No more fresh Dilly Bars

Noblesville's original DQ dies for Unpleasant Street project

By STU CLAMPITT
news@readthereporter.com

Cathy Zeller has worked at Noblesville's Dairy Queen, 798 S. 10th St., since it was on a different corner of the same intersection. Last Sunday, she served the final handmade Dilly Bars and Buster Bars in Hamilton County.

Last Saturday she was working her 10th straight 12-hour day, running the DQ with workers from Greenfield, Shelbyville and Tipton locations, just trying to keep up with the influx of customers who want one last taste before the store closes forever. This DQ will soon be torn down and paved over by the Re-imagine Pleasant Street project, which many are calling the Unpleasant Street project.

"I'm going to do my best to be open until at least one or two o'clock [on Aug. 7], but right now I'm running out of stuff rapidly," Zeller told The Reporter. "We've already pumped 220 gallons of [ice cream] mix since Wednesday. I'm going to go to Elwood and see if I can get another 50 gallons from them. If I do that, I should be able to be open until two o'clock tomorrow. Isn't that crazy?"

This influx of customers started as soon as El Camino Real closed on Tuesday, July 26.

"People knew it was in the cards at that point, without us saying a word," Zeller said. "It got really crazy when somebody posted on social media that Wednesday [July 27] was our last day. I posted our closing date as this Sunday on that Wednesday afternoon. I wasn't going to post it until Thursday morning because I knew what would happen. I had to go ahead and post because the town was going crazy that they had no notice. The craziness started Wednesday." Zeller has worked on the intersection of 10th and Pleasant streets for decades. After the store closes, Zeller laughed and said she is taking a four-week vacation. "I have worked 12-hour days since last Wednesday, so this is my 10th day and it's not going to end until we get the store emptied out," Zeller said. "So, I'm going to need those four weeks off. After that I'm not ready to

Westfield releases two Grand Park appraisals

The REPORTER
The City of Westfield has released two property appraisals for the Grand Park Sports Campus.
According to city officials, these appraisals are to set the minimum price for property and improvements that will be considered by any qualified bidder responding to the Grand Park Sports Campus RFP by Aug. 8 with an offer to purchase or through a public-private partnership. The appraisals do not account for the business intangibles and other value created by Grand Park.
The minimum price for Grand Park is the average of the two appraisals, which is $85 million.
Westfield city officials say they look forward to that process unfolding through the committee structure implemented to allow an array of inputs from the city council representative to local business leaders and beyond.

The REPORTER
Sara Colter of Cicero has been hired as the new Area Manager for the Central Indiana Chapter of Teach One to Lead One (T1L1).

Alzheimer's research fundraiser coming to Fishers next month

The REPORTER
A community-driven effort is organizing in Fishers to help end Alzheimer's disease once and for all. The Race to Remember to benefit the Cure Alzheimer's Fund will take place on Saturday, Sept. 17 at Witten Park in Saxony, 13256 Saxony Blvd., Fishers.
Alzheimer's Disease affects over six million people. It is estimated that one in three seniors will die from Alzheimer's disease, a rate greater than breast cancer and prostate cancer combined. This year, one person will be diagnosed every 65 seconds with this dreaded disease. By 2050 the disease is projected to afflict one person every 33 seconds.
"Like many others, my family has been directly affected by Alzheimer's disease," Race to Remember Community Coordinator Irene Young said. "The disease claimed my father five years ago."

Race to Remember will be a family-centered, community-driven annual event for Hamilton County. Proceeds from the event this year will benefit the Cure Alzheimer's Fund.
The Cure Alzheimer's Fund gives 100 percent of its donation directly to Alzheimer's disease research. Charity Navigator has recognized it as a Four-Star Charity – the highest rank a charity can receive for efficiency and transparency.
The Cure Alzheimer's Fund ends the world's leading Alzheimer's research, provides rapid review for grant approvals, and inspires collaboration among fund scientists. The Fund's Board of Directors pays for all overhead so that 100 percent of donations go to research.

Race to Remember needs community sponsors to help underwrite the run and to ensure a fun, safe community event. Sponsorship packages include recognition on signage, event T-shirts, and promotional materials to be included in participants' run packets. The goal is to secure commitments by Wednesday, Aug. 10 to cover the following costs:

Race to Remember

- Police and Safety Sponsor: $1,000
- Event and Course Sponsor: $800
- T-shirt sponsor: $600

Sheridan grad's evolving goals

Talent & ambition make all the difference for Kirsten Hampton

The REPORTER

Kirsten Hampton, a 2022 Sheridan High School graduate, hasn't always wanted to be a professional rodeo pickup man, but as with most, her goals evolved over time.

She began riding horses before she could walk and trained her first mini horse by age five. She enjoyed working with young horses, but what she truly enjoyed the most was "going fast." She learned how to barrel race and rope and had many people help teach her along the way.

Hampton was the Missouri Breakaway Champion and named Indiana High School Rodeo's "Top Hand" in 2022. In the past year, her love for "going fast" evolved into her current goal to become one of the few women who are professional rodeo pickup men.

Pickup men, the riders who help cowboys safely dismount off bucking horses, is a mostly male-dominated rodeo role.

Melissa Hampton, Kirsten's mother, said, "Kirsten has been mistaken as the rodeo queen until she rides out and saves the riders coming off the bucking horses. She's tough and she wants it. Her talent and ambition make all the difference. Kirsten is showing little girls that limitations don't exist if you're willing to put in the work."

Kirsten has picked up at Indiana High School rodeos and International Professional Rodeo Association (IPRA) events in multiple states. In December, she will head to Las Vegas to compete in the Vegas Toughest World Championship for Breakaway roping.

When asked what advice Hampton would give to young cowgirls, she said, "Don't let anyone tell you what you're capable of doing. If you want it, then go get it."

Hampton lives this advice daily. She has been mentored by some of the best pickup men in the business including Kaleb Barrett and Shawn Spaulding, International Finals Rodeo (IFR) pickup man of the year.

She is currently a pickup man for South Plains Rodeo Company and has been hired by other professional stock contractors as well to ensure the safety of the bucking horses and their riders.

You can see Hampton and her horses work while attending any of the South Plains Rodeo Co. rodeos and events.

Hampton will attend Purdue University this fall to study Biomedical Agricultural Science with a focus on Equine Therapy to become an Equine Chiropractor.

Sheridan's own Kirsten Hampton – named Indiana High School Rodeo's "Top Hand" – will head to Las Vegas this December.

She was also mentored by IFR World Champion Shawn Coleman as well. She's had many great professionals in the IPRA and the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association who saw her potential, took an interest, and worked with her to develop her talents.

Hampton is currently sponsored by Cowpokes

Several volunteers recently helped revamp the Born Learning Trail.

Duke Energy partners with Noblesville Parks to re-energize city’s Born Learning Trail

The REPORTER

The Noblesville Parks and Recreation Department and Duke Energy have partnered to revive the Born Learning Trail. Located at the northwest corner of Hague Road and State Road 32, the trail is a series of 10 interactive signs that offer fun learning activities for young children and their families that creates quality engagement opportunities when out on a stroll.

The Born Learning Trail is a program through the United Way with trails located across the country. Noblesville’s trail, originally installed nearly 15 years ago, was in need of an update. With Duke Energy’s financial support and volunteering, the trail was revived and new signage was purchased and installed by the parks department.

“We appreciate Duke Energy’s partnership in helping us breathe new life into the Born Learning Trail,”

Noblesville Parks Director Brandon Bennett said. “We enjoy seeing families enjoying the trail and turning everyday outdoor moments into fun educational memories for younger kids.”

During the summer, Duke Energy employees volunteered their time to install and paint the interactive activities on the trail. The trail and newly installed activities are now open to the public free of charge thanks to Duke Energy’s commitment to the project.

“May is our month of focus for Duke Energy volunteering,” Duke Energy Community Relations Manager Mark LaBarr said. “Our employees enjoy working on projects like this to give back and contributing to the vibrancy of the communities we serve.”

Based on the latest early childhood research and approved by national early learning experts through United Way Worldwide, the Born Learning Trail is designed to help adults interact with children to boost language and literacy development and to help communities understand how to best support early learning through outdoor recreation.

During a rare lull in business last Saturday, Cathy Zeller spoke to the Reporter.

quit working, but I’m ready to cut back. We are owned by J.D. Restaurants, the Reasner family. I will do something for them. They are a great family to work for. I have worked for them for 33 years. They will have a spot for me someplace. They also own the Greenfield, Elwood and Tipton Dairy Queens and anyone here who has transportation will have a job.”

Zeller said she and her crew only found out they would be closing this soon on Friday, July 22.

“Up until then, we thought we were going to be here until the end of September,” Zeller said. “El Camino had to be out by the 31st, but the city gave us two more weeks.”

While The Reporter was at DQ last Saturday, the parking lot was full, the drive-up line was backed up into the street, the building was packed, and many people were eating their last local ice cream treats in their vehicles.

“This is really hard,” Zeller said, her voice cracking a bit. “There has been a Dairy Queen on this intersection for 68 years. It’s just hard. The community – they’re coming in wiping tears. You’ve witnessed it. They’re angry. They’re not angry at us, thank goodness!”

The original DQ sat diagonally across the intersection. Zeller was working for DQ when it was owned by Harvey and Ruby Tunget and when it moved to its current location.

“We moved into this building in ’75,” Zeller said. “Harvey and I worked overnight the night after we closed over there and rolled the equipment across the street. That’s a true story!”

Zeller said this DQ was the last location in the county where Dilly Bars and Buster Bars were made fresh on-site. Recently, one local woman bought so many that Zeller’s crew had to help her carry two grocery sacks full out to her car.

Final customers got their last taste of local handmade frozen treats on Sunday.

No injuries when Carmel-launched hot air balloon comes down on Noblesville power lines

The REPORTER

Look! Up in the sky! It's a bird! It's a plane! Meanwhile, down on the ground in some powerlines in Noblesville, it's a hot air balloon. Last Tuesday evening, the Reporter's own Janet Hart Leonard caught some photos of a hot air balloon coming down near 10th and Monument streets in Noblesville. According to Leonard, it looked to her like the balloon was going to attempt a landing at North Elementary School when things went awry. She put on her best Lois Lane face and rushed out to snap photos for Hamilton County's Hometown Newspaper.

Reporter photos by Janet Hart Leonard

Intrepid columnist / camerawoman Janet Hart Leonard was our Janet-on-the-spot when this balloon missed its landing zone. Thanks for thinking like a newswoman!

According to our news-gathering partners at WISH-TV Channel 8, the balloon had launched near the intersection of East Main Street and Hazel Dell Parkway in Carmel. Hoosier Weather Daddy and Reporter Owner Paul Poteet tells us Tuesday's high temps topped 85 degrees. The obvious assumption is that hot air and hot air balloons may not be best friends, but The Reporter has learned otherwise. Indy Hot Air Owner Jack Semlar said atmospheric conditions had nothing to do with this incident. He also told The Reporter this is the first time a balloon from his company has been involved in an emergency landing. According to Semlar, one pilot and four passengers were ending a one-hour scenic flight 20 minutes from sunset on Tuesday and were on approach to land at the school. Semlar said they did not see the powerlines until they were already coming down. Semlar told The Reporter the pilot pulled a “smart

The balloon instantly deflated and “just draped over the powerlines, causing a spark, but the basket was already down, and no one was in any danger.” Leonard said she saw Indy Hot Air's truck and trailer on the scene within two minutes of the strange touchdown and that Duke Energy had a bucket truck on sight shortly thereafter to help. Noblesville Police and Fire responded. According to one Duke spokesperson, “Duke Energy line workers responded Tuesday evening. Minimal customers were affected between the hours of 8:30 and 10:20 p.m.” Most of them were probably too interested in the scene to notice a minor electrical service disruption anyway. It should be noted that the phone number painted on the side of the Indy Hot Air trailer seen in photos in today's edition is not in fact the phone for that company. If you wish to try your luck in one of their balloons, the correct phone number is (317) 374-3538. You can also find them online at IndyHotAir.com.

Sheridan Community Schools updates safety protocols ahead of new academic year

The REPORTER

Like every school across the nation, school safety is a top priority at Sheridan Community Schools (SCS). SCS is continually working to upgrade safety practices, especially with the new construction and upcoming growth.

Sheridan has added a compliance officer and assigned high school assistant principal, Dr. Melissa Hampton, to the role of Safety Director to focus on a comprehensive plan and evaluate all best practices.

SCS officials recognize that it is just not "things" that make schools safer, but protocols, as well as compliance and collaboration with local communities and safety agencies.

Planning for school safety is an ongoing process, and each summer plans are updated, and upgrades are made. This summer, SCS focused on updating safety policies, safety levels consistent with Hamilton County schools and first responders, entry protocol training, and review for administrative assistants. In addition, thanks to a

A district-wide camera security audit was conducted, and multiple plans were developed. First responders have been equipped with updated keys, fobs and safety procedure/map update.

"Maintaining a safe and welcoming school environment is important for students, staff, and community," Hampton said. "Being a small school is an advantage because teachers and staff know students well, while at the same time taking school safety very seriously."

SCS is fortunate to have a faculty and staff who continually put student safety first.

"Safety of our students and community is our top priority," Superintendent Dr. Dave Mundy said. "We want to be outstanding community partners – that is what makes Sheridan such a terrific school district – but we also focus each day on keeping our students and teachers safe during the school day and beyond."

Noblesville Preservation Alliance will restage radio play “The War of the Worlds”

The REPORTER
In October of 1938, Orson Welles and the Mercury Theatre of the Air presented a broadcast that would prove to be one of the most memorable events in radio history: The War of the Worlds.
While presented as a radio play, many people thought it was a real news broadcast and widespread panic ensued. While many people were upset when they found out the truth, this broadcast showed the power of radio at that time.
On Oct. 7, the Noblesville Preservation Alliance will present a recreation of that broadcast live on stage at Preservation Hall in Noblesville. A cast of 10 or more people will be needed for the performance, and auditions will be open to the public beginning Monday, Aug 15. Carmel confirms consistency is key

Carmel girls golfers bounce back in fifth tournament, Westfield's Brown dominates

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

The first week of the high school girls golf season was a busy one for Carmel, but it was also a productive and successful week.

The Greyhounds played their fifth tournament in six days last Saturday at the State Preview meet, which took place at Prairie View Golf Club. Carmel was involved in a tough battle with Westfield for most of the event before surging ahead during the final three holes and winning the team championship. The Greyhounds totaled a score of 305, while the Shamrocks were the runners-up with a 311.

CONSISTENT CARMEL

The word of the day for Carmel was consistency. All five of the Greyhounds' golfers finished in the top 22, including three landing in the top 10. Michaela Headlee led the way by taking second place, scoring a 74. Sophie Mock played solid, finishing in ninth with a 76, and Claire Swathwood tied for 10th place, totaling a 77.

Headlee and Mock each drained two birdies during their rounds, while Swathwood and Ava Nguyen both made one birdie.

"The girls came in with a strong game plan of just trying to avoid some of those big numbers that we've had in the past and they did a great job of it," said Carmel coach Kelly Kluesner. "As a team they were even on No. 9, which is unbelievable for us, and then they finished 16, 17 and 18 one under par as a team. They finished well."

The Greyhounds' victory at the State Preview meet was a bit of a rebound. Carmel had won its first three tournaments of the year before placing third at last Thursday's Hamilton County meet. But the 'Hounds were back in the winner's circle again at Prairie View, a place that they and other teams hope to be at the end of September for the state tournament.

"They worked on a lot of things yesterday and can't be more proud of them to win four out of five invitations in the first week," said Kluesner.

SENSATIONAL SAMANTHA

Westfield was led by junior Samantha Brown, who turned in a tremendous performance at Prairie View. Brown finished with a six-under par 66 for her round, winning the individual championship by six strokes.

"I think I played well," said Brown. "I think I kept myself in position and when I got out of position, I did a great job of punching out, getting on the green and just trying to make that putt."

Brown started her round on hole No. 3, and she did so with an eagle. She would go on to make five birdies in her round.

"It was a good way to start the high school season because I wasn't here last week," said Brown. "This is my first high school event and it was nice to get out here and then just a little confidence boost on the first hole. It's what everybody needs."

Brown had played in the Junior PGA Championship at Cog Hill Golf & Country Club at Palos Park, Ill. Early in the week, where she made her way to the third day of the four-day tournament.

"I think it taught me a lot," said Brown. "And I think just managing my game, I learned a lot out there and just staying confident and knowing that good things are eventually going to come. If it's not that round, it could be the next round, so just to stay patient and good things will come."

The Westfield team also had a consistent day. Kelsey Haverluck added a 79, while Addi Kooi carded an 82. Haverluck made two birdies, while Kooi and Claire Thompson both had one.

"It was a good day for us," said Shamrocks coach

Josh Bryant. "I love how we started. I think what Prairie View does is, it always teaches you where you are, some things that you need to work on. Carmel finished really well as a team and that's the difference. But certainly, we take a million positives."

Noblesville girls golf wins at home

All eight local teams travel to Harbour Trees for Hamilton County tournament

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

Hamilton County girls golf teams have to look no further than their own backyard to find quality competition.

All eight of the local teams traveled up to Harbour Trees last Thursday for the Hamilton County meet, which was hosted by Noblesville. It was the first meet of the season for the Millers, and it turned out well for them: the Millers finished with a score of 303 to claim the first-place trophy.

"I think we played great," said Noblesville coach Justin Werkley. Since it was the first tournament of the year, the Millers had no expectations for the event.

"We just wanted to come out and do the best we could," said Werkley. "They held it together, they played well, attitudes were great. I can't say enough good things about it."

Noblesville also had the individual medalist as well. Senior Caroline Whallon, who spent the beginning of the week competing at the Junior PGA Championship at Cog Hill Golf & Country Club at Palos Park, Ill., was the meet medalist with an even-par 71. Whallon went under par in her first nine holes, with a 34, and then followed that up with a 37 on her next nine holes.

"It was definitely a mentally challenging few days, just playing with some of the best golfers in the whole country," said Whallon. But she said the experience challenged her and helped her to become mentally stronger, and will help her in the long run throughout the season.

"Playing in a tournament like that is an awesome experience, and she'll have a ton of positive takeaways from it," said Werkley. "But I also know she's happy to be back playing with her teammates and getting the season underway. She's a great leader and we're lucky to have her."

The Millers had a consistent day all around. Jordan Adam placed third with a score of 74, then Josie Kelley also got a top 10 finish in her first-ever meet, taking eighth with a 77.

"Josie is a freshman," said Werkley. "A great player, great kid, love having her on the team. Jordan's made a ton of strides with her game this year. Karis Shields has stepped up big time, and then we've got a lot of other players that are competing for all those spots, too."

"With Josie coming in, I feel like we're probably going to be the strongest we've been in years, so I'm really excited for this season," said Whallon.

Westfield was the team runner-up, totaling a solid score of 306. The Shamrocks also had three players finish in the top 10, led by Addi Kooi. The sophomore took second individually with a score of 72.

Freshman Kelsey Haverluck and Allie McKeown tied for fifth place; both carded 76s.

Westfield coach Josh Bryant, in his first year of leading the girls team, was happy with how his team played. He noted that Harbour Trees is "a very difficult track. That rough was thick. And it's a place that you play that, the girls don't get as much experience on other golf courses that we will play like Harbour Trees, and we handled it really well. Our putting was great. Our play around the greens was great."

Carmel finished a close third with a score of 311. The Greyhounds were another team with three players in the top 10. Sophie Mock finished fourth with

Evan R. Hansen Golf Tournament continues Guerin Catholic grad's legacy

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

The fourth annual Evan R. Hansen Golf Tournament took place July 30 at Pebble Brook Golf Course in Noblesville.

The sold-out tournament once again honored the legacy of Evan Hansen, a Guerin Catholic graduate. Hansen played football for the Golden Eagles, then went on to become a standout student and player at Wabash College. He was a senior at Wabash when he passed away in September 2018.

Hansen's parents, Chuck and Mary Hansen established the Evan R. Hansen Legacy Foundation, and it carries out philanthropic activities in memory of Evan. Two of Evan Hansen's Guerin Catholic teammates, Ben Almack and Kyle Schultz, also helped with the establishment of the foundation.

Chuck Hansen said that 153 people signed up to play at the tournament, and the event also had "about 20 volunteers."

"It's really important for everybody that knew Evan to feel the support from others and realize that there's still good things happening from his memory and his legacy," said Chuck Hansen. "It's also a good chance for friends to see each other. Once people get out of high school and college, you don't see friends anymore and it's turning into a reunion of Evan's friends and coaches and things like that." Chuck Hansen called the event "a very positive, happy day," and a way to "make something positive out of a sad story."

Since its inception, the Hansen Legacy Foundation, which has donated $160,000 to several different organizations since its inception. to Marian University, the Merciful HELP Center, Wabash College, FOCUS and the Concussion Legacy Foundation. In addition, the foundation awards an annual scholarship to a Guerin Catholic student. Elodie Krawczyk received the first scholarship in 2021, and Elie Wilt received it this year.

"After graduation from Wabash College, Evan was planning for a career in the medical field," said a statement on the Evan R. Hansen Legacy Foundation website. "He was majoring in Spanish, so that he could better serve that community. He spent his 2018 Spring Semester in Valencia, learning Spanish medical terminology. That summer he interned at the Merciful HELP Center in Carmel, and also at the Kaseman community health clinic near Washington DC, where he translated between Hispanic patients and doctors. In his memory, the Foundation will use $50,000 from this Golf Tournament to establish a perpetual, endowed scholarship at Marian University. Special consideration will be given to a student that embodies the Franciscan value of Dignity of the Individual, and who has demonstrated a commitment to serve the underrepresented."

The foundation's first donation was to Merciful HELP Center, which is run by Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, located near 146th Street and Oak Ridge Road in Carmel. The center helps resident and homeless disadvantaged people in Hamilton County, providing food, appliances and other necessities, and assisting with referrals for "social assistance, housing jobs and legal matters in cooperation with dozens of other agencies," according to its website (merciful-helpcenter.org).

The Evan R. Hansen Legacy Foundation website offers additional resources, plus information about scholarships and internships. For more information, visit the foundation's website at erh32.org.

Greyhounds take top spots at first two pre-season golf invitationals

CARMEL

Impressive showings justify No. 1 position on pre-season poll

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

The Indiana girls golf pre-season poll came out on July 31, and Carmel was ranked No. 1 on the list.

The Greyhounds have easily justified that top rating, as Carmel won two big invitationals to open the season. First, the ‘Hounds won the Bloomington South Invitational on Aug. 1 at Bloomington Country Club, then got a victory closer to home at the Hamilton Southeastern Invitational on Aug. 2 at Stony Creek Golf Club in Noblesville.

CLAIRE GOES EIGHT UNDER

Carmel’s big Bloomington win was led by an outstanding performance from Claire Swathwood. The junior was the individual medalist with an eight under par score of 65. Swathwood drained nine birdies in her round, with eight pars and just one bogey.

“Claire gained some momentum early and kept it rolling the entire round,” said Greyhounds coach Kelly Kluesner on the Carmel High School athletics website. “She was a true leader and it was fun to watch her competitive spirit!”

The ‘Hounds got solid performances from their other golfers as well. Michaela Headlee and Kamryn Williams both scored 78s, while Ava Nguyen added an 80.

Westfield, ranked No. 5 in the pre-season poll, placed fourth with a team score of 332. Addi Kooi led the Shamrocks with a score of 79.

Carmel had another solid day Tuesday at Stony Creek. The Greyhounds had two teams play in the tournament, and Carmel Blue scored a team total of 294 for the victory. Kamryn Williams was the meet medalist with a score of 71, while Swathwood added a 73. Nguyen carded a 74, improving by six strokes in just one day.

The host Royals had three teams at their annual tournament, with Southeastern’s Blue team taking second by scoring 312. Ella Bui was the leader for HSE Blue with a 75, followed by Cora Zink with 76. The Royals’ Gray team placed third, Reece Hisson led the way with a 73.

Southeastern’s White team finished with a score of 362; Laci Hart led that Royals squad with an 84. Meanwhile, Janelle Garcia played as an individual for the Royals, and she finished with a score of 72, tying for second place with Lapel’s Macy Beeson.

Fishers sent two teams to Stony Creek; the Tigers’ Red team scored a 380, and their Silver team a 432. Olivia Really excited for Janelle Garcia. First time coming out here, she moved around this course, really, really well. She’s just a great addition to this team.”

Heights’ own Sterling Weatherford, now a Colt, welcomes young Husky footballers

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

Everything came full circle for Sterling Weatherford last Wednesday.

The 2017 Hamilton Heights graduate is also one of the newest members of the Indianapolis Colts. Weatherford is participating with the team at Colts Camp, which is currently taking place at Grand Park. Last Wednesday, Weatherford got a chance to see some of his fans, as team moms from the Hamilton Heights Youth Football League took some of the young Huskies to Grand Park for the camp.

“It was awesome,” said Weatherford. “It reminded me of when I was a kid and I came up to the training camp with my family.”

Weatherford said that 10 to 15 years ago, he was one of those kids, standing in their shoes. Now, he’s on the field.

“It’s hard to dream that big when you’re a kid, but for that dream to come true, it’s just super special and unbelievable,” said Weatherford.

The trip was organized by four of the HHYFL’s team moms: Stacia Renbarger, Susan Baber, Yumi Whitaker and Julia Schlatter. In addition to getting to watch the camp and meet Weatherford, the kids got have a little tailgate party and eat beforehand.

“They had a blast,” said Renbarger. “They had such a good time supporting him. It’s really good for them to watch and see how the hard work they’re putting in today could lead to something like that, even though we’re from a small school.”

Weatherford played college football at Miami University of Ohio and got quite a bit of attention as he progressed through school. He signed with the Colts at the end of the NFL Draft as an undrafted free agent, and is playing as a linebacker.

“It’s awesome,” said Weatherford. It means something to him to represent the city he grew up in.

“We have a great group of guys in the linebacker room that definitely have been very helpful, as you could imagine. Just giving advice and really just showing how to play the right way.”

Weatherford was told by his fiancée Lydia Landwehr, also a 2017 Hamilton Heights graduate, about the planned trip.

“I knew that after practice, I would see a couple kids, but they definitely showed out,” said Weatherford.

“At Hamilton Heights, we have a very strong football program and a very strong youth football program,” said Renbarger. “The league is a very-tight knit group. Our sixth grade has done very well. These boys have followed Sterling’s story, and I used to teach Lydia dance, so I know her very well.”

The HHYFL moms invited some of the members of the third and fourth grade teams, the entire sixth-grade team and a few of the flag football team members to the trip to Grand Park to see Weatherford.

“He seemed like he was really thrilled,” said Renbarger. “He took pictures and gave hugs to the little ones. Signed the footballs and jerseys. Everybody was just really happy to see him, and he was really happy to see the boys, too.”

“Every single one of those kids, I saw myself in,” said Weatherford. He said that seeing the young Huskies brought everything full circle, and he also understands that those players are looking up to him. He said he recognizes “that it’s my responsibility to be that role model for those kids, and just lead them in the right direction” in how he acts, speaks and lives.

And while he is a role model to the young Huskies, Weatherford is finding role models on his new team.

“We got an awesome linebacker group, a bunch of amazing guys to look up to,” said Weatherford. “They definitely are helping us rookies figure out what it means to be in the NFL. They show us how to play, how to react, how to respond. They’re our role models.”

“People are always just trying to give back, pay it forward to the rookie classes coming in,” said Weatherford. “It’s a special bond.”

PREVAIL
Advocating for Victims of Crime & Abuse

I was born and raised right here in Noblesville. I grew up in a home without domestic violence or assault - it wasn't something I saw, or even heard about. But when I was introduced to Prevail of Central Indiana, I was shocked by the number of individuals who are affected by domestic violence. In 2018 alone, Prevail helped more than 4,000 clients in Hamilton County (nearly 80 percent of clients are women and children). Domestic violence and abuse are hard topics to discuss, so you don't often hear about them. But at Tom Wood Volkswagen in Noblesville, we're breaking the taboo and raising awareness for Prevail, an organization that helps families in Hamilton County.

Hamilton County Republican Women get insiders' view of Emergency Management

Among other things, they were given a demonstration of one of the county's aerial photography drones. Noblesville archer headed to world championships

Koteewi Archery to hold fundraiser for Mandy Boggs' travel expenses

The REPORTER

Five years ago, Mandy Boggs would never have dreamed she'd be representing the United States in an international archery tournament. But the 45-year-old Noblesville native and Koteewi Archery's own, as part of Team USA Archery, is heading to Stroncone, in the Province of Terni, Italy, to compete in the Rhinehart World Archery 3D Championships next month.

The World Archery Championships are held every two years at different locations throughout the world. The last such competition was held in 2019 and it was shortly after that tournament that Boggs was invited to join Team USA.

To do so required Boggs to prepare for the 2021 games. That preparation included rigorous training, followed by disappointment for her and other competitors when learning the games had been canceled due to COVID-19 restrictions. Undeterred, she continued her intense training, which paid off in a second-place finish at this year's trials, ensuring a place for her on this year's team.

Boggs is one of only 24 archers representing Team USA at the Rinehart 3D Championships. The tournament, scheduled to take place Sept. 4 to 10, is comprised of seven days of shooting, with two qualification days of 48 arrows being shot each day, followed by a mixed team event that requires one male and one female from each style of shooting. To reach the finals, competitors must first advance through the quarter-finals and semifinals.

The competition is actually held on Roman ruins, making the games all the more special. While quartered in the historic ancient town of Stroncone, the athletes will not only be participating in the archery competition but will represent the United States in opening and closing ceremonies.

Boggs has been shooting for years, but within the last four years took her dedication to the sport to a much higher level. Archery has become a lifestyle for her, requiring a greater investment of time, and accepting the sacrifices necessary to elevate her game. Whether shooting recreationally, coaching the Koteewi Archery youth team, or competing for Team USA Archery, proudly wearing the red, white and blue, her commitment to the sport and competitive accomplishments are evident.

As in many world athletic events, to compete, athletes are solely responsible for not only purchasing their equipment, but also for funding their travels, including transportation, meals and accommodations.

To help Boggs cover the costs of representing the United States at the Rhinehart Championships, Koteewi Range will play host to a benefit shoot on Aug. 20 and 21. The fundraising tournament is open to all archers whether shooting recurve, compound or anything in between. Other fundraising activities at the shoot will include a silent auction, the sale of freshly-grilled hamburgers and hot dogs and an opportunity to meet Boggs and fellow Hoosier archer Kenny Jordan from Versailles, Ind., who will also compete for Team USA Archery.

The public is welcome to attend, whether to shoot the course, located in scenic Strawtown Koteewi Park or meet the archers in person. One hundred percent of the proceeds raised at the event and donations received during the month of August will go directly toward funding Boggs' and Jordan's trip to Stroncone as representatives of Team USA.

Carmel ranks as No. 1 bicycle-friendly city in Indiana

The REPORTER

The City of Carmel has once again been rated the No. 1 city in Indiana for bicycle friendliness by People for Bikes, which ranks cities across the globe based on the quality of their (trails, paths, bike lanes) along with survey responses from residents on how they feel about biking in their city. Carmel scored a 55 rating (on a 100-point scale), which tops all Indiana cities. Fishers and Bloomington tied for second with a 28 rating.

Carmel's ranking puts the city in the No. 11 spot among all Midwestern cities. You can see complete city ratings at cityratings.peopleforbikes.org/ratings.

Carmel currently has more than 220 miles of trails and side paths and is adding an average of 10 miles every year. The city also continues to add bicycle parking (currently there are about 4,000 dedicated spaces), bike pump and repair stations as well as a Bike Share system.

"We are pleased to be recognized as one of the best places to bike in the Midwest and we will continue to improve as we add more paths and trails to our network," Mayor Jim Brainard said. "Building a better bicycling culture is important for bike safety and providing transportation choices for people. It is also an important part of our strategy to improve our quality of life in order to attract jobs and a professional work force companies need to thrive."

The People for Bikes rating system weighs heavily (80 percent of final score) on each city's bicycling network and where that network leads. For example, high marks are given if trails and paths connect riders to their homes, jobs, schools, shopping districts and parks. The remaining 20 percent of the final score is based on responses to a survey that asks bicyclists how safe they feel while riding, how often they ride for recreation or for business and how they feel their city is doing when it comes to improving and expanding the bicycling network.

As part of the Carmel Bike Carmel program, the city hosts a variety of events throughout the year for bicycle enthusiasts of all ages. Go to tinyurl.com/BikeCarmelEvents to check out our schedule of events. You can go to facebook.com/bikecarmel.

Fishers considering luxury condos near Nickel Plate Trail

The REPORTER

Alboher Development Company, Inc. and Birkla Investment Group, LLC announced last Friday their proposal to build a five-story, mixed-use building at 8603 E. 116 St., Fishers, located at the intersection of Municipal Drive and 116 Street near the newly opened downtown hub of the Fishers Nickel Plate Trail.

The REV development will feature 36 for-sale condominiums, a parking garage, and 23,000 square feet of commercial and office space. The luxury condos, ranging from $600,000 to $1,000,000, will be the first of their kind as Fishers' first for-sale condominiums.

"The REV development provides us with a unique opportunity to diversify the housing market in Fishers," Fishers Mayor Scott Fadness said. "These condos will offer residents all the benefits of downtown living, but also an opportunity to build equity during a time when real estate options are limited. Combined with its emphasis on sustainability and the additional retail opportunities it will provide our community, the REV building is the perfect addition to our downtown cultural district."

The $35 million investment is the first new development announcement along the Nickel Plate Trail since the downtown portion opened in May, and the first condominium project along the trail.

"We are excited to expand the REV brand into Fishers," Tony Birkla, owner of Birkla Investment Group said. "REV at Proscenium sold out quickly, as buyers immediately saw value in the home quality, amenities and lifestyle. REV Fishers will continue our precedent for all-inclusive luxury community living with quality construction that exceeds expectations."

The building's eco-friendly design features a wood and glass façade, which will serve as a striking landmark in the bustling Nickel Plate Cultural District. The downtown district was designated as a Statewide Cultural District in 2018 by the Indiana Arts Commission (IAC).

"Having owned this property since 1986, I have seen dramatic changes to Fishers," Mike Alboher, President of Alboher Development said. "Having sorted through countless proposals on this property, I was not swayed until Steve Hardin introduced me and my daughter, Paige Pettenaro, to Tony Birkla and his team. We were so impressed with his team's vision for our site, things progressed quickly. Mayor Fadness and Megan Baumgartner shared our enthusiasm and worked tirelessly to make this happen. We believe this development perfectly fits the advancing evolution of our downtown area, filling both housing and retail needs."

The Fishers City Council will vote on the project agreement approving incentives at the Monday, Aug. 15 council meeting at Launch Fishers, 12175 Visionary Way.

Landowners with wells needed for groundwater study

The REPORTER

The Hamilton County Surveyor's Office is seeking volunteers for the county's three-year Water Availability Study. The study is being done by INTERA, the engineering firm employed by the county, and will monitor aquifer levels throughout the county in order to better understand the groundwater availability within the county.

The overall goal is to not only understand the current water resources in the county but also to determine ways to improve the long-term availability of water in the county, thus ensuring a sustainable source of water into the future.

An important part of this work is implementing a groundwater data network by partnering with county landowners. This network involves the addition of a water level sensor to volunteer landowner wells to remotely measure the groundwater fluctuations in that area. This network will be the first county-based real time groundwater information system in Indiana. The monitoring system uses next-generation acoustic sensor technology to turn residential, agricultural, industrial and irrigation wells into real-time monitoring networks. The sensor attaches to the top of the well and does not interfere with its function.

The county is looking for volunteers interested in having their well outfitted with a real-time sensor to add their water data to the groundwater network. The installation is free, and the data will contribute valuable information to the study. Landowners who choose to do so will be provided personalized access to your well's water level data through time. If interested, please reach out to the Hamilton County Surveyors Office at (317) 776-8495 or email surveyor@hamiltoncounty.in.gov.

The Locator Club The valley of disappointment

Mary didn’t bug me often after that conversation about what I should do regarding the search for my biological parents because she knew about my internal struggle. Mary understood that I didn’t want to hurt my mother. But she planted another seed in me that day that began to grow. And when I read an article in a magazine about a mother and daughter who were reunited thanks to the help of a celebrity by the name of Troy Dunn, I knew what I had to do.

I had seen reruns of Mr. Dunn’s television show, The Locator, after I had minor surgery in 2012. Troy and his team worked together for four seasons to reunite lost relatives, with the backstory and end result shown on TV. Of course, each episode brought me to tears and made me think about my own situation. But I still hadn’t wanted to take the next step.

The magazine talked about the happy reunion and how Mr. Dunn had created something called the Locator Club. This was an online yearly subscription to a site where you could take various webinars and learn how to locate a missing relative on your own. I showed the article to my husband John and asked him how he felt about me spending $99 to join the site.

AMY SHANKLAND
Perfectly Imperfect

“You know I’ve always supported you in this,” he said. “You should give it a try and see how things go.”

So in the summer of 2013, I paid the money and became part of the Locator Club. It was great to join a supportive community and chat with other individuals like myself. I started a journal to take notes for each webinar that I watched.

The first thing I learned about was something called a state adoption registry. Most states offer this service, where you can sign up either as an adoptee or birth parent with the hopes of being matched for a reunion. This was a free step for me to do with the State of Indiana, so I signed up right away with the help of Mary notarizing some documents. However, I wasn’t thinking right. I should have registered in the state where I was born, which was Ohio.

Unfortunately, mistakes like this are common. And most of the time state registries don’t bring about reunions. The Locator Club also told me about a nonprofit that offers a similar service. I signed up for this as well.

I learned one important thing NOT to do, and that is to use social media in a search. Like many people, I had seen the pictures that circulated on social media of people holding up signs requesting help in finding their birth family. The club advised me not to go this route, because unfortunately people are bombarded with misinformation most of the time that leads to a lot of heartache.

I also reached out on a forum on the site about the issue with my mother. Troy Dunn’s own mother responded to me.

I completely understand what you are going through, she wrote. Others have faced the same issue. But I want to encourage you to search anyway. While I hope you find something and be reunited with one or both of your birth parents, you may not, and then it will be a moot point.

Her words helped, so I pressed on.

The next thing I learned was to use pieces of non-identifying information to complete my own investigation. Troy listed many possibilities that could shed some light on a flip chart. And, for me, a light was indeed turned on in my mind.

Have you ever had a moment when something you wanted, so badly, didn’t come to fruition? Talk about spoiling the fruit of your hopes.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of disappointment, I will fear no hurt.

Have you ever wanted something so badly that when you didn’t get it you just dwelled on the disappointment for hours ... okay, days?

Self-doubt enters the room. That is a large elephant that no one can see but you. Am I right?

What could I have done differently? What changes would I make in the future? Would I even try again?

Those vicious voices say you aren’t good enough. Oh, how well I know those voices. They have haunted me since I was a little girl. Some days they are just really loud and hurtful. There is no duct taping their voices. Trust me, if I could, I would have done so, many years ago.

JANET HART LEONARD
From the Hart

I remember my daughter, Emily, trying out for Grinder cheerleader when she was in the fifth grade. She had that routine perfected so much that she could have done it in her sleep. On the day of the tryouts, she came down with severe laryngitis. It threw her off her game ... literally. The judges said it was a “No” from them. I’m not sure who was more upset, me or her. It was made even more bitter when her best friend, Angie, made the cheerleader squad.

My daughter has taught me well. Emily showed up and cheered, for the Grinder Football team as well as for the cheerleaders. She came alongside her best friend (now her sister-in-law) and congratulated her. She stayed in the game. She just had a different place from which she was cheering.

Life brings us disappointments. What we do with those disappointments is the key to how we live our life.

You didn’t get the job. You didn’t get the votes. You didn’t get the promotion. You didn’t get the deal. You didn’t get the listing. You didn’t get the acceptance letter.

The expectation is high and then you get let down. The higher the expectation, the greater the letdown. Disappointment hurts. The hurt stings your heart. Holding disappointment too long can bring about bitterness. The bitterness pill is never sweet. Don’t swallow it.

Disappointments are just heart injuries that heal with time ... sometimes, longer than we like.

Disappointments are challenges that spur you on or hold you back. The decision is yours.

This is where wisdom comes in. Disappointments may come to visit, but you don’t have to live with them.

Yesterday, I was in the valley of disappointment. Today? I am looking back, only for a moment. I have blessings to count and words to write. I also have people to cheer for!

One thing he’ll never flip-flop on: It’s still Deer Creek to him

It wasn’t until I parked the car in our garage following last night’s soul-stirring Santana concert did I realize I had driven home barefoot, unwittingly leaving my favorite flip-flops at the venue.

No, I hadn’t been drinking.

I don’t drink at concerts.

- I can’t afford the $22 mixed drinks.
- In 1964, I was delivered eight months into my gestation period. Due to my preemie status, I’m convinced a few dots failed to connect in the kidney unit; hence, I am cursed with the 1:3 rule – three trips to the bathroom per each bottle of beer consumed. At that rate, I’d miss most of the act I had paid to see.
- I prefer to arrive home afterwards still wearing everything I chose to wear to the show. (Apparently, this bullet point no longer applies since even sobriety doesn’t guarantee returning home with shoes on.)

My favorite flip-flops and I have attended a lot of concerts together, great concerts, many at the very venue, Deer Creek, where I had apparently deserted them.

SCOTT SAALMAN
Scaramouch

This morning, I announced that I was returning to Deer Creek before going to work.

“Just buy a new pair,” Brynne said.

“I’m not buying new flip-flops when I know exactly where I left the old flip-flops.”

Unable to sleep, I had retraced our steps from the emptying venue to our car. As usual, finding the car proved challenging. We could probably improve the post-concert car hunt process if we simply split up and searched in opposite directions ... but then we might lose each other. How horrible it would be to return home after the show sans wife – losing my flip-flops was bad enough.

Once we found our car – I swear the parking lot people moved it to an entirely different section during the show – we decided to watch the lot empty a bit before battling for position. Waiting, I kicked off the flip-flops, sat side-saddle in the driver’s seat, rested my bare feet in the grass, and peeled an orange, watching the peelings fall to the grass between my flip-flops.

“I’m sure somebody already found your flip-flops,” Brynne reasoned.

And again, she suggested, “Just buy new ones.”

“I’m pretty certain I will never forget my shoes at a concert. Mainly because I keep them on my feet.”

“The venue is only five minutes away. What’s the harm in trying?”

I have always joked that the real reason I proposed marriage to Brynne was because she lived only five minutes from Ruoff Music Center, or as we (and almost everyone else in Indiana) continue to call it, Deer Creek, even though it hasn’t officially been Deer Creek since 2001.

The Deer Creek name has had amazing staying power. Even the Doobie Brothers’ Patrick Simmons referenced the name this summer during their 50th Anniversary show with Michael McDonald, saying something to the effect of, “Didn’t this used to be Deer Creek?” much to the audible approval of the Deer Creek die-hards. The audience was as ecstatic as if “Black Water” had just been played.

Sometimes I see people at a Ruoff concert with an I STILL CALL IT DEER CREEK T-shirt. I wish I owned one. I’m unsure how the Ruoff people feel about the Deer Creek name still floating around. It has to be a bane of corporate branding. That I STILL CALL IT DEER CREEK T-shirts are allowed inside the venue tells me Ruoff must be pretty cool about it, though.

Here are reasons why I believe we cling to Deer Creek despite the venue having been renamed three times over:

- It’s a way to demonstrate affection for our fond live-music memories since the opening of the venue in 1989.

- It’s easy to remember. We of the Deer Creek Generation are fast approaching, have reached, or have surpassed middle-age, thus our memory tapes are thinning in the short-term recollection department while, weirdly, our long-term memories remain fairly secure. Shut up. There’s no way the venue was ever called Verizon Wireless Music Center.
- Seen any I STILL CALL IT KLIPSCH T-shirts lately? Enough said.
- Ruoff is difficult to say, without linguistic guidance. No matter how many times I try to say it, I put an “h” between the vowels: “Ruhoff.”

A time will come, I guess, when Deer Creek – the name – will disappear. The Deer Creek Generation is approaching an irreversible endangered phase (next stop, extinction – ALL ABOARD!). Think about it, when was the last time you heard a concert old timer shout out the annoying “Free Bird” request at non-Lynyrd Skynyrd shows? Those guys have already met their expiration date.

I assume younger generations currently refer to Ruoff as Ruoff, despite their parents or grandparents calling it Deer Creek. Decades from now, they might fondly refer to the venue as Ruoff and wear their I STILL CALL IT RUOFF T-shirts even though by then it might have undergone more name changes.

For now, though, it’s officially Ruoff, but I still call it Deer Creek.

By the way, I found my flip-flops in the grass between Sections 2 and 3. I knew they were mine because of the orange peels. Plus, they fit just right when I put them on. I hope to wear them to many more Deer Creek shows ... but first things first ... where the hell is my car?

Fun in Sheridan begins at the Historical Society Museum

By STEVE MARTIN
Sheridan Historical Society

They say a picture is worth a thousand words, and this one is no exception.

Pictured at right is Marilyn Nicholson Godby (Sheridan Class of 1966) and her 10-year-old granddaughter Samantha DeBoer. They live in suburban Omaha, Neb., now and are back in Marilyn's hometown this summer vacation to visit family and old friends. Folks familiar with Sheridan will certainly recognize the Nicholson and Godby family names.

They stopped by the museum to peek around, and Marilyn immediately recognized Sandy, the old Ben Franklin Store pony she rode when she was a youngster growing up here. Sandy was in front of the old Ben Franklin Store on Main Street for years and years. The Sheridan Historical Society acquired Sandy and restored her to a working relic. Samantha just had to take a ride like Grandma did when she was 10 years old. Well, as you can imagine, that made Grandma Marilyn happy and proud to no end.

The Sheridan Historical Society's Stephenson Cultural Heritage Center, a.k.a. the Museum, is located at 315 S. Main St. in beautiful uptown Sheridan. It is open on Tuesday and Friday afternoons from 1 to 4 p.m., and through Labor Day weekend on Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Grandmother Marilyn Nicholson Godby smiles as her granddaughter Samantha DeBoer rides Sandy at the Sheridan Museum. Sandy was an icon in front of Ben Franklin Store on Main Street, and Grandma Marilyn has fond memories of riding Sandy when she was 10 years old, too.

The Museum is also open on Main Street First Fridays from 5 to 9 p.m. The Museum is located at the site of the old Hippodrome Theatre. That is why the theatre-like façade was chosen for the new location, a unique feature for the “fresh look” of Sheridan's Main Street.

If you have not been to the museum in a long time, if you are new in town, or if you are just visiting, you need to stop by and have a look-see. The docents on duty are a bunch of friendly old folks, full of old folk's jokes, and we love kids. If you have roots here, we probably already know who you are and can share a story or two about your family. And if you don't have roots here, we will try to change that.

We hope you will drop by the museum and see us. Sheridan has quite a story to tell, from the arrival of George Boxley, through our boom times and bad, to the glory of impressive basketball and football dynasties, to the resilience of Sheridan's people, and to the challenges yet ahead of us.

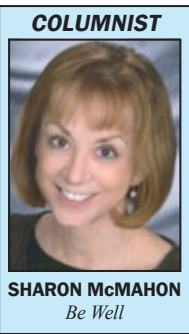

Your weight isn't everything

Readers: I received a lot of comments when this column ran previously a couple of years ago and I believe it is important to remind everyone, especially females, that you can be stylish and attractive regardless of your weight – show pride in your appearance and you will feel proud and confident!

“It's not about what size you wear; it's about how you wear your size.” – Unknown

I sure wish that I could insert “Sharon McMahon” in the “Unknown” line of this quote, but alas, I cannot do so, although I firmly believe this quote to be true. And this week I will endeavor to tackle a “weighty” issue without going down any political avenues – difficult to do given the interest posed by our current candidates and the press. I will admit that the candidates' recently “weighing in” has brought this topic to mind and I do feel that it is important to address.

Currently over 8 million people, primarily women, in the USA suffer from eating disorders, including anorexia, bulimia, and binge eating. Fifteen percent of women 17 to 24 suffer from eating disorders, 40 percent of female college students suffer from eating disorders, and 91 percent of female college students attempt to control their weight through strict dieting measures.¹

Whether you are male or female, concerned about your own weight or not, I venture to guess that you all have a family member, friend, co-worker, neighbor, or someone within your sphere of influence who has (or believe that they have) an issue with weight. Obesity is a critical health issue, affecting our hearts, blood pressure, susceptibility to diabetes and overall longevity; there is no doubt about that. However, most of us are aware that there is a preponderance of attention to the subject of a woman's weight and her acceptance in society. While obesity is certainly a health issue which should be addressed by the individual and her physician, no woman should feel intimidated by not being a size² or ready to walk the runway.

In working with women of different ages, weights, and concerns relating to both appearance and health, I find that those primarily concerned about the health aspects usually are more successful at losing weight and maintaining it.

Keep in mind that a healthy weight is not necessarily the same as a body size considered “appropriate” by many in industries related to physical appearance, i.e., beauty pageants, modeling, acting, etc. Frankly, expectation relating to a woman's size is apparent in almost every industry and profession. A person who does make a practice of eating nutritional foods, getting aerobic exercise via walking, dancing, etc., who stretches for flexibility and strength trains to tone muscles and follows these practices regularly will maintain a healthy and normal weight in almost every case. There are some exceptions to this that would be identified through a licensed health practitioner and will not be addressed in this particular column. Additionally, anyone suffering from eating disorders will wish to receive treatment designated by their health professional.²

I would like to take this opportunity to remind ALL the women and girls reading this that you have so much control over your appearance by your posture, your choices in apparel, your quest to be healthy, and most of all your confidence! I will suggest that anyone can be stylish and attractive no matter your weight or size. It is up to you to show the “world” that you will be the best YOU regardless of your clothing size. Take care of yourself, get healthy, and enjoy life on your terms!

²Eating disorder complications can be serious, contact your physician for a complete diagnosis.

Are you thinking about selling your home? Be sure to ask these questions

If you're thinking of selling your house, you probably have a lot of questions that need answers. In fact, asking the right questions is key to selling your home successfully and for the best price.

Here are some of the most important questions to ask:

- How much is our house likely to sell for on today's market? What should the listing price be? What are the selling costs?
- How long will it take to sell? What happens if our house takes longer than expected to sell?
- How do we prepare our house for the sale? Will we need to make any major improvements? Will we need to hire a contractor?

- What's “home staging”? Will we need to hire a professional stager? Can we do some of that staging work ourselves?
- What happens when we get an offer? What if the offer price is lower than we can accept? How does the negotiation process work?
- What happens after an offer is accepted? What happens on closing day?
- How do we find a new home while selling our current one?
- Besides a good real estate agent, what other professionals do we need? How do we find them?
- What can we do to make the selling process easier and less stressful?

Once you have answers to these questions, you'll find you'll be able to go into the selling process with a lot more confidence.

So, if you're thinking of selling this year, get the answers you need. Then, get the process started!

Time to prepare your home

When a buyer views your home for sale, they want to visualize themselves living there. They want to imagine cooking in the kitchen, relaxing in the living room, and enjoying get-togethers with family and friends.

However, when they see a baseball trophy on the mantle with your name on it, that visualization crumbles. That's why it's smart to depersonalize your home as much as possible when selling.

You don't have to go too far. Simply do what you can to remove items that scream “We live here!” Consider stowing items such as:

- Trophies, diplomas, certificates and anything else with a name prominently displayed on it.
- Personal and family pictures.
- Mementos, knickknacks and other items of a personal nature.
- Notes, pictures, etc. on a fridge door or bulletin board.

Depersonalizing is a proven staging strategy that can help sell your home faster and for a better price. Depending on the number of personal items you have, you may be able to display them between viewings.

Our old house

There are several old houses in the county.

The R. L. Wilson house is located in the historic district of Noblesville, just south of the square, at 293 S. 8th St. It was constructed circa 1900. Some of the homes on South 10th Street were constructed around that same time.

9th Street was originally known as Catherine Street and the area is known as the South 9th Street Historic District. It is roughly bounded by Maple, Division, 10th, and the west side of 9th Street, with 39 contributing buildings. 197 S. 9th St. was built in 1870. 307 S. 9th was built in 1899. 395 S. 9th was built in 1870. 105 S. 10th St. was built 1864 in the Greek revival style with a low pitch gable roof. 195 S. 10th was built in 1875 and is a two-story Italianate T plan house. A newspaper article reports that it was painted by James Whitcomb Riley before he was famous as a poet.

My wife and I own a home that was built in 1858 according to her family history and in 1860 according to the taxing authorities. A family great-great-grandfather, Daniel Waltz, was reportedly one of the founders of the town of Arcadia. Early settlers began to move in that area circa 1833. On December 12, 1836, John and Harriet Schaefer purchased 160 acres of land adjacent to the plot owned by Daniel and Matilda Waltz, which was later to become the heart of downtown Arcadia. Daniel's son, not wanting to live in the big city, moved out to the edge of town and built the house where our family still lives.

One Thanksgiving, great-grandpa John Chenoweth remarked to my son Thomas that he had had Thanksgiving dinner in the same room with his great-grandfather. 164 years in the same house. I married into a very stable family. Pastor Tim Brock once told me that he believed he married up. However, he said he was sure that I married outside of my species.

I found a large potato board in the cellar when we took possession. It was native cherry approximately 30 feet long, three feet wide and almost three inches thick. I took it to craftsman Dave Pickett who made a china cabinet for my wife.

The home has nothing new or valuable from a monetary standpoint; just family history and memories. The early part of the house had supporting logs that were only hued on top. The bark is still visible on the bottom. Later supporting beams were squared on all four sides with the ax marks clearly visible. A rock wall basement and large cisterns were features when we acquired the property.

Conner Prairie has the Conner house built circa 1823. When we took the children there, they asked what was so special about that house. It looked just like ours! Sugar glass windows. Faux marble wainscoting. No doorknobs, just thumb latches. Vegetable cellar. Potato board. Hand-dug well. Horse carriage with cinders floor. Barn with rock floor. Large garden. Indeed, the two homes do look alike.

With all the new construction and development in Hamilton County, it is certainly special to live in a home with such a rich history.

Candidates slow to come forward for school boards

With less than three weeks left in the filing period for school board candidates, relatively few have stepped forward to declare their intentions to run. This is surprising because earlier this year there was considerable interest expressed by members of the public in the curriculum and financial priorities in some of Hamilton County's six public school districts.

A total of 18 seats on non-partisan school boards are up for election Nov. 8. School boards determine spending for instruction, facilities and transportation for about 65,000 students in the county. In most local communities the school budget is the largest of any unit of government.

Most recent to file were Melba Kiser and Chuck Haberman II, both for at-large Noblesville seats, and earlier last week, Doug Ozolins in Hamilton Heights' White River district and Julie Chambers in South-eastern's District 4.

As of last Friday afternoon, there were only 15 candidates officially filed with the county elections office setting up four contests. And, no candidates have yet filed for six seats: three at Sheridan, three at Westfield and one at Carmel.

Qualifications for school board are basic: candidates must be a resident of the school district and a qualified voter in the district. Election officials predicted there will be more activity in the last few days prior to the filing deadline at noon Aug. 26.

Discovering the kindness of strangers . . .

No flower ignites an excitement in me quite like my daylilies; they are the cherished gems in my garden, offering a fresh abundance of color with the dawn of each day.

One of my favorite things about daylilies is that they are an excellent source of cover and a place for our wildlife to raise young, which are two of the main pillars in having a certified wildlife habitat. They are also a wonderful nectar source for pollinators. My little girl loves waking up each morning to see which daylily has bloomed; finding the fresh blooms is as exciting for her as an egg hunt on Easter morning.

I am not talking about the daylilies that are in the parking lot of every dentist's office or in the median of every busy intersection. The daylilies I have acquired have been moved from various houses, dating back to the home I grew up in as a little girl. They are not only unique; they are beautiful and meaningful to me. We moved to our new home about a year ago, and I knew I had to reconcile that while I could take many of them with me, it simply was not possible to take all of them.

I have many memories tied to my daylilies, but my favorite was from when we were first married driving down the road and saw a wheelbarrow filled with bright orange ditch lilies with an invitation for anyone to take them. Someone was having landscaping done and they decided to share them with any passerby. I told my husband to turn the car around and that we were taking the lilies to give them a new home. That flowerbed turned out to be a focal point of our old yard. How beautiful is it to share your flowers with complete strangers, asking for nothing in return?

We moved to Hamilton County about a year ago, and recently, I heard that the buyers of our old home had decided to move. I immediately started having a panging feeling wondering if maybe, just maybe, I could reach out to them and see if it would be possible to go back and get more of my daylilies. I felt like this was one of those now or never moments. My nervous inquiry was met with a gracious response, telling me the lilies are still mine and to come and get them.

My husband and I returned as visitors to our once home with a couple of shovels, ready to dig up old memories. The buyers seemed to understand how important they were to me, even though we were strangers. They told me to take whatever we wanted and sat there while my husband and I were digging, chatting with our little girl, and even got a blanket for our son to lay on in the grass. This moment brought me to tears; I was overcome by the kindness of these strangers. They wanted absolutely nothing in return. My own flowers were being shared with me in this beautiful full-circle moment that left me feeling content, knowing there is a lot more good in this world than the news cares to share with us.

We pulled away from our first home in two cars loaded to the brim with boxes and bags of my daylilies, knowing it was probably the last time we would ever be in that home. I was reunited with a piece of my heart that I did not realize how broken it was, until I had the chance to go back and get them. I said to my husband what a lovely final moment to share in a place that we loved and spent so many wonderful years. They will never know how they gave me back my old friends to bring to my new home.

A few days ago, my husband and I were driving down the road when I noticed a pile of flowers and a sign that read, "Free Black Eyed Susan's." Once again, I told my husband to turn the car around because we were going to give them a new home. Perhaps these Black-Eyed Susan's will become another focal point in our new yard, and all because of the kindness and generosity of strangers.

Share beauty with others and ask for nothing in return. Nature is affording us the chance to bestow kindness to others. How will you pay it forward?
