Richardson to run for County Clerk

The REPORTER

House District 29 State Representative Kathy Richardson (R-Noblesville) announced she will not seek re-election to the Indiana General Assembly. Richardson will seek the office of Hamilton County Clerk in 2018.
 "I am announcing that in January I will be filing to run for Hamilton County Clerk in 2018 and I will not seek re-election to the Indiana House of Representatives," stated Richardson.
 "I have been honored and humbled to serve the communities I love in the 29th district. We have accomplished a great deal that has established Indiana as the envy of many other states," said Richardson.
 During her time in the Statehouse, Richardson partnered with Governors Mitch Daniels, Mike Pence and Eric Holcomb to deliver balanced budgets, lower taxes and bring great jobs to Indiana. Richardson also served as an elected member of the House Republican Leadership since 2000, the first woman to serve in an elected

Caucus Leadership role in Indiana history. "Serving as a member of Leadership gave me the opportunity to be at the table when major decisions about our state were considered and have a big influence on legislation," Richardson added.
 Incumbent Hamilton County Clerk Tammy Baitz announced her decision not to seek re-election earlier last week.

"Clerk Tammy Baitz's decision not to seek re-election allowed me to assess running for Hamilton County Clerk in 2018. The election process has received a great deal of attention at the federal level, and I anticipate many changes will be coming very soon at the local level. I believe Hamilton County could benefit from my experience with election law and procedures and so I have taken the decision to offer my service to our citizens as County Clerk", Richardson explained.
 Richardson is a prominent member of the House Elections Committee and is a crucial contributor to several of Indiana's election reform initiatives. Richardson is currently the Election Administrator in the Hamilton County Clerk's Office and supervises all of Hamilton County's elections. As County Clerk, Richardson hopes to continue her work implementing several measures to improve voter participation, such as electronic poll books, extending early voting and explore the adoption of vote centers.

Noblesville mourns Garrick Mallery

The REPORTER

Garrick Mallery passed away on Dec. 4 at the age of 89. He was a life-long Hamilton County resident whose impact on the community spans generations.

Mallery, who began selling real estate while in college in 1948, held the oldest active real estate license in Indiana. He is remembered for his rich and varied service to the Noblesville community, much of which is noted in his obituary on Page 5.

In the 1960s, Garrick organized the Hamilton County Health Department, where he currently served as Chairman. In 1962, Garrick played Santa in the inaugural Noblesville Christmas Parade, continuing for several years afterward. He reprised the role for the 50th anniversary of the parade, and then served as Grand Marshal in 2015.

A statement about his passing from the City of Noblesville reads as follows:

"It is a sad day for our community with the passing of Garrick Mallery. He has been a leader in our city for decades and through his tireless work, it's hard to throw a stone across Noblesville without having it hit somewhere that Garrick had an impact on. He put his stamp on Noblesville and Hamilton County by appraising, developing, buying and selling real estate, including Ruoff Home Mortgage Music Center and First United Methodist Church. Carmel Police Chief James Barlow stated, "This is our second year to participate in "No Shave November". We relaxed our grooming standards for a little over a month allowing officers and other employees to participate in the event. This is an awesome way for our Carmel Police family and the community to come together and raise money for such a great cause."

Nearly 30 officers attended the "Shave Off" event on Sunday, Dec. 3 at Main Street Barber Shop. Main Street Barber Shop opened its doors to the Carmel Police Department and officers were treated with a good old fashioned beard shaving.

Main Street Barber Shop owner Jason Peek stated, "As a Carmel business owner, I wanted to help clean up the officers who were participating in the No Shave November event. Our officers protect us and our community every day and this was one way to thank them for what they do."

CPD wishes to thank the Carmel community for their continued support, especially the following sponsors: Main Street Barber Shop, Integrity Automotive, Carmel High School employees, Carmel Fire Department and Jack's Donuts.

Cicero looks a lot like Christmas

The REPORTER

This year's mild weather brought out a variety of interesting and diverse Cicero Christmas Parade participants and a parade route lined with people of all ages enjoyed the event.

The Christmas parade featured fire trucks, police vehicles, Hamilton Heights High School Band, Scouts, veterans, churches, organizations and local businesses all decked out for Christmas and spreading holiday cheer. In addition, there were Santa and Mrs. Claus, the Gingerbread man, horses, dogs and llamas.

Young and old alike were delighted by the floats, trucks, wagons, cars, lights and music. In the end, it was good ol' Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus who were the highlight of the parade. This annual event, hosted by the Kiwanis Club of Cicero, is conducted the first Saturday of December and is considered the launch of the local holiday season.

The parade route in Cicero was lined with families to get a glimpse of Santa on his sleigh as he waved and shared his trademark "Ho, Ho, Ho and wishes for a Merry Christmas" to all.

Carmel wins tough battle with Westfield

In a tough all-county battle, the Carmel girls basketball team extended its record to 12-0 by beating Westfield 58-40 Tuesday at the Eric Clark Activity Center.

The Shamrocks led the Class 4A No. 1 Greyhounds 14-13 after the first quarter. Carmel came back to lead 31-24 at halftime, then began to pull away in the third period, leading 46-30. Westfield got to within 48-38 late in the fourth quarter, but the 'Hounds clinched the game with an 8-0 run.

Carmel coach Tod Windlan credited Westfield with playing "really hard" and competing to win the game.

"I think we just kind of showed up at times out there," said Windlan. "We played in spurts, and luckily some of the spurts were good enough to get us a cushion to win the game."

Amy Dilk scored 16 points to lead Carmel, with Blake Smith adding 11 and Tomi Taiwo scoring 10. Dilk also had eight rebounds, seven assists and six steals.

Jasmine McWilliams collected eight rebounds, with Smith grabbing five. Taiwo made five steals and Molly Gillig got four steals.

Annabelle O'Hair led the 'Rocks with 11 points, while Sophia Kreag corralled seven rebounds. Karley Wininger had four steals and Ryann Bunting blocked two shots.

Carmel is now 12-0 for the season, the best start in program history. The Greyhounds will play at Brownsburg on Friday. Westfield is now 8-3 and plays a Hoosier Crossroads Conference game at Zionsville on Friday.

Carmel won the junior varsity game 43-28. Tally Seitz scored 17 points for the Greyhounds, with Gigi Eldredge scoring eight for the Shamrocks.
