the hottest yoga class in town, these activities cost money. However, when the unexpected happens and you're faced with going to the hospital, there is a chance your finances will be impacted.

Today, the average cost of a hospital stay is $11,000, according to the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, and standard health insurance plans may leave you on the hook for unexpected medical expenses. Having to pay for even a sliver of that cost could throw your budget for a loop, and in many cases, the first casualties of a budget cut are the stress-reducing, mood-boosting, quality-of-life activities.

With that in mind, would you be willing to give up the following things if an unexpected medical event led to a pile of bills from a hospital visit?

1. Weekly date night, girls' night or any night out with friends. Are you afraid of missing out on fun with friends and loved ones? Well, if you are trying to pay a hospital bill, you just might suffer from FOMO trying to pay out-of-pocket expenses that are putting a strain on finances.

2. The gym membership. Working out makes you feel your best and can potentially stave off illness. Why side-step your fitness goals following an unexpected hospitalization because of finances? Once you are back on your feet, medical bills shouldn't put you behind. Insurance like Aflac's offers flexible coverage that can help protect income for such daily expenses.

3. Streaming video services. Since cutting the cord, you have been able to keep up with the latest genius programming online. Even though a membership with various streaming video services doesn't seem like a lot of money, having to pay for a broken arm or unexpected surgery can mean that you need to cut inessential expenses – including your ability to binge watch the latest show.

4. Those daily lattes. A daily latte can add up to more than $1,000 a year, according to an employee survey on payroll tax and spending habits by Accounting Principals. While many people believe that major medical coverage is enough, high-deductible health plans are on the rise, which could leave you paying $1,000 or more before your coverage kicks in to help. Should that mean saying goodbye to the daily dose of caffeine that gets you through your workday?

To help keep your lifestyle healthy, consider supplemental hospital indemnity insurance, such as plans offered by Aflac. To learn more, visit aflac.com/hospital.

For many people, it is already hard enough to budget for everyday activities and expenses, let alone cover the costs of an unexpected hospitalization. Even if you are young and healthy, it's important to prepare for whatever life may throw your way.

How to protect your skin this summer

StatePoint

The summer can really take a toll on skin, when more of it is exposed to sun, bugs and poisonous plants.

To keep skin cool, comfortable and irritation-free no matter what conditions you encounter, use these tips from NYC-based dermatologist, Dr. Angela Lamb of Mt. Sinai hospital.

Stay Hydrated

Proper hydration is crucial when you're busy and active outdoors. It's also essential for skin health. So be sure to drink plenty of water and eat hydrating fruits and vegetables.

Treat the Itch

The itch, hives, rash, redness and irritation associated with insect bites, poison ivy, oak and sumac, and sunburns can be agonizing. However, it's important not to scratch the affected area and create an open wound susceptible to infection, even though it does provide temporary relief.

Dr. Lamb suggests treating discomfort right away with a dermatologist-recommended solution that stops the itch and heals the skin. One easy to apply steroid-free treatment to consider is The Itch Eraser, which contains soothing aloe, vitamin E and tea tree oil to calm, nourish and moisturize the skin while reducing redness and inflammation. Available as a gel, spray or cream, it can be used to treat every kind of skin itch, (formulas vary).

Find a retailer near you at TheItchEraser.com.

Dress for Success

Whether it's your blanket on the beach or your sundress, fabrics should be well-chosen for the warm weather. For maximum comfort, stick with cotton, linen and other breathable choices. Working out? Look for moisture wicking materials that will dry quickly. Also, be sure to protect your scalp from sunburn with a wide-brimmed hat.

Keep it Cool

Hot water is never great for skin, but after too much sun exposure, it can be particularly irritating. Luckily, it's easy to turn down the heat on your shower in summer. Use the hot weather as an opportunity to give skin a break and refresh with cooler water in the shower or bath.

Use Common Sense

Avoid burns and itches to begin with by applying plenty of sunscreen and bug spray, and by taking precautions in wooded areas to avoid poison ivy, oak and sumac. While preparation may not always be top of mind when you're headed outdoors for a day of fun and adventure, being sidelined by these issues is even more of a downer.

Additional tips on how to protect and treat your skin this summer can be found at TheItchEraser.com.

For a happier summer, treat your skin right from head to toe.

Why high-speed Internet access matters to families and businesses nationwide

StatePoint

In the same way the telephone brought new opportunities for business development and economic prosperity to America's heartland decades ago, experts say that today, expanding broadband to every part of the country will have positive impacts on all communities nationwide. In short: no matter where you live it's important that all Americans — including those in more remote areas — have broadband access, too.

"Broadband has replaced the telephone, and represents the infrastructure opportunity of the 21st century," says Shirley Bloomfield, chief executive officer of NTCA—The Rural Broadband Association.

In 2015, the rural broadband industry supported nearly 70,000 jobs, over $100 billion in e-commerce, and rural broadband companies contributed $24.1 billion to the U.S. economy through investments and operations, with 66 percent of that economic activity benefiting urban, rather than rural, communities.

While small, hometown broadband providers are leading the way in building advanced networks that support the Internet's fastest speeds across large portions of rural America, a digital divide of availability and affordability still exists between the urban and rural parts of the country.

"To not have access to high-speed Internet today should be unimaginable — as it is needed for education, commerce, health care and government services. Yet millions of rural Americans have limited or even no access to robust broadband," says Bloomfield. "It is critical to deliver this service affordably to the unserved, and to ensure those already receiving broadband remain served."

Advocates at NTCA—The Rural Broadband Association say that the future economic health of the country depends on broadband, and it should be included in any broader infrastructure initiatives, with an emphasis on programs that have worked in the past and a focus on addressing obstacles that can cause delays on projects moving forward.

said Fishers Parks and Recreation Director Tony Elliot. “By adding public access to Geist, our entire community can enjoy this wonderful natural setting and I look forward to working with the community as designs for this park start to come together. At nearly double Roy G. Holland Memorial Park, the possibilities are endless.”

The land is made up of three separate parcels, held by two owners: Irving Materials, Inc. and Marina Limited Partnership. The City of Fishers submitted an offer to the owners to purchase the land outright. Negotiations are confidential until final. Condemnation of the land is possible if an agreement cannot be reached, considering the public usage. Acquisition of the land will take several months, with final design process beginning late 2017 or early 2018.

Irving Materials Inc. (IMI) currently operates a quarry on these parcels with anticipated operations ending Summer 2018. A Planned Unit Development (PUD) was passed years ago that would allow more development with intent to add just over 100 homes.

“I hear from residents all the time that increasing boat traffic on Geist is the fastest way to reduce the recreational experience out there,” said City Councilor Pete Peterson. “This is a real opportunity to utilize Fall Creek and connect the reservoir in a natural way to some of the most beautiful areas of our city. This is a win-win situation for Geist residents. By creating this natural recreation area and reducing new development, it will ultimately lessen the added boat traffic that comes with more homes and docks.”

Residents may direct questions or concerns to Dan Domsic at domsicd@fishers.in.us. More info can be found at www.fishers.in.us/GeistWaterfrontPark.

Madison County Road 650 West closes Friday

The Madison County Road 650 West overpass is scheduled to close on Friday, June 2 until August for bridge maintenance and preservation. During the closure, traffic will be detoured to State Road 38/State Street and Fall Creek Drive.

Both overpasses are scheduled to open in early August to minimize impacts to school transportation. For more information about the projects, and to see maps of the closures and detour routes, go to <http://www.in.gov/indot/3442.htm>.

About the project

The $92 million I-69 Major Moves 2020 project is adding a travel lane in each direction to the median between State Road 37 (Exit 205) and State Road 38 (Exit 219) and adding a southbound lane along the shoulder between the 116th Street entrance ramp and the new 106th Street exit ramp.

The project includes widening the Campus Parkway bridge over I-69 and reconfiguring the Campus Parkway interchange (Exit 210) into a double-crossover diamond design.

In addition, other improvements are being made to rehabilitate existing bridges, pavement and drainage structures on the stretch of interstate.

Two lanes of traffic in each direction of I-69 are currently shifted to accommodate construction of the additional travel lanes. Signs direct large trucks to use the left lane while traffic is shifted toward the right shoulder through the work zone. The speed limit is reduced to 60 mph and further reduced to 50 mph when workers are present.

Royals win big-hitting regional championship

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

Tuesday's Regional 4 softball game between Hamilton Southeastern and Kokomo at the Royals' field was like a prize fight: Both teams were exchanging hits one after the other.

The Wildkats got a few blows in the top of the sixth inning before the Royals pulled themselves off the ropes and made a knockout punch in the bottom of the inning. Southeastern then breezed through the seventh to earn a 7-4 regional victory.

It's the first regional title for the Royals since 2014, and qualifies them for the Harrison semi-state. Southeastern will play Homestead at 1 p.m. Saturday in the second semi-final.

The Royals struck first, with Jordan Rager hitting a two-run home run with one out in the first inning. In the third inning, Ashton Kiehl blasted a triple to score two more runs, giving HSE a 4-0 lead.

But Kokomo began making things interesting in the top of the fourth, hitting back-to-back homers to cut the lead to 4-2. Southeastern had to respond, and it did, with a two-run single by Nicole Dillow to push ahead 6-2.

"The two times they scored, we answered, and I love that," said HSE coach David Cook. "I loved how hard we played tonight."

The 'Kats made one more run in the top of the sixth, when Lauryn Hicks hit a one-out solo homer, and Katelyn Dowden's double scored another run to make it 6-4.

Tigers hold off Carmel for first-ever sectional title

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

It was the only way this game could be decided.

A sectional championship game between two teams that played a nine-inning game in the regular season. Not surprisingly, the Monday evening sectional game at Westfield between No. 3 Fishers and No. 1 Carmel needed another extra inning to reach its conclusion.

The Tigers got the run they needed in the top of the eighth, as an RBI single by Matthew Wolff pushed them ahead 4-3. Then Fishers pitcher Luke Duermit finished off a complete game by retiring the side, and that clinched the championship for the Tigers.

It's the first sectional title in Fishers school history, and qualifies the Tigers for Saturday's Lafayette Jeff regional. Fishers will play Huntington North in the second semi-final game at 1 p.m.

"Carmel's a heck of a ball team, so we definitely knew it was going to be a close game," said Tigers coach Matthew Cherry. "We talked about it today after we won against Westfield, we had to win a one-run game tonight. And the guys did it."

The run was scored by Caleb Brenzewski, who was walked on to first base. Brenzewski advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt by Brendan Tounge. Carmel pitcher Ryan Wock got the second out on a strikeout, but during the third strike, Brenzewski stole third.

That brought up Matthew Wolff, who hit the ball into the left infield, where it was corralled by Greyhounds shortstop Trent Terwilliger. Brenzewski ran home with all eyes on first base, with Wolff racing to first - and beating the throw by less than a second for an RBI single.

"I hit the ball, and I hit it pretty good," said Wolff. "I knew I had to run as fast as I ever had, get down the line. To beat it out was just huge. I lost it when I got there."

Fishers grounded out for the third out. Now all that stood between the Tigers and history was three outs. Fishers would need one more inning from its star pitcher Luke

The Fishers baseball team won its first ever sectional Monday evening at Westfield. The No. 3 Tigers beat No. 1 Carmel 4-3 in eight innings.

Duermit, whose pitch count was already at 101. (The IHSA's one-day pitch count limit is 120.)

But Duermit and the Tigers' outfield got the game done quickly. Right fielder Wolff made catches for the first two outs, and center fielder Trevor Newman made a one-handed catch to take care of the third out.

Duermit finished his complete game with 10 strikeouts and four hits. He is undefeated for the season at 9-0.

"I knew going into that last inning, I was like, 'Alright, I really got to get my pitchers over and be as quick as possible,'" said Duermit, since he knew his pitch count was getting close to the limit.

"Normally I would be coming out in this game, but I was dealing, and I felt really, really good going into that last inning," said

Duermit. "I was like, 'Coach, I can't come out.' So I went back out there and just did what I had to do."

The Tigers scored their other runs in the second inning. Kiel Brenzewski scored on a fielder's choice by Taylor Soper, then Newman singled home Wolff. Ryan Metz scored the third run on an error.

Carmel answered back with two runs in the bottom of the second inning. Justin Greene drew a walk, then moved to second on an Aaron Ernst single. Chris McNally then drove a single into center field, which sent Greene and Ernst home.

The Greyhounds then blasted in another run in the third inning to tie the game. Rhett Wintner sent a double into left field, and he quickly scored on another left-field double, this one by Parker Massman. The score remained tied at 3-3 until the eighth inning.

Duermit faced off against Carmel's ace, Indiana University-bound Tommy Sommer. He pitched a solid seven innings, striking out seven and allowing just six hits.

"We got confidence in all of our guys," said Carmel coach Matt Buczkowski. "Tommy did a tremendous job tonight."

The 'Hounds finished their season 23-3, and won the Metropolitan Conference championship.

In the semi-final games, Carmel blitzed Noblesville 16-0 in five innings. JC Hanley and Wintner both hit home runs, with Jack Van Remortel going 3-for-3 and batting in three runs. Hanley also had three RBIs. Greene and Massman both hit triples, with

Huskies stunned by Delta

Hamilton Heights lost to Delta 3-2 in the semi-finals of the Class 3A Sectional 24 at Yorktown Monday.

The Eagles won the game on a walk-off sacrifice fly with no outs. Cole Meyer was 2-for-3 at the plate, with Reese Wills hitting a double. Wills also pitched the entire game, striking out six.

"This one game is not a good measure of who we were all season," said Huskies coach Matt Wallace. "We set a record for wins in a season, won the conference and had a 15-game win streak. These boys were bought in all year to each other, to the team first philosophy and it showed night in and night out That's what I'll remember most."

'Blazers fall to Lutheran

By RICHIE HALL
Reporter Sports Editor

University fell to Lutheran 5-1 in the championship game of the Class 1A Sectional 58 at Sheridan Monday afternoon.

The Saints scored three runs in the top of the first inning, forcing the Trailblazers to play catch up the entire game. Lutheran then added another run in the second inning.

"The big thing we've talked about all year is, we've got to catch the ball," said UHS coach Chris Estep. "Every time we catch the ball, we win the game."

The Trailblazers scored their run in the bottom of the second, getting runners on first and second after Michael Bounsall and Kyle Richards were hit by pitches. Ben Westerkamm sent Bounsall home on a fielder's choice.

Bounsall had one of University's two hits, with the other going to Dawson Estep in the fifth inning. The 'Blazers allowed Lutheran just four hits, but had to absorb three errors.

Garrett Hill pitched five and two thirds innings, and threw very well, tossing nine strikeouts. In fact, Hill had struck out four in a row, getting the last two outs of the fifth inning and the first two of the sixth. But by then his pitch count was reaching the limit, and he had to be relieved. Zach Jannsen threw the last one and a third innings.

"He logged way too many pitches early," said Estep. "He was up around 70 pitches after the third inning. And we got him to settle down, and just look at trying to zero in on the strike zone. He has such electric stuff. It was just one of those things."

University finished its season with a 15-11 record against a much tougher schedule this year.

"I thought we stepped up the competition that we played this year," said Estep.

ROYALS

Kokomo now had runners on second and third, with the go-ahead run at the plate.

But pitcher Alexis Macha stepped up big time, striking out the next two batters to end the inning. Southeastern then added one more run, a home run from Ahliza Moore, in the bottom of the sixth. Macha retired the side easily in the top of the seventh, striking out the first two, then inducing a flyout to center fielder Kaelin Wincek to finish the game.

Macha wound up with 10 strikeouts, and issued no walks.

"I thought Alexis responded great," said Cook. "She gave up a couple big hits, and she responded, bounced right back."

Abby Taylor and Nicole Dillow both had three hits, with one of Taylor's hits a double. Rager and Libby Ratliff both had two hits for the game; Ratliff also had a double.

Millers host girls lacrosse final four this weekend

By KIRK GREEN

In case you haven't noticed, lacrosse has been a substantially growing sport across the nation and Indiana.

In fact, over 70 four-year colleges have started a lacrosse program within the past two years with 50 more to add team within the next two years. Hamilton County has been developed some outstanding teams with many talented players this. Last year the combo team Fishers-Hamilton South-eastern won the girls' state championship.

This weekend Noblesville will host the girls Indiana Lacrosse championships final four at the White River Soccer Complex. The semi-finals begin Friday evening with the Millers (12-2) taking the field at 6 p.m. to face Culver (16-0) in the north bracket. The Millers play a very challenging schedule that has well prepared them for the playoffs. The south semi-state matchup starts at 8 p.m. when Bishop Chatard (10-9) will face Cathedral (15-1) in the South bracket.

On Saturday, there will be two Rising Star lacrosse games. The first game is at noon and is for freshmen and sophomores. The second Rising Star game will be played at 1:30 p.m. and will feature juniors and seniors. The INGLA (Indiana Girls Lacrosse Association) will present awards to lacrosse players from across the State at 3 p.m. Awards include All Region and All Academic Awards. Immediately following the Championship game, the INGLA will present the State Championship Award, All-Tournament, All-American, Academic All-American and All-State Awards to players from across the State.

Thoughts and observations from the Indianapolis 500

By RICHIE HALL

Reporter Sports Editor

For the fifth year running, I got the chance to experience the Indianapolis 500 as a reporter.

Have I become jaded about going to the race every year? Nope. As someone who grew up in the Indianapolis area, I have been surrounded by the pageantry, the excitement and the tradition of the "Greatest Spectacle in Racing" every May for the past 40 years. The opportunity to cover the race is something that I don't take lightly, and I've appreciated the fact that I get to see a side of the 500 that not very many people get to see.

So what is it like to cover the Indianapolis 500?

First of all, you have to get there early. Last year, I made a slight mistake in leaving after 5:30 a.m., and was stuck trying to get on to Crawfordsville Road from I-465 at 6 a.m. when the cannon went off. Granted there were many more people since it was the 100th running, but I didn't want to take any chances for the 101st running.

So I headed out around 4:40 a.m., and zipped on into the Speedway a few minutes after 5 a.m. - 5:08, to be exact. There was no traffic at all, and I got a decent parking space as well.

After setting my belongings in the vast media center (more about that in a minute), I decided to go look around the Speedway and see what it was like before sunrise. There is an atmosphere of a calm before the storm. Most of the people there are workers and television reporters, with maybe a few fans here and there.

I criss-crossed around the garages, and was surprised, but not really surprised, to see crew members working on a few of the cars. So now there are workers, reporters, mechanics and fans buzzing around the Speedway in the dark. I started wondering about the drivers themselves. Are they still asleep? I would guess that some were and some weren't - it probably depends on experience and how high their excitement threshold is.

About 10 minutes before 6 a.m., I met up with our photographer, Kent Graham, on the front straightaway. We chatted for a bit, and were appropriately startled when the cannon fired. (Kent estimated that it went off about 30 seconds early.) There's really no place like being on the track at sunrise, right at the yard of bricks. Yes, I touched the bricks. How can you not?

I headed up to the media center a little later, and it was already bustling at 6:30 a.m. To say the media center at the Speedway is big is the same as calling the planet Jupiter big - a total understatement. The building is 35,000 square feet over four floors, with the main press area on the top floor. It's about as long as a football field, with television monitors everywhere. One monitor shows a continuous results board, while others feature live video of the race, either through closed-circuit or the ABC coverage feed.

Takuma Sato held off three-time champion Helio Castroneves to claim the 101st running of the Indianapolis 500 Sunday. Sato took the lead on Lap 195 and remained there through the checkered flag.

After about an hour of setting up my laptop, I bumped into a group of three fellow reporters, and chatted with them a bit. We then all decided to go out and walk around again - I was making my second trip to the main straightaway. Not that I was complaining.

Now if the 500 is the Greatest Spectacle in Racing, then what's the No. 2 spectacle? People watching! My cohorts and I amused ourselves by observing the fans that were casually strolling around the track, many of whom were in very casual attire and drinking adult beverages at 8 o'clock in the morning.

After about a half-hour, we heard the sound of bagpipes and wandered over that way. We got there just in time to see the Borg Warner Trophy make its way across the first row of the garage. Again, I make the Jupiter comparison: You don't know how big that trophy is until you see it in person.

With that, we made another tour of the garage area. We had our first driver spotting at about 8:30 a.m.: A relaxed James Hinchcliffe signing autographs for his fans. I bumped into Kent again at the garage of Noblesville's own Conor Daly and his A.J. Foyt Enterprises teammates. Foyt had given Daly his first shot at the 500 back in 2013, so it was a homecoming for him.

Around 9 a.m., I headed back to the media center and decided to hunker down there for the duration of the race. We got a pleasant surprise at 10 a.m.: Sebastien Bourdais came up to hold a press conference.

Bourdais, of course, had been injured in a nasty accident during the first day of qualifying on May 20, when his car went nearly head on into the SAFER Barrier. Despite serious injuries to his pelvis and hips, he was able to return to the Speedway for Race Day.

"I'm doing good enough to be here," he said. "It's great to be out of the hospital environment. I've never really faced that before."

After that, it was just a matter of waiting for the race to begin. The last hour or so before the green flag is another calm before the storm, and is usually a good time to eat lunch, or chat with fellow reporters. Once the pre-race ceremonies begin, everyone is either outside on one of the decks or up against the huge glass window waiting for the race to start.

The race got under way at 12:20 p.m. when Tony George said "Drivers, start your engines!" (I'm surprised more people didn't pick up on that, after decades of "Ladies and gentlemen, start your engines.") But the drivers were off.

The racing itself was exciting with this being such a wide-open race. Pole-sitter Scott Dixon led the first few laps, then Tony Kanaan took over, leading Laps 6 through 28 until he went in for his first pit stop. Surprisingly, he never pitted again.

The pitting made for a handful of lead changes, but then a nice battle settled in between last year's winner Alexander Rossi and Formula One sensation Fernando Alonso. The two exchanged the lead three times through Lap 48.

Everything was going well until Scott Dixon's crash. You've probably already seen it, so I don't need to explain how frightening it was. When a replay was shown on the TV monitor, a loud collective gasp came from the media members, louder than I've ever heard.

And yet, Dixon walked away. Not enough gets said about the safety improvements that have been made at the Speedway over the past several years. Fifteen years ago, Bourdais' and Dixon's accidents could've had much worse results.

Daly was racing well during the first third of the 500, getting up to 17th at one point. But unfortunately, that run ended on Lap 66 when he made contact with the SAFER Barrier on Turn 3. Daly and rookie Jack Harvey were involved in the incident. Both were uninjured, but their cars were done for the day. "Sorry guys, it was my fault," Daly said over the radio right after the incident.

It was at Lap 65 where Takuma Sato took the lead for the first time, and held it for 11 laps before surrendering it to Rossi. Sato would not lead again for a while, until...well, you know. Rossi was battling it out with 2014 winner Ryan Hunter-Reay, and Helio Castroneves, despite starting 19th and having to take a drive-through penalty, got his first lead on Lap 96.

On Lap 100, the scoring pylon gave a tribute to Bryan Clauson, the Noblesville star who raced in three Indianapolis 500s, in 2012, 2015 and 2016. Clauson was taken from us way too soon, after an accident at the dirt track in Belleville, Kansas last August. Clauson led three laps at last year's 500, and after that race, took a bunch of fans to the Kokomo Speedway - where he won that night's feature race.

As the race went on, several of the early leaders began to drop out of contention. Rossi led Laps 105-109, but fell out of contention after that. Hunter-Reay was still in front on Lap 135, but then his engine smoked out, and his race was done. After all that, some new names began to show up in the lap leader list. Max Chilton, Charlie Kimball, James Davison.

Then on Lap 180, the biggest disappointment of them all: Fernando Alonso's engine gave out, and he had to drop out of the race. Alonso's sudden departure produced the second-loudest collective groan from the media center.

A few laps later, there was the five-car incident that took out Davison, Will Power (my pick to win the race), Oriol Servia, Hinchcliffe and Josef Newgarden. That would be the last yellow flag of the race. At Lap 189, it was green for the duration.

Chilton held the lead until Lap 194, when Castroneves took over. I will admit, I was rooting for Helio...history is king at the Speedway, and Castroneves joining the four-time champion club would have been a huge story. But Sato grabbed the lead at Lap 195 and never relinquished it. It was obvious to me on the last lap that he would be the winner.

"Until three laps to go, you really don't know," said Sato. "Me and Helio went side by side with three laps to go. You've got to go for it, run it flat. And we did it, and we pulled away. Fantastic."

Sato's win, of course, was historic too. He is the first Japanese driver to win the 500. It was redemption for him as well, since he finished second in 2012.

The race got over about 4:15 p.m. I hung around for a little bit, then made my way out of the Speedway and back into my car at 5:48 p.m. The only thing is, there was nowhere to go. I waited for about 20 minutes, then finally drove into a line of cars.

At this point, I got a condition called automobilus immobilis anxietus - call it car claustrophobia. The concept of being in a traffic line that was not moving wasn't appealing, so I just found a "parking spot" in some wet, muddy grass. Did I mention that it had been raining heavily for the past 40 minutes?

My new parking spot was next to a bunch of party-goers who thought I was afraid of getting stuck in the mud. One of them shouted "I got money on you!" to get out.

"How much?" I asked. "It was just a joke," he replied. Okay, then.

Once the traffic cleared to my satisfaction, I got out of the grass and onto the gravel road, to the cheers of the partiers next door. There was no trouble at all getting out of the mud. That guy should have taken the bet!

It still took about 20 minutes to finally get out of the Speedway. We were sent down Auburn Street to Crawfordsville Road, which of course turns into 16th Street past the roundabout. After that, we headed downtown, where I made my way to Illinois Street, and turned north. I was home quickly thereafter.

That meant my total time at the Speedway was 14 hours. Yes, covering the race can be exhausting, and there are times when I wondered why I was putting myself through all of this.

The answer is simple: It's the Speedway. It's a privilege to get credentials for the race. It's a privilege to sit in the media center. It's a privilege to observe the Pagoda at 5:30 in the morning. That's why if I get the opportunity, I'll go back. It brings to mind the famous Al Unser Jr. quote after he won the 1992 Indianapolis 500 (the first one I attended!): "You just don't know what Indy means!"

Believe me, I do.
