Everyone wins at Pickett fundraiser

By STU CLAMPITT
ReadTheReporter.com

While serving as a Deputy with the Boone County Sheriff's Office, Jacob "Jake" M. Pickett was killed in the line of duty on Friday, March 2 in Lebanon. Since then, several communities have given time and resources to help his family.

Saturday at Morse Park and Beach, 19777 Morse Park Lane, Noblesville, the Noblesville Fraternal Order of Police (FOP) Lodge No. 198 and the Hamilton County FOP Lodge No. 103 played host to a full day of softball and family activities as a fundraiser for the Pickett family.

FOP Lodge No. 103 President Scott Hazel, along with Greg Kehl from FOP Lodge No. 198 and Ashley South were the organizers for the event.

According to Hazel, not only is all the money collected going directly to the Pickett family, but everything available was donated. Food including ice cream and desserts, water, soft drinks, adult beverages, silent auction items and the personal time of many volunteers were all given freely.

Eight law enforcement teams from across the region participated: Noblesville Police Department,

On Saturday morning, dozens of people turned out for Shine Up Sheridan, a community program to clean up the parks and streets of the town.

This project should help get Sheridan recognized as Politics through the eyes of my (much) better half

Every time I write a column, I always have my wife read through my first draft. She points out any typos, lets me know if I am being clear enough with my content, and calls me out when I get too wordy or use too much political jargon. Quite frankly, she's become a great editor and, at times, one of my biggest critics. Which is why when I brought her the draft for this column, she asked if she could just write it instead. So, here's my column brought to you by my much better half, Julie Jensen. ***

By JULIE JENSEN

The political world intimidates me. The strong opinions, personal attacks, and the idea that "my way is clearly better than your way" has always made me uncomfortable. That being said, being married to my husband has been very eye-opening. I have met and mingled with many

HSE student raises $50K

Hamilton Southeastern High School student Caroline Gretencord was honored by the local school board Wednesday night. Caroline was one of nine "Student of the Year" campaign candidates for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. In only seven weeks, Caroline raised more than $50,000. She was one of only three participating students who raised that amount, a fundraising level that only a handful of students across the country achieved. Learning the reality of beauty

There she stood, on the steps of the hospital where she had just given birth to a royal son, some seven hours before. That's right SEVEN hours. Make up done like that of a celebrity hitting the red carpet. Hair styled as if she had just left the hair salon and not the delivery room. And she was wearing HIGH HEELS.

She is royalty. She is Kate.

I am not royalty. I am

Janet.

Watching the news, I had a flashback of when I delivered my kids, some 40 and 36 years ago. Brandon and his broad shoulders arrived after a 32 hour back labor with no epidural. Emily arrived on her due date during what would have been the appointment time of my doctor visit. Still no epidural. There is a reason they call it LABOR.

I will refrain from the gory details of childbirth but I can tell you ... it ain't pretty.

Seven hours after the arrival of my descendants I looked nothing like the royal Kate. I looked more like death warmed over and set on a back burner. Upon leaving the hospital I had to send for my maternity pants to wear home. Elastic waistbands tightly hugged my waist for months after giving birth. Up at all hours of the night left me too exhausted to even think about make up.

High heels? No way. I simply waddled and shuf-

Pedal Perks returns for National Bike Month

The REPORTER

The Pedal Perks program is back for its second year in Hamilton County with even more businesses offering deals to bicyclists. The ride-and-save discount program is an affordable way for locals and visitors to explore the area on bikes. There are more than 30 businesses across Hamilton County participating this year. Bicyclists simply need to show proof of their ride to the business in order to participate. Riders can bring in their helmet or take a photo of their bike outside the business. The program runs from May 1 through Oct. 31. “The timing for Pedal Perks couldn’t be better with the celebration of National Bike Month,” said Whitney Riggs, communications coordinator for Hamilton County Tourism. “There’s no better time to enjoy the outdoors, try a restaurant you’ve always wanted to and save a few bucks.” No bike? Hamilton County has several Zagster bike share stations in Carmel, Westfield and a new one in Noblesville. The Zagster app is free to download, and the cost to rent is $3 per hour.

A few of the deals include: A free appetizer at Books and Brews in Carmel, 20 percent off at Vardagen in Fishers, a free spin art activity at Caravan Classes in Noblesville and 10 percent off at Rail Epicurean in Westfield. A full list of the deals can be found at PedalPerks.org.

“Pedal Perks is one way Hamilton County Tourism supports bicycling tourism efforts,” said Karen Radcliff, chief strategy officer for Hamilton County Tourism. “This year, the organization will invest more than $75,000 in strategies designed to support its communities to raise awareness of bicycling opportunities available for all.”

Partners interested can still sign up to join the Pedal Perks program. Contact Hamilton County Tourism’s partnership coordinator Megann Kramer at mkramer@hamiltoncountytourism.com.

Hoosiers could save money with new prescription drug law

By DAVID WILLIAMS
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A state law could soon help you save money when it comes to prescription drugs.

"This is a win for our patients, our clients and we're just very happy about that," said Hamid Abbaspour, owner of the Dr. Aziz Pharmacy, which opened in 1988.

"I've seen patients refuse to take medications because it wasn't covered, or it was too expensive," he said.

That could change. Signed into law four weeks ago and taking effect July 1, the measure will allow doctors and pharmacists to offer cheaper options for prescription drugs if you pay with cash instead of using insurance. The Indiana Pharmacists Alliance said if patients buy medicine through their insurance, but the cash price of the medicine is less than your copay, pharmacists can tell you that the cost will be lower if you pay in cash.

Robert Widener, a customer at Dr. Aziz Pharmacy, said, "Now, since they can tell you, everybody benefits, regardless of your social class or whatever."

Randy Hitchens, executive vice president of the Pharmacists Alliance, said the law removes what is called a "gag clause."

"HB 1317, PBM (pharmacy benefits manager) transparency, goes into effect July 1, [2018]," he said Thursday. "This new law contains two key components, including the elimination of gag clause language that has prevented the pharmacist from disclosing Rx pricing options to their patient; and the elimination of prescription reimbursement clawbacks by PBMs that has forced many independent pharmacies to close their doors. This new law provides fair business practices on prescription drug reimbursement for Indiana pharmacists and their patients."

Abbaspour of Dr. Aziz Pharmacy said, "'Gag order' was something that pharmacy benefit managers put on the contract that would not allow me to talk to my patients freely about the prescription costs. What are the alternatives they have? This has given us relief to be able to do our job."

Kurt Moyer, a pharmacist and vice president of clinical services at Dr. Aziz Pharmacy, said insurance companies might be upset with the new law.

"Of course. They like to dictate everything through those contracts," Moyer said. "They don't like a lot of information getting out about pricing and discrepancies, whether it be how much a patient pays or how much a pharmacy gets paid."

Abbaspour estimated Hoosiers may save upwards of $50 per prescription under the new law.

"There is absolutely no reason for a generic item to be so expensive," he said. "There are other alternatives to reduce that cost by $40, $50. We're at the forefront of that ... The community pharmacists are at the forefront of that."

different public servants at various levels of government, and I've learned more about the day-to-day operations of local and state government than I ever really cared to know. And throughout it all, I've developed my own opinions about what would work and what would not – some of which align with my husband's and some that do not. This household dynamic has led to many healthy (and let's face it, occasionally heated) discussions about what we think is best for our city, state and country.

Which has made me realize this – that while my husband and I do not always agree on the best way to do things, we are both passionate about doing what we think is right, fair and beneficial to the people around us. I have heard and seen many politicians attacked, ridiculed and teamed up against for where they stand on certain issues or for decisions they've made – my husband included. It often makes me wonder why anyone would run for public office in the first place.

Why would people put themselves through the bashing, slander and public scrutiny? Why would they put themselves in a position to be hated simply because their platform does not align with another's? My answer lies in watching my husband and the countless other "politicians" I've met over the years. My husband is a man who is more passionate about his hometown than anyone I've ever met. He cares deeply about others and wants Noblesville to be a place where our children can flourish, thrive and hopefully stay to raise families of their own. And he is not alone. A majority of the people willing to put themselves on the election chopping block are similarly passionate about this city – whether their views on how to do it align with yours or not.

So, the point of this piece? To remind us all that as this election cycle approaches, the majority of the people putting their names on the ballot are, in fact, just people. People who care about Noblesville and Hamilton County and who genuinely believe in what they are fighting for.

So before you publicly bash a candidate, or claim that a candidate is intentionally setting out to "ruin" the place you call home, take a minute to think about why they'd be willing to put themselves in such a hostile and vulnerable position. While you may not agree with the "how," you may have more in common with the "why" than you think. And as my husband and I continue to learn, healthy conversation and debate is never a bad thing.

Bill Clifford calls for civility, respect among supporters

Dear Editor:

The Hamilton County Sheriff's Office is a fairly unique work environment in that every four years a few people from the agency or law enforcement community compete for the opportunity to lead the agency.

Typically, the candidates for Sheriff have known each other for many years. They have been together through tragic calls for service, risked everything to bring criminals to justice, and are usually pretty good friends. All candidates are typically new to running a political campaign and observations of State and National campaigns do not provide a good example of how to run a positive campaign. I suppose there's some evidence that being negative works, or they wouldn't do it so often.

The problem with the Sheriff's Office race is we all will go back to work together on May 9. The people will have spoken, but rifts between my supporters and other candidate's supports will have grown wide. Whomever the people decide should lead the Sheriff's Office on May 8 will be responsible for healing the divides in the agency and moving forward as a united law enforcement family.

To this end, I have a plea to all concerned with the outcome of this race. Please be civil and respectful with one another. I understand as a candidate; all candidates have people within the campaign who can control official messaging to the public and supporters who are working on their own outside any control of the campaign.

I call on all people supporting me or my campaign to focus on my message of the five pillar plan that will keep Hamilton County safe today and provide a strategic plan for the future.

If you want to help, but are not sure how, contact me and I will provide guidance. Please do not think you are helping me through negative, anonymous letters to the editor. There are problems within the Sheriff's Office, and I will resolve them with transparency should the people elect me. I decided early in the campaign I would remain positive and focused on what I will do as Sheriff.

I ask all the other candidates join me in this message of unity and pledge positivity and honesty. Remember that as individuals we are like a string, weak and breakable, but many strings united together can form a strong rope. There is ONE Hamilton County Sheriff's Office and it needs to be the rope, not a bunch of individual strings.

fled my way around, wearing sneakers or whatever flats into which I could wrangle my swollen feet.

Those glamour shots of Kate Middleton got me to thinking. Her reality is not that of the women I know. Yet, the media causes most of us to doubt where we measure up. So we simply measure down ... way down.

Every day we find women to whom we compare ourselves. The story behind their perceived perfection, we do not know. Yet, we think they always look that way. We think, I wish I had their life. Imagine the pressure they are under to look like they have it all together. It's all about the look and what we perceive it to be.

Of course with Kate we know behind the doors of the hospital were doctors and nurses and a hair and makeup stylist, and a personal assistant. It took a staff of fixer uppers to put her all together to then walk out the doors of the hospital looking like she just left a royal gala rather than a birthing room.

As I have gotten older I realize that to compare myself to anyone is a waste of time and energy.

I have learned to accept my "I've had two kids" body. Gravity is a reality that cannot be nipped and tucked and botoxed and lasered and lyposuctioned by the average, over 50 something, woman.

I've learned that with wrinkles comes wisdom. I've learned that the best makeup trick is to LET GO of bitterness and anger. And yes, only my hairdresser knows for sure just how much gray she has washed and dyed out of my hair.

About 20 years ago I had a friend say to me, "Janet, I envy your life." I was astounded. She had no idea what was behind the forced smile. You see, I somehow had joined the crisis of the month club. It was an effort to face each and every day. What I showed the world was not my reality. I had learned how to put on the "I'm ok" mask to face the world every day.

Recently, I've had people say to me, "It's so nice to see you so happy." I will tell you that happiness is the best makeup artist that there is. It does not come without a price. I know what sadness looks and feels like.

I know my someday has arrived. You know, where some things start to make sense, where the battle scars of life are stitched together to make a tapestry of beautiful colors.

I may seldom wear high heels. I may not look like I have it all together because I don't. My battle scars are many. Life has refined my thinking. I look for the beauty in the soul of my friends. I look for the weary to give them a word of encouragement. You see, because of what I have gone through, I know what beautiful looks like in others.

A woman, refined by hurt and stolen dreams, will stand before those who love her well and tell them to never compare themselves to others. You have no idea what they are going through or what they have gone through.

We all simply survive. Some have survived better than others but every battle refines us. We arrive at beauty or we arrive at bitter. The look will be seen on our face and in our heart.

Happiness is never found in comparison but in gratitude.

None of us come out of life unscathed. We make good choices. We make bad choices. We battle unforeseen giants and obstacles.

Never measure your mistakes or your failures against your successes. Both bring you to who you are now. All are a part of the refining process. It brings you to who you were designed to be ... YOU.

We may wipe a few tears. We may smile and shake our head remembering the strength we found when we could barely face the day.

There may never be a crown on our heads or high heels on our feet, but our smiles will be radiant. And they will be real, for all who have loved us well.

Our tapestry will be beautiful. It's been woven over many years.

The award, sponsored by the National Center for Women & Information Technology (NCWIT), OneAmerica, Women & Hi Tech, Society for Information Management - Indianapolis Chapter and Indiana University recognizes high school women for their computing-related achievements and interests as part of an effort to encourage more young women to choose careers in technology.

“Encouraging young women’s interest in technology careers is critical: Our workforce needs their creativity and their innovation,” said Lucy Sanders, CEO and Co-founder of NCWIT. “We congratulate our award recipients for their dedication and vision for a brighter future in technology.”

A total of 23 award recipients and 23 honorable mentions were selected from high schools across the state of Indiana for their outstanding aptitude and interest in information technology and computing. Honorees also displayed solid leadership ability and a good academic history, and have plans for post-secondary education. Each award recipient receives $250 and two engraved awards – one for the student and one for her school’s trophy case.

Tadrous’s interest in computing and technology was sparked by her father and his job as a Data Systems Analyst. She enjoys using Adobe products to create digital art and likes to practice her web skills

Fishers offers senior living that feels like home

By STU CLAMPITT
ReadTheReporter.com

Saturday morning The Enclave Senior Living at Saxony, 12950 Tablick St., Fishers, held a ribbon-cutting and open house to help show Hamilton County how this facility is different from how people usually perceive senior living facilities.

The Enclave at Saxony facility was complete in January and is already well on its way to being full.

Enclave at Saxony Executive Director Jan Pegues told The Reporter there are 164 apartments in the community.

“We call them apartments because this is a retirement community,” Pegues said. “We have approximately 60 individuals living here in the community. We have 83 independent living apartments, 49 assisted living apartments and 32 memory care apartments.”

This location is the second Fishers location for Spectrum Retirement Communities. The other is near 116th Street and Allisonville Road.

Spectrum Regional Vice President of Operations Katie Freeland said, “On this side of Fishers there were not a lot of people taking advantage of the new growth that was happening, so we chose to place ourselves here because there is a need.”

Spectrum Vice President of Sales William Swearingen took time to explain what sets the Enclave apart from other senior living facilities and why they see this as a vibrant community.

“One of the great things is we have a full continuum of care,” Swearingen said. “We have the independent living component, the assisted living component and memory care. A resident could move in being more proactive in the early stages of their retirement.

Then as needs change – if needs change – they can progress through those additional support elements all the way through to potentially the end of life in a graceful and respectful way.”

Swearingen also spoke about who would be best served by living at the Enclave at Saxony.

“Our product is mainly designed to support that senior who needs some extra independence from a functional independence point of view,” Swearingen said. “This maximizes their ability to continue writing pages in their book and fill their lives with something that is a little more vibrant, allow them the opportunity to stay connected and get the support services they need in the process.”

Because of the growth in this part of Fishers, the location and services offered by the Enclave at Saxony can fill a real need.

“We have subdivisions that are nearby,” Pegues said. “For the sons and daughters that live in those subdivisions – their parents are moving closer and we want to partner with those individuals so they can move into our community and be closer to their families.”

Freeland echoed this sentiment when she said, “It’s the only place that would be home to them. We want them to be home.”

Spectrum Regional Sales Director Kim Goodwin explained that this facility’s apartments feel like homes, including such amenities as full kitchens and washer/driers. “Let us show you how we are different and let us show you why it feels like home,” Goodwin said.

Swearingen said he wants to “peel away the myth” of what people believe senior living looks like.

“Walk through our doors,” Swearingen said, speaking to those who may want to know more. “If there is one thing that we believe in it is that it feels like home. That’s kind of our mantra. And it can be different. Let us show you how.”

Residences are still available for Saxony’s flexible, month-to-month, affordable rental program. For more information, visit The Enclave Senior Living at Saxony or call (317) 207-2767.

On Saturday morning, 428 people turned out to support the Cicero Fire Auxiliary's 2018 pancake breakfast fundraiser held at the fire department, 1359 Stringtown Pike, Cicero.

According to Chief Lance Overholser, this year was "quite a bit larger than last year." He credits his department's work to promote the event and engage the community on social media as one reason for that growth.

The silent auction raised nearly $1,000, in addition to the funds generated from the breakfast.

Funds from Saturday's event will go toward purchasing new thermal imaging cameras for all Cicero Fire Department trucks.

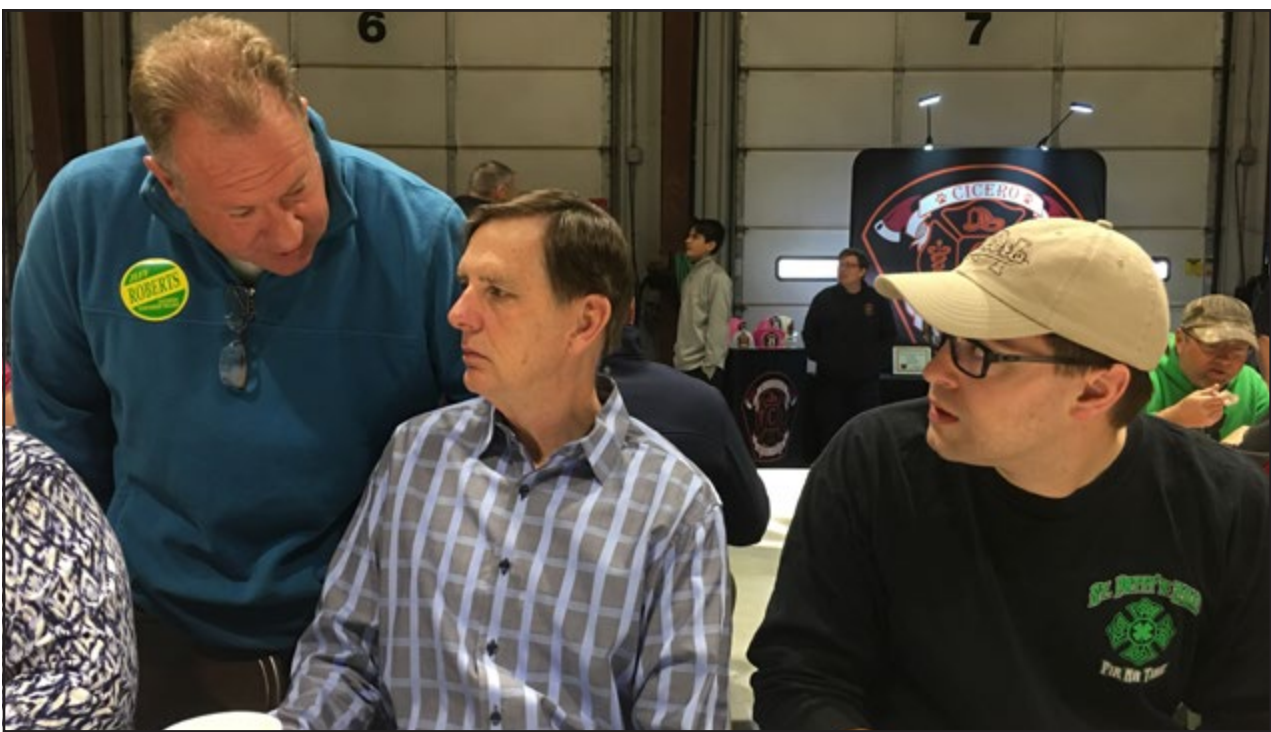

"This will allow our fire-fighters to quickly and efficiently locate the seat of the fire and will aid in rescue operations," Overholser told The Reporter. "With these cameras we will be able to locate victims a lot quicker and help save lives."

One such camera is currently in use on the department's fire engine, but with advances in technology there are now smaller less expensive models that Overholser hopes to add to every truck in the fleet.

Overholser sends his thanks to everyone who sponsored and donated to the silent auction and to everyone who attended the event.

"We'd like to see everyone again next year," Overholser said.

HAND acquires rental community in Boone Co.

The REPORTER

Noblesville-based HAND Inc. is investing more than $2 million to acquire and renovate 17 duplexes in Lebanon, which it will maintain as affordable apartments for low-income residents.

Now called Hickory Commons, the rental community includes a total of 33 leasable units on two cul-de-sacs: Lafayette Court and Cedars Court. Property manager Mark III will have an office in the remaining unit, which also will include a community room open to all residents.

The acquisition is 15-year-old HAND's first project outside of Hamilton County.

"Our mission is to provide housing and neighborhood development, and we don't want to limit ourselves to one geographic area," said HAND Executive Director Jennifer Miller. "Every community needs housing options, and we are well-positioned to help."

Funders for the Lebanon project include the Indiana Housing and Community Development Authority, which provided $1 million from the federal HOME program and $500,000 from the state Community Development Block Grant program. The balance came from Lake City Bank as a private loan.

The Hickory Commons duplexes were built in the 1950s and require renovations and updating. Renovations are expected to take about a year, but current residents will not be displaced. HAND has contracted with 7-3 Development Corp. to handle the work.

HAND is committed to keeping rents at 28 of the 33 units below the limits set annually by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. Five apartments will have market-rate rents.

Founded in 2003 as Hamilton County Area Neighborhood Development Inc., HAND has invested more than $19 million in housing. It has built four apartment communities with a total of 82 units for seniors in Noblesville, Cicero and Sheridan and renovated three historic buildings in downtown Noblesville to create 14 one-bedroom apartments that are not age restricted.

On June 14, HAND

will host a ribbon cutting at Home Place Gardens, its new rental community in Carmel. That development includes eight one- and two-bedroom apartments for seniors and two three-bedroom single-family homes for survivors of violence.

Researchers have found that demand for affordable housing in Hamilton County exceeds supply by more than 10,000 units – a gap that will take more than 100 years to fill at the current pace of construction, assuming the need doesn't increase as the county's population grows.

Hamilton and Boone counties are two of the fastest-growing areas in the state. But housing costs have increased along with their populations, leaving behind many seniors, early-career professionals and service workers. HAND's mission is to be a leader in promoting prosperity and diversity in our communities by providing quality housing opportunities.

Be patient, share the road with farmers this planting season

The REPORTER

With temperatures on the rise, more farmers will be out in their fields, which means slow-moving farm equipment will soon be on Indiana roadways. To keep motorists and farmers safe this planting season, several state agencies have partnered together to encourage Hoosiers to be alert, slow down and share the road with farm equipment.

“As a top agricultural state, whether you live in rural, urban or suburban Indiana, a majority of motorists will come across large farm equipment on the road this planting season,” said Lt. Governor Suzanne Crouch. “We want to encourage every Hoosier to be mindful, slow down and share the road, which will not only ensure their safety, but also the safety of our farmers.”

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, farm equipment vehicles (other than trucks) were involved in 92 fatal crashes across the nation, with six of those occurring in Indiana.

By law, farm equipment must have the nationally designated slow-moving vehicle sign – a red triangle-shaped reflector – to warn drivers that their equipment is on the road. These vehicles often travel at speeds no higher than 25 mph.

“Roadway safety is a priority of the Indiana State Police, especially when large farm machinery will be crossing state and county roads to farm fields during the planting season,” said Indiana State Police (ISP) Superintendent Doug Carter. “Patience, courtesy and understanding, along with the undivided attention of farmers and the traveling public will help ensure a safe 2018 growing season.”

The following list includes several safety tips for motorists approaching large farm equipment:

- Most farmers will pull over when they are able to let you pass, but it may take time for them to get to a safe place to do so. Be patient.
- Farm equipment is wide, sometimes taking up most of the roadway. Be careful when passing.
- Do not pass if you are in a designated “No Passing Zone” or within 100 feet of any intersection, railroad grade crossing, bridge, elevation structure, or tunnel.
- Do not try to pass a slow-moving vehicle on the left without ensuring that the vehicle is not planning a left turn. It may appear that the driver is pulling over for you to pass when it is actually preparing to turn. You will drive right into its path, endangering yourself and the farmer.

- Avoid tailgating, as some farm equipment might have to make sudden stops along the road.
- Allow plenty of time to get to your destination, be aware of alternate routes and avoid distractions.

“Due to the size of our equipment, people will often see us before we see them,” said Zach Cain, a Montgomery County farmer. “It’s important to be patient. Farmers don’t want to hold up traffic, but it can take us some time to find a safe spot to pull over.”

Bruce Kettler, Indiana State Department of Agriculture (ISDA) Director, said that motorists should pay special attention to stationary farm equipment on the side of the road, as there might be farmers working nearby.

“We want to remind Hoosiers to take extra precaution on the roadways this spring,” Kettler said. “Leaving a few minutes early will ensure that everyone reaches their destination safely and in a timely manner.”

DNR Forestry receives another re-certification for sustainability

The REPORTER

The DNR Division of Forestry was recently re-certified by the Forest Stewardship Council® (FSC®) for its forest-industry chain of custody program, a designation it's earned every year since 2009.

This program, which assists small businesses, allows manufacturers of wood products to guarantee to their customers that the wood use in making cabinets, furniture, moldings, veneers and other products was harvested sustainably. It also means that, by controlling the chain of custody of the timber, the producer verifies that only certified wood has entered the manufacturing process.

"Without the option of group certification, such as Indiana DNR's, the challenges to obtaining individual certification may be too burdensome, and as a result, such companies would not be able to provide their customers with certified wood," said Tom Stodola, FSC auditor. "A few other states also offer group certification but none is as large as Indiana DNR's."

In 2017, $15 million of wood product was certified through this program.

It is the policy of DNR

Forestry and all members of the FSC Group Chain-of-Custody Certificate to avoid using wood:

- From forest areas where traditional or civil rights are violated.
- From forest areas where high conservation values are threatened by management activities.
- From forests in which genetically modified trees are planted.
- That has been harvested illegally.
- That has been harvested from areas that have been converted from natural forest to plantations or non-forest uses.

"DNR is pleased to have earned this re-certification regarding our sustainable forestry practices," said DNR director Cameron Clark. "We are committed to standards and practices that will ensure future generations of Hoosiers they will be able to enjoy our natural resources."

The Indiana hardwood industry ships $7 billion worth of product and represents 2.4 percent of Indiana's Gross Domestic Product. It is one of the largest agriculture sectors in the state. (FSC license code FSC-C002017).

Indiana Attorney General warns Hoosiers to take ‘buyer beware’ approach with used car dealers

The REPORTER

Two recent cases resolved by the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) serve as timely reminders to all Hoosiers to exercise extreme caution when purchasing used vehicles. In both scenarios, used car dealers failed to deliver titles and/or provide promised warranties to customers who paid for vehicles.

In Delaware County, Capitol Motors LLC failed to procure warranties for 185 consumers. The business – owned and operated by Naim Mahmoud – advertised that each vehicle it sold came with a 3 month/3,000 mile warranty. Upon selling vehicles, however, the business regularly failed to forward payments to a third-party warranty provider, leaving buyers without warranty coverage. In addition, Capitol Motors failed to deliver valid vehicle titles within 31 days from the date of sale to 22 consumers, leaving those consumers unable to register or legally drive their newly-purchased cars and trucks.

Following a complaint filed against Capitol Motors and Naim Mahmoud by the Office of the Attorney General, a Delaware County Circuit Court judge on March 27 ordered restitution totaling $62,480 for 185 consumers who purchased extended vehicle warranties that they never received. The judgment also provides court-ordered titles for two consumers. The judgment requires the defendants to pay civil penalties of $180,500. The defendants are also ordered to pay the state $450 in costs, producing a total judgment amount of $243,430. Finally, the judgment prohibits defendant Naim Mahmoud from owning, operating or managing another auto dealership in Indiana in the future.

The Office of the Attorney General recommends the following tips to help consumers avoid similar situations encountered by the consumers of Capitol Motors and Shaver Motors.

When buying a warranty:

- If a consumer is buying a car from a dealership and purchases a warranty administered by a third party, the consumer should:
 - Ensure he or she receives a warranty contract at the time of sale and thoroughly reviews its terms;

Indiana in the future.

A similar case occurred in Allen County. Shaver Motors of Allen County, Inc., and its owner, John B. Shaver, III, accepted payment from 35 consumers for vehicle service contracts – i.e., warranties – and failed to forward the customers’ money to the warranty provider. This left consumers without the warranty coverage for which they paid. Additionally, Shaver Motors failed to provide titles to multiple customers.

Following a complaint filed by the Office of the Attorney General, a judge with the Allen County Circuit Court on March 26 ordered Shaver Motors of Allen County to pay $65,506.85 in restitution to 37 consumers who purchased extended vehicle warranties that they never received. The defendants also were ordered to pay $3,000 to the state for costs associated with the case. The judgment also provided court-ordered titles for three consumers. In addition, the judgment prohibits defendant John Shaver from owning, operating or managing another auto dealership in Indiana in the future.

The Office of the Attorney General recommends the following tips to help consumers avoid similar situations encountered by the consumers of Capitol Motors and Shaver Motors.

When buying a warranty:

- If a consumer is buying a car from a dealership and purchases a warranty administered by a third party, the consumer should:
 - Ensure he or she receives a warranty contract at the time of sale and thoroughly reviews its terms;

Ask the dealer when it will forward payment to the third-party warranty provider; and

- Contact the warranty provider after the date the dealer stated it would remit payment and ensure the warranty was purchased by the dealership and is active.

If a consumer pays for a warranty contract and the warranty provider never receives payment from the dealership, the consumer should immediately notify his or her lien holder of the issue. In addition, the consumer should file a complaint with the Attorney General’s office at indianaconsumer.com or by calling 1-800-382-5516.

When awaiting titles for newly-purchased used vehicles:

- Be aware that dealers have 31 days from the date of sale to deliver a valid title.
- Ask either to see the title itself or a copy of the title; at a minimum, request to know the current location of the title.
- Ensure you receive a “dealer title affidavit,” which should be completely filled out and signed by the dealer stating the current location of the title and the date the dealer expects to convey the title to you.
- If failing to receive a title within 31 days, immediately file complaints with the Secretary of State Auto Dealer Division and also with the Attorney General’s office at indianaconsumer.com or by calling 1-800-382-5516.

Millers softball splits Invitational games

Noblesville split two games at its own Miller Invitational on Saturday.

The Millers beat Lawrence Central 9-4 in the first game. The Bears took an early lead with two runs in the top of the first inning. Noblesville got one back in the bottom of the first when Grace Smith cracked a triple to send Abby Brown home

An RBI single moved LC ahead 3-1 in the second. The Millers had to wait until the third inning to get their next runs, but they scored three to take a 4-3 lead. Emily Minett's left field single scored Brown and Smith, then Ella White got home after Madison Taylor reached on error.

After that, Noblesville slowly added to its lead. In the fifth inning, Abigail Harvey got on base with a double, then Taylor's double got her home, then Maggie Hampton scored on a wild pitch. The Millers added three more runs in the sixth inning: Chloe Tragesser doubled in Mya Stuckey, then Ella White's single scored Alyssa Solomon and Smith.

Tragesser, Smith, White and Taylor all finished with two hits. Baily Ryan pitched five innings for the win.

The Millers fell to Plainfield 7-2 in their second game. Noblesville scored both of its runs in the seventh inning; Olivia Stinson hit a one-out double, then Harvey knocked a home run into right field. Brown and Stinson both had two hits.

Noblesville is 9-5 and will host Mount Vernon on Monday.

Tigers beat Avon, clinch HCC series

Fishers clinched a Hoosier Crossroads Conference series with Avon by beating the Class 4A No. 10 Orioles 5-2 in a Saturday home game.

The 4A No. 2 Tigers struck first in the bottom of the second. Kiel Brenzewski led off the inning with a single to left. After stealing second, Brenzewski advanced to third when Alex Jamieson reached first on an error. With two outs, Brenzewski scored when Daniel Owens reached on an error that would have ended the inning.

The Orioles answered right back with a run in the third inning to tie the score at 1-1. The Tigers took advantage of situational hitting to score two runs in the bottom of the fourth. Craig Yoho was hit by a pitch to lead off the inning. Brenzewski followed with a double to put runners at second and third. Matthew Wolff grounded out to the right side to plate Yoho and take the lead 2-1. Jamieson followed with an RBI single to score Brenzewski and extend the lead to 3-1.

The Orioles sparked a rally in the fifth inning off of reliever AJ Waltermann. The first batter reached on a hit by pitch. An out later, the Orioles singled and were hit by another pitch to load the bases. Although one run scored on a wild pitch, Waltermann proceeded to strikeout the next two Orioles to leave the runners stranded and maintain a 3-2 lead. Waltermann worked a 1-2-3 sixth inning and finished with three strikeouts in two innings of work.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, the Tigers once again used situational hitting to score two insurance runs. Brenzewski led off the inning with a single, his third hit of the day. Wolff followed with a single. With runners on first and second and no outs, Jamieson laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt to put both runners in scoring position with one out. Pinch runner TJ Ratliff would score on a wild pitch, and Wolff scored on Owens' sacrifice fly to left.

Wolff picked up his second save of the season pitching a 1-2-3 seventh inning, striking out the last batter to end the game. Mason Thomas (2-0) earned the victory on the mound. Making his first conference start, Thomas struck out eight in four innings, while allowing two hits and one earned run. The only hiccup for Thomas was his six walks.

Brenzewski led the Tigers at the plate with his 3-for-3 effort. Ben Burton, Wolff, and Jamieson contributed one hit each. Wolff, Jamieson, and Owens had one RBI apiece.

The Tigers are 10-2 in the conference and 15-4 overall. Fishers returns to action on Tuesday when it hosts Columbus East at 6 p.m.
