

Teaming up for fire safety

Reducing the mental load at home: housecleaning

The REPORTER

The Noblesville Fire Department (NFD) is teaming up with State Farm and the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) to promote this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign, "Cooking Safety Starts with YOU. Pay attention to fire prevention."

This year's campaign, which runs Oct. 8 to 14, works to educate families about simple but important steps they can take to keep themselves and others safe.

NFD and local State Farm Agent Cory Shook encourage all residents to cook with caution. In support of those efforts, Agent Edge recently donated a Fire Prevention Week kit to the fire department, which includes home fire safety and prevention activities and information for children and adults.

"State Farm encourages homeowners to make fire prevention an important part of their overall home safety plan," Shook said. "Fire Prevention Week reminds that cooking with caution should be at the top of the list. This also is a good time to check your smoke alarms to ensure they are functioning." NFD shared the following cooking safety tips through this year's Fire Prevention Week campaign:

- Turn pot handles toward the back of the stove to prevent spills and burns.
- Always keep a lid nearby when cooking on the stove. If a

We're continuing to discuss how to lighten our mental loads around housecleaning. Of all the articles I've read on this subject, I was impressed to find one written by a man who truly "gets it!" Nick Douglas wrote an article in May 2017 on lifehacker.com titled "How to Share the 'Mental Load' of Chores with Your Partner."

Douglas wrote that among straight couples, even when men do equal work carrying out household chores, women still disproportionately bear the mental load of keeping track of those chores. This creates a kind of continuous partial attention that takes up energy and raises stress. It also forms an invisible hierarchy where men feel like employees running afoul of the boss.

Boom! Mr. Douglas, you nailed it. He goes on to say that men often fail to appreciate or share this invisible management job. "If you can help carry the load,

State Rep. Donna Schaibley announces plan to retire after nearly decade of public service

The REPORTER

State Rep. Donna Schaibley (R-Carmel) announced on Thursday her plans to retire next year.

Having served since 2014 in the Indiana General Assembly, Schaibley said she will complete her current term and not seek re-election in 2024.

Schaibley represents House District 24, which includes portions of Boone and Hamilton counties, and currently serves as vice chair of the House Public Health Committee.

"My service in the General Assembly has truly been a privilege, and I want to thank my constituents for giving me the opportunity to represent them," Schaibley said. "During my time in the legislature, we've made strong progress in lowering the cost of health care for employers and patients, as well as infusing much-needed transparency and accountability in the health care marketplace. I look forward to continuing to serve the people of House District 24 through the end of my term."

Schaibley was responsible for several key pieces of legislation to drive down the costs of health care for Hoosiers. This year she authored House Enrolled Act 1004, which lowers patient and employer health care costs by creating greater price transparency and by providing oversight of Indiana's largest hospital systems through the Health Care Cost Oversight Task Force. The law also curbs billing practices that resulted in higher hospital prices being charged for non-hospital-based services.

"Donna is an incredibly valuable member of our House team and she's taken on tough issues, particularly those focused on reducing health care costs for all Hoosiers," said House Speaker Todd Huston (R-Fishers). "She leads with compassion and always puts the needs of her constituents and local communities first, and we will miss her leadership at the Statehouse. I look forward to serving with her over the next year as she completes her term."

In 2020, Schaibley authored legislation creating the All Payer Claims Database, which will be you can relieve your partner’s stress and feel less like an underling,” he writes.

Douglas goes on to share tips on how to do just that.

The first thing a partner can do is anticipate needs. “Don’t just do the laundry,” Douglas says, “Monitor the hamper and take the initiative to run a load. Examine when your tasks usually need to be done, and plan ahead for them.”

The second step is to write things down. Nowadays you don’t even need a pen and paper for this. Many people have smart phones where they can just set numerous reminders and they are off and running!

The third step is to automate things.

“Turn your phone into your manager and eliminate the mental load altogether. Add alarms to those calendar events. Set location-based notifications that remind you, when you’re passing the drugstore, to stop in. Move regular shopping trips onto Amazon Subscribe & Save,” advises Douglas.

He also says that you need to learn the skills for what you don’t do so you can serve as a backup when your partner is ill or traveling. For example, if you don’t typically do laundry, have your partner show you the basics such as sorting colors, different washer and dryer cycles and their purposes, etc.

Speaking of cleaning clothes, I haven’t been to the dry cleaners in years thanks to those wonderful kits for the dryer! I have used both Dryel and Woolite and have had success with both for clothes I used to have to take to the dry cleaner. These kits save me time and are a relief for my mental load.

Douglas suggests holding family meetings on Sundays to keep everyone apprised of what responsibilities each person has for the coming week and to discuss potentially swapping tasks if needed. And speaking of family, he dedicates a whole paragraph to putting kids to work, saying you can hand off some of the mental load by teaching them to self-manage.

He goes on to share that Lifehacker writer Beth Skwarecki asks her kids to “be the boss of cleaning the table,” telling her what to pick up while she does all the work. “They love their little power trip, but I love that they’re actually paying attention to what the mess is and how to clean it.” This management-only outsourcing even helps kids learn how to cook before they’re old enough to do dangerous tasks themselves.

All these techniques are especially important when major life changes hit such as an illness or injury, a new job, or having a child. “The more flexible you are with your partner, and the more chores you both feel comfortable swapping, the more you can handle in a crisis,” Douglas concludes.

If I ever meet this man, I’m going to give him a huge round of applause.

You can also check out the Bicentennial Traveling Exhibit during the event.

Fourteen incredible local artists will be on display along with historic copies of works provided by county historian David Heighway. The artists are Kathy Bowen, Regina Bunting, John Dierdorf, Shelley Feeney, Karen Fehr, Alexa Litchfield, Sue Payne, Joanne Roeder, Mark Rouse, Michael Rouse, Randy Swaim, Walt Thacker, Dave Voelpel, and Philip Worrall. Many of pieces on exhibit will be for sale.

The exhibit details the history of Fishers along with life in small town Indiana.

“We’re proud to partner with The Fishers Historical Society for this exhibit,”

FAC Executive Director Les Reinhardt said. “This partnership is special to us as historical society board member, Mark Rouse, is a Fishers Artist and is our guest curator for the exhibit. Mark has a passion for history along with a great creative eye and has done an excellent job of bringing these artists together to showcase the beauty and history of Fishers. We’re also thankful to the Hamilton County Bicentennial Commission for sponsoring this reception and all of the fantastic celebrations in Hamilton County this year.”

operational in early 2024. It will provide a website that can be used by consumers to compare health care prices and quality in order to make more informed decisions. She also sponsored legislation requiring health care providers to give a “good faith estimate” of the costs of care prior to treatment if requested and streamlining the prior authorization process.

In 2019, Schaibley authored legislation strengthening Indiana’s Jake Laird red flag law by closing a loophole that allowed dangerous individuals to purchase a firearm after having their current weapon seized. She said her addition to the law made communities safer by preventing people adjudicated to be dangerous from purchasing firearms while ensuring such individuals are accorded due process rights.

Schaibley also authored and sponsored several pieces of legislation protecting rape victims by expanding the legal definition of rape, strengthening protective orders for victims of domestic abuse and other violence, and establishing a sexual assault victims bill of rights.

Throughout her tenure in the House, Schaibley authored and sponsored numerous other pieces of legislation that have improved the lives of Hoosiers, including laws permitting families of children with disabilities to establish tax exempt ABLE savings accounts that can be used for maintaining health and quality of life expenses, and legislation expanding programs such as the Youth Assistance Program that help at-risk youth.

Schaibley was born and raised in Floyds Knobs, Ind., and is a graduate of Purdue University. She and her husband, John, live in Carmel and have two adult children and three grandchildren.

HAMILTON COUNTY
PARKS & RECREATION DEPT.

Very often lately when friends ask me how I'm doing, I tell them, "Just ridin' the Geezer Train." Reactions vary from laughs to mildly sorrowful 'awws' to being startled and not saying anything. Old folks can do that – startle people with something they say without intending ever to do so.

The fact is it is a fairly true statement. The run up to becoming 75 on Oct. 9 was very much a ride through various stations of endings, changes, happenings, enlightenments, reassessments, and nonsense.

It occurs to me that 75 years is a LONG TIME, 55 years of which have been as an adult with all the delights and struggles which that lengthy stage brings. Now it is time to be a certified 'old man' (see: geezer) and so to celebrate this lofty plateau I thought I'd reflect on just what that means to me.

Primarily, becoming 75 means I am totally lucky to still be walking the face of the earth – or at least the face of Indianapolis; many have not had the good fortune to be here at this age. It's a wonderful gift. One learns along the way that health is all important. That doesn't mean I haven't had problems to endure – but nothing has put me down, yet, and I am happy to be able to say that my mind still operates at an acceptable level and my body is very mostly okay.

Part of the aging process is change, of course – and change, of course. I have voluntarily left behind the pleasure of creating theatre moments, as a director and as a performer. This is a deeper loss than even I expected, as it is not just the loss of the creativity process, it is more so the loss of contact with the wonderful community of people who are a part of theatre arts in this area. People are the essence of what theatre gives to its practitioners. Losing that has left a rather large chasm. The Geezer Train doesn't stop at that station any more. Luckily, I have great memories of my 40-plus years of being involved in theatre. And many pictures to jog those memories.

COLUMNIST
KEN KLINGEMEIER

The loss of contact with so many friends makes for a lonelier existence. Part of aging can be isolation. But I'm not really alone – my everyday companion is my wonderful wife, Donna (Mrs. K to my frequent readers). She is a perfect partner, a light in my life, sharing these late years with me. Aging together is another bonus I am grateful for. It wouldn't be the same without her company and wisdom and aid. With Donna by my side, my troubles are few.

As we age, we need to find new activities to take the place of the old ones we leave behind. To replace the creative process of stage-work, I have tried writing. Since I started my blog 12 or 13 years ago, I have learned where most of the keys are on my laptop keyboard, though hitting the correct ones has started to be a problem.

After a few short bursts of production, with a memoir and a story or two, I wrote a novella entitled Soul Stories, setting the tale in the afterlife, thereby making any particulars about the subject whatever I wanted them to be. It was an enjoyable endeavor – surprisingly very much akin to improvisation as the characters unspooled the story. The manuscript sits now on a thumb-drive, ready to be edited further. I attempted tempting a few publishers with my wares, but not surprisingly I was met with some form rejections. I may try again. (I also have a few ideas for a play I'd like to write.)

Aging has kept me from visiting family in other cities. Since the COVID era and with some intense back and leg problems we both have been going through, Donna and I have ceased traveling. Air travel could be a nightmare with long airport walks, long lines, tight seating and all the other trials of flying. I used to love taking flights, but the airlines have made it very difficult to enjoy them now.

Car travel remains a possibility, but with family in Buffalo (nine hours away), Augusta (12 hours), Houston (18 hours), and Las Vegas (days and days) road trips are either impractical or a challenge. We hope to make some visits soon, but I know traveling will not be what it once was – and the Geezer Train doesn't go there, unfortunately.

One very real aspect of getting older is the loss of family and friends at a quickened pace as they themselves age. I believe that is the saddest part. It seems we are – all of us – running out of time.

Also of note is a sharp awareness of my own mortality. It has always lurked in the corner, but with far more years behind me than ahead of me, I have a more acute realization that I am not always going to be here. In fact, it may be sooner than later ... who knows? To put things in perspective, I started thinking of my turning 75 as entering the fourth quarter of my game – 25 years to the quarter. Overtime is possible but rare. I have no idea what my over/under is.

As far as I can recall, loss of memory is one of those issues that is always related to getting older – and my powers of recall have certainly been affected. I often walk into a room forgetting what my reason was for going there. (The bathroom is an exception.) Also, I may be reading or surfing online sometimes and come across a topic I wish to explore further and by the time I open a new browser tab moments later and settle into the search bar, I have completely lost any idea of what I hoped to study. I think the Geezer Train somehow negates the Train of Thought.

Most political interest has left me, and it's probably a good thing. As crazy and mendacious as it all is now, I cannot fathom taking either side very seriously. As I age, I have become aware that not much that they ever do in Washington (or in the Statehouse) ripples out to affect me directly anyway, so why lose sleep over it?

Finally, I happily note that reaching the age of 75 puts me on track for even more birthdays – more new changes, more valuable time to spend with my wife and family, more forgetfulness, more miles on the Geezer Train. Here's to longevity – which seems to be quite the in-fashion thing these days of medical miracles and discoveries.

So – all aboard and onward ... to 80 please!

Hamilton Southeastern Schools appoints Ryan Taylor as Executive Director of Staff and Student Services

The REPORTER

Hamilton Southeastern Schools has announced Ryan Taylor as the new Executive Director of Staff and Student Services. Taylor's appointment was officially approved during the Board of School Trustees' regular meeting on Wednesday evening, marking an addition to the school district's leadership team.

With a distinguished career spanning education and school safety, Taylor brings a wealth of experience. Notably, he served as Vice President at Safe School Solutions, a division of Safe Hiring Solutions, where he contributed to the areas of sales, marketing, and product development.

Nevertheless, Taylor's most relevant experience comes from his extensive tenure within Hamilton Southeastern Schools. He began his educational journey as a classroom teacher in 2002, and over the years, he transitioned into school leadership. In 2018, he took on the role of Director of Staff and Student Services.

Upon his appointment, Taylor expressed his enthusiasm.

"I am very excited to be returning to the school community I have called 'home' for more than two decades, and I look forward to continuing to serve our students and staff," Taylor said.

Taylor earned his Bachelor of Science in Mathematics and later achieved a Master of Arts in Educational Leadership from Ball

State University.

"We are confident that Ryan Taylor's extensive experience and dedication to the safety and well-being of both staff and students at HSE will contribute significantly to the continued success of the school district," Interim Superintendent Dr. Matt Kegley said.

The role of Staff and Student Services has been vacant since late August when Assistant Superintendent Kim Lippe accepted a principalship at a neighboring school district. Taylor's first day on the job will be Friday, Oct. 13.

Friends of Prevail, Hard to believe, but I have been in my role as Executive Director for almost six months. My message remains the same as when I first started, our mission being front and center! Prevail is here to serve those in need. The doors are open to empower those on their journey to hope, healing, and self-sufficiency. I am so incredibly proud of the work on behalf of those we serve at Prevail. I am grateful for the opportunity to serve this organization, the mission, and the countless individuals we serve each day.

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month. The stats are real: one in three women and one in seven men will experience domestic violence. Most of us know someone – a neighbor, a friend, or a loved one – who has been impacted by abuse or domestic violence. I ask that you break the silence! Violence will thrive when you stay silent!

Prevail is here to support victims and survivors and their children by raising awareness of this issue and creating environments that do not tolerate domestic violence. It is time to empower victims of abuse and domestic violence, and I ask for your commitment to our community to end domestic violence.

I would like to share a few facts with you regarding Prevail and domestic violence:

- Prevail served over 3,100 clients last year, with 1,675 being primary victims of domestic violence.
- Prevail served 218 children under the age of 18 because of domestic violence.
- Prevail accompanied victims of domestic violence to court more than 400 times.
- There were 4,251 calls to the Prevail 24/7 crisis line.
- Over 1,179 safety plans were created.

I ask that you make a commitment to help end domestic violence, think about the collective impact you can have on those served by Prevail. This can be done through time, talent, and treasure. Get involved in one of many ways Prevail is highlighting Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

- Participate in one of our partner events during October.
- Like and share our social media posts to help spread the word.
- Talk to family members and friends about healthy relationships.
- Participate in Purple Thursday on Oct. 19 by wearing purple, posting a photo on social media, and tagging Prevail.
- Consider a donation to Prevail, Inc.

I want to thank you for being a champion and friend to Prevail! At the end of the day, this is about the incredible mission and the work of Prevail. I appreciate you and ask that you GO Purple for Prevail for Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

Why you need a cybersecurity awareness routine in digital age

Have you ever stopped to count how many devices you have connected to your home internet?

A recent survey of our Comcast customers found they have an average of 27 connected devices in their household – ranging from laptops, mobile phones, televisions, smart appliances, security cameras, baby monitors and even cars. This number has grown astronomically over the years, giving hackers more places to attack.

Cybersecurity Awareness Month, observed annually in October, serves as a reminder of the critical importance of staying vigilant in the digital age. Regardless of the tools and resources available to you, here are four essential tips to enhance your cybersecurity

GUEST COLUMNIST

ty awareness and protect yourself and your digital assets:

1. Create strong passwords

Create strong, unique passwords for each online account. Use a combination of upper- and lower-case letters, numbers, and symbols. Consider using a reputable password manager to help you securely keep track of your passwords.

2. Enable Multifactor Authentication (MFA)

Make sure multifactor authentication is enabled on all your online accounts that offer it, especially email, social media, and financial accounts. This will make you significantly less likely to get hacked.

3. Recognize & report phishing

Phishing emails, texts, and calls are the primary ways data gets compromised. Be cautious if you receive unsolicited communication asking for personal information and avoid sharing sensitive information over the phone or email unless necessary. Don’t click on links or open attachments sent from unknown sources.

4. Update software

Regularly update your operating system, applications, and antivirus software. Cybercriminals often exploit vulnerabilities in outdated software to gain access to your devices and data.

Does your internet provider offer security?

Contact your internet provider or visit the company’s website to research the security services and features they offer to their customers. If your internet provider supplies you with a router, it may come with built-in security features.

For example, in 2019, Comcast launched Xfinity xFi Advanced Security, a service that monitors, blocks, and informs our customers of online threats to any of the devices that are connected to their home network. xFi Advanced Security service provides a protective shield for connected home, and in 2022, it blocked more than 10 billion threats for our customers.

By incorporating these practices into your household’s daily routines, you can create a safer and more secure digital environment for your family. Cybersecurity should be a shared responsibility, and by making it a common practice you help protect not only your home but also your digital community at large.

Jeff Marston serves as the Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Comcast in Indiana.

AG Todd Rokita provides tips for small businesses to protect themselves against rising cyber threats

The REPORTER

During Cybersecurity Awareness Month, Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita is alerting small businesses to rising cyber threats and providing tips for them to protect themselves and their customers.

“Cybercriminals view small businesses as easy targets and look for any weaknesses they may have in their security systems,” AG Rokita said. “It’s critical for small business owners to have safeguards in place to protect their data and customers’ personal information.”

Making sure any Hoosier business has the appropriate cybersecurity controls has become a necessary step in today’s economy. The average cost incurred by a business from a data breach is now more than $4 million, and approximately 40 percent of small businesses worldwide have reported losing essential data due to cyberattacks.

According to the U.S. National Cyber Security Alliance, 60 percent of small businesses that suffer a cyberattack go out of business in less than a year.

To keep your small business and consumers protected, AG Rokita encourages Hoosiers to follow these tips:

- Train employees in security principles. Establish basic security practices and policies for employees, such as requiring strong passwords.

- Passwords and authentication. Require employees to use unique passwords and change passwords regularly. Consider implementing multi-factor authentication that requires additional information beyond a password to gain entry.

- Protect information, computers, and networks from cyberattacks. Having the latest security software, web browser, and operating system are the best defenses against viruses, malware, and other online threats.

- Provide firewall security for your Internet connection. A firewall is a set of related programs that prevent outsiders from accessing data on a private network.

- Make backup copies of important business data and information. Regularly backup the data on all computers.

- Secure your Wi-Fi networks. If you have a Wi-Fi network for your workplace, make sure it is secure, encrypted, and hidden.

- Employ best practices on payment cards. Work with banks or processors to ensure the most trusted and validated tools and anti-fraud services are being used.

The Attorney General’s Office is responsible for enforcing the Disclosure of Security Breach law to better protect Hoosiers from identity theft. If a business has a breach, they are required to inform their customers that their personal information is in jeopardy.

If you believe you are a victim of a security breach, please fill out this form here and email it to Data-Breach@atg.in.gov.

Empowering our community: the HSE referendum discussion

Dear Editor:

In our ever-evolving society, informed decisions are crucial to our democracy. As a community, we bear the responsibility of staying informed about issues affecting our lives, families, and future, such as the Hamilton Southeastern (HSE) referendum.

An event co-hosted by Fishers One and Advance HSE was held on Oct. 9. Our community united for an event centering around education and transparency. Interim Superintendent Matt Kegley and CFO Katy Dowling provided an informative presentation on the HSE referendum, followed by an interactive Q&A session. This event wasn't just about information; it was a platform for open dialogue.

Educating our community about the HSE referendum is paramount.

Our educators shape our children's future, and supporting initiatives like this referendum can enhance resources and opportunities for both teachers and students.

Transparency is crucial. We must demand transparency from our school district regarding fund management and resource allocation.

Our long-term goal should be a sustainable educational system, reducing reliance on referendums. Achieving this requires informed decision-making and community participation.

Questions raised at the event demonstrated our community's commitment to education. It's through these discussions that we move forward together.

This event embodies Fishers One's mission: educating the community and promoting the well-being of our schools, teachers, and students. It's our collective responsibility to continue this dialogue, seek answers, and advocate for a brighter educational future.

In conclusion, an informed community is an empowered one. By staying engaged, asking questions, and demanding transparency, we can shape our schools' future and ensure a brighter tomorrow for our children.

Visit the Advance HSE PAC's website for more on the Nov. 7 referendum vote. Remember, the HSE referendum isn't just about today; it's about the legacy we leave for generations to come.

Carmel voter impressed with Sara Draper's balance as candidate

Dear Editor:

In October 2015, a bullet, shot from a neighboring home in the Arts District of Carmel, ripped through our kitchen wall, nearly missing my children. Since then, it's been even more critical to my family and me that our representatives emulate and exemplify leadership.

As a former elected official, one of the many reasons I am so impressed with Sara Draper, the only woman running for an at-large seat in Carmel this year, is that she is willing to do the hard work it takes to represent her constituents well. After following her campaign, I discovered that in addition to the exhaustive schedule a candidate for public office must keep, she also graduated from the Carmel Citizen Police Academy; this means she worked for three months to understand better the needs of our community and those who serve and protect us.

Sara received the "Gun Sense Distinction" from Moms Demand Action while being the first Democrat in Carmel's history to have gotten the official endorsement from the Carmel Fraternal Order of Police, Lodge 185. Her balance as a candidate and her desire to keep our city safe will benefit everyone.

When elected, I am confident she will do everything she can to prioritize public safety. Sara's support for local law enforcement and citizen engagement will significantly benefit the work of Carmel City Council. This is why I am voting for Sara Draper for Carmel City Council at Large, on Nov. 7.

United Way of Central Indiana names two vice presidents

Both leaders begin their new roles this month

The REPORTER

Shannon Jenkins will serve as United Way's vice president of impact. She has worked for the organization for 10 years and came to the nonprofit with more than a decade of experience in early education. Jenkins has held numerous roles, including managing ReadUP, leading United Way's education initiatives and Family Opportunity strategy, and, most recently, serving as the impact senior director.

Stephanie Fritz has been named United Way's vice president of strategic intelligence and information. She has been with the nonprofit for six years and brought with her eight years of experience in research and data analysis in higher education. life experiences affect their relationships at work.

The event will take place at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 31, at the Tarkington at the Center for the Performing Arts, 3 Carter Green, Carmel. Free tickets can be reserved at TheCenterPresents.org or (317) 843-3800.

Misunderstandings between generations are not a new problem, says Boccardo, who previously has partnered with organizations such as Roche, Indiana Farm Bureau Insurance, Carpenter Realtors and the Indiana Supreme Court. Older employees often think their younger colleagues are less competent, more entitled, or harder to work with in the office. Younger employees often think their older colleagues are out of touch with technology and societal trends.

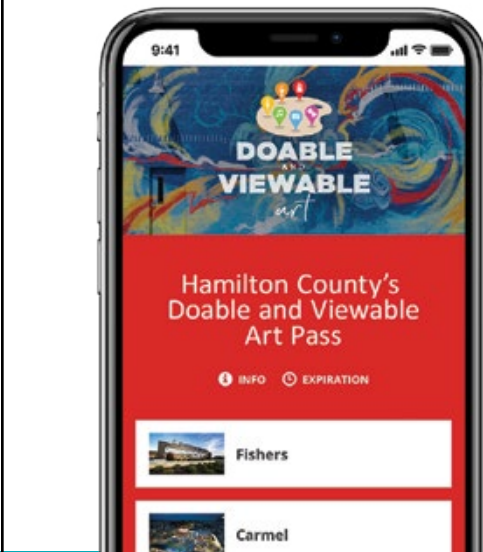

The message Boccardo conveys through her keynote presentations, podcasts and YouTube channel is based on research showing that well-integrated multi-generational teams are more productive than those that fail to embrace and maximize the synergy of their diverse talents and perspectives.

The session will explore:

- Why the divide exists between different generations
- What factors play into generational tension in the workplace
- What future young employees will look for in your company culture
- How you can increase the positive impact of a multi-generational workforce in your business

Boccardo holds a degree in psychology and public communication from Syracuse University and a professional coaching certification through the International Coach Federation.

Fishers tech company has big plans for former RCA facility in Marion

By ADAM PINSKER
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

ReElement Technologies in Fishers has officially expanded its metal recovery operations to the former Thomson RCA facility in Marion.

The company will start with a few dozen employees, with plans to add several hundred. The facility used to manufacture tubes for TV sets before closing nearly 20 years ago.

ReElement President Ben Wrightman said, “Operations should begin in early Quarter 1 in 2024. Our goal is by this time next year, so (in) the September-October time frame, we’ll have some larger scale operations (in Marion) and then (continue) to grow.”

ReElement takes old batteries and magnets out of everything from wind turbine engines to power tool batteries. The batteries are stripped of precious metals and eventually sold to companies that repurpose them into parts for electric cars, jets, or computers.

The technology, pioneered by Purdue and Lilly, keeps old batteries from ending up at a smelting plant.

Wrightman said, “From power tools, electronics, consumer devices, it’s in everything, everybody has a battery on them today, several batteries on you today.”

Wrightman said in addition to creating jobs, recycling these elements is easier on the environment and reduces the need to import them from other countries. “Frankly, those critical elements and rare earth elements are just that, they are not in abundance, this isn’t carbon, this isn’t trees, this isn’t rubber.”

Eventually, ReElement plans to occupy up to 300,000 square feet of the old RCA plant, alongside some other businesses owned by ReElement.

Aviation company hoping to grow into national hub puts HQ in Fishers

By GREGG MONTGOMERY
WISH-TV | wishtv.com

A company that provides aviation services at regional airports plans to move 63 employees by year’s end from locations around the Indianapolis metropolitan area to a headquarters in Hamilton County.

Jet Access has a “vision to propel the metro area to a national hub for private and general aviation,” says a news release from Fishers city government.

Corrie Bennett, vice president of marketing at Jet Access, told News 8 that the company will move into half of the third floor of an existing building at 9998 Crosspoint Blvd. in the Crossroads Business Park. That’s in an office, retail, and commercial area between East 96th and 106th streets, just west of Interstate 69.

Jet Access will relocate employees from operations at three metropolitan area airports: Eagle Creek Airport on the northwest side of Indianapolis, Indianapolis Regional Airport near the Hancock County community of Mount Comfort, and Indianapolis Executive Airport in rural Zionsville in Boone County. The 63 existing employees are paid an average hourly wage of $58.71, according to an agreement that the Fishers Economic Development Commission approved Monday.

“The new headquarters will allow us to all be in the same building,” Bennett told News 8 in an email.

The agreement also says Fishers will give Jet Access training grants of up to $3,500 per new employee with a cap of $70,000. The agreement calls for the 20 new workers to be hired by June 30, 2025, with an average hourly wage of $34.68.

According to its website, Jet Access also offers services from these Indiana airports: Columbus Municipal Airport, Frankfort Regional Airport and Shelbyville Municipal Airport. Its services also are available at John C. Tune Airport and Music City Executive Airport in Nashville, Tenn.; Dallas Executive Airport in Texas; and Quincy Regional Baldwin Field in Quincy, Ill.

Quinn Ricker, chief executive officer of Jet Access, said in the Fishers news release that the move will allow the company to “accommodate future growth” in one of the fastest-growing hubs for corporate headquarters in central Indiana. In the same release, Republican Mayor Scott Fadness said, “The team at Jet Access has a strong vision for the future of private jet travel and we look forward to supporting that growth.”

Finkam calls for overhaul of Marion County’s “failed” criminal justice system

Submitted

Sue Finkam has announced her support for Indiana State Police Superintendent Doug Carter’s call for a full review and overhaul of what they call Marion County’s failed criminal justice system.

They say the lack of accountability on crimes committed and the decisions made in Indianapolis affect all of central Indiana.

This week, the Carmel Police Department released crime stats from January to September of this year compared to the same timeframe in 2022:

- Burglary (36-40) – 11 percent increase
  - Damage to Property (25-33) – 32 percent increase
  - Residential Entry (5-7) – 40 percent increase
  - Theft (462-534) – 16 percent increase
  - Theft of Motor Vehicle (49-61) – 25 percent increase
  - Criminal Mischief/Vandalism (89-92) – 3 percent increase
- In response, Finkam made the following state-

“Mayor Brainard’s leadership and our outstanding police department have kept Carmel one of the safest cities in America, but due to the failed public safety policies and practices of those around us, we are seeing increases in criminal activity that we must continue to safeguard against. For the safety of our residents, schools, visitors, businesses, and our law enforcement officers, I strongly support state and local law enforcement leaders’ calls for a review and overhaul of Marion County’s criminal justice system to protect our city and our quality of life. As Carmel’s next mayor, crime prevention and public safety will be my top priority.”

In February, Sue Finkam released her Public Safety Plan. She is the only candidate running for mayor that has made crime prevention and public safety a top priority, and the only candidate endorsed by the Carmel FOP Lodge 185 and the Carmel Professional Firefighters Local 4444.

Attorney General Todd Rokita secures restitution from landlord for survivor of domestic violence

The REPORTER

Indiana Attorney General Todd Rokita secured a measure of justice for a survivor of domestic abuse when he obtained a landlord’s commitment to pay the survivor $12,000 and to improve policies addressing domestic violence among tenants.

Rokita

“Our team works to combat domestic violence at every opportunity,” AG Rokita said. “We aim to involve all Hoosiers in efforts to assist survivors and bring perpetrators to justice. Landlords, for their part, certainly need to be part of the solution.”

An investigation conducted by the Attorney General’s Homeowner Protection Unit found that a survivor first contacted her leasing office for assistance in the summer of 2022 after being physically abused by her co-tenant. Allegedly, employees of TRI-TWG Lakewood Holdings LLC provided erroneous information about her ability to terminate her lease or exclude the abuser from the leased unit.

The survivor alleged that she was told she would need to pay an early termination fee or qualify for an apartment using her own income for them to be able to assist her. As a result of this misinformation, the survivor experienced additional alleged abuse over the course of several more months. Timing in these circumstances can be critical to allow for physical separation from alleged perpetrators.

“A lack of training and understanding of the law protecting victims of domestic violence put this woman and her children in serious danger,” AG Rokita said. “She eventually got her lease terminated with the assistance of an attorney from Indiana Legal Services, but it should never have taken as long as it did.”

This episode also exposes an inadequacy in current state law – which fails to require landlords to provide any information to tenants who report being victims of domestic violence or abuse. Instead, the law requires the tenants to know about the proper paperwork they must file in order to get a lease terminated on the basis of domestic abuse.

“Our office appreciates the steps this landlord has taken to ensure this never happens again,” AG Rokita said. “A good next step might be for the Indiana General Assembly to strengthen Indiana laws protecting domestic abuse victims living in rental properties.”

The current statute contains no specific Attorney General authority for enforcement and no requirement that a landlord provide any information to a tenant about their rights when a tenant facing abuse reports a need to terminate their lease or exclude an abuser from the unit.

TRI-TWG Lakewood Holdings LLC has entered into an Assurance of Voluntary Compliance (AVC) requiring them to:

- Pay restitution to the consumer totaling $12,000;
- Make affirmative changes to policies and procedures relating to the proper handling of domestic violence incidents involving their tenants;
- Conduct at least two hours of continuing education training for consumer-facing leasing staff on the topic of domestic violence, including the protections afforded to victims of certain crimes as laid out in Ind. Code § 32-1-9; and
- Remit $2,500 to reimburse the Homeowner Protection Unit for costs of the investigation.

The mission of the Homeowner Protection Unit is to protect the rights of all individuals involved in the housing market – including tenants, homeowners, and aspiring homeowners – by investigating and redressing deceptive acts in connection with mortgage lending and violations of relevant state and federal laws.

TODAY’S BIBLE READING
THE DEATH OF SARAH

Sarah lived to be a hundred and twenty-seven years old. She died at Kiriath Arba (that is, Hebron) in the land of Canaan, and Abraham went to mourn for Sarah and to weep over her.

Then Abraham rose from beside his dead wife and spoke to the Hittites. He said, “I am a foreigner and stranger among you. Sell me some property for a burial site here so I can bury my dead.”

The Hittites replied to Abraham, “Sir, listen to us. You are a mighty prince among us. Bury your dead in the choicest of our tombs. None of us will refuse you his tomb for burying your dead.”

Then Abraham rose and bowed down before the people of the land, the Hittites. He said to them, “If you are willing to let me bury my dead, then listen to me and intercede with Ephron son of Zohar on my behalf so he will sell me the cave of Machpelah, which belongs to him and is at the end of his field. Ask him to sell it to me for the full price as a burial site among you.”

Scam Alert: “Grandma, help!” emergency scams take advantage of loved ones

The REPORTER

Emergency scams, sometimes called “grandparent scams,” prey on the willingness of an unsuspecting, worried individual to help friends and family in need. Often, they will impersonate their targets’ loved ones, make up an urgent situation, and plead for help... and money. Social media sites allow scammers to look up information and offer plausible stories. They may even incorporate nicknames and real travel plans into the con to convince their targets.

How the scam works

Emergency scams are about a family member or friend in a dire situation. You get a call, email, or social media message from someone claiming to be a distressed family member. They may say they’ve been arrested while traveling overseas, or there was an accident, medical emergency, or other calamity. They provide convincing details, such as family names and school details.

A common version is the “grandparent scam,” where the con artist contacts a grandparent claiming to be their grandchild and asking for money. The plea is so persuasive that the grandparent wires money to the scammer, only to find out their family member was safe and sound later. This scam can also work in reverse, where the “grandparent” calls their grandchild pleading for help.

Recently, the FTC has warned that scammers are using voice cloning techniques to imitate the voices of loved ones. The technology enables con artists to copy the voices of persons close to you from videos they may find on social media or other sources. They can then use tools to imitate the voice of your loved one and have it appear to say whatever they wish in a call. Some voice cloning efforts may be crude, and others very sophisticated - either way, this adds to this scam’s confusing and frightening aspect.

Tips to spot this scam

- Resist the urge to act immediately, no matter how dramatic the story. Verify the situation with other family and friends, but first hang up or close the message and call your loved one directly. Don’t call the phone number provided by the caller or caller ID. Ask questions that would be hard for an impostor to answer correctly.
- Know what your family members are sharing online. You may not have control over your family’s social media accounts but familiarize yourself with what they share online.

- Don’t wire any money if there is any doubt about the call. If a person wires money and later realizes it is a fraud, the police must be alerted.

Blackhawks get past Eagles in PKs; ‘Hounds, Millers, Golden Eagles sail to wins on the road

By RICHIE HALL
sports@readthereporter.com

SHERIDAN – The Sheridan girls soccer team continued its post-season run on Thursday, as the Blackhawks won a Class 1A regional semifinal at their home field.

Sheridan had come back from 2-0 down against No. 13-ranked Faith Christian, tying the game with two second-half goals. The score stayed 2-2 after regulation and overtime, sending the contest to penalty kicks. That’s where Sheridan prevailed, beating the Eagles 3-1 to advance to its first-ever regional championship game.

The Blackhawks played magnificently in the penalty-kick round. It started with goalkeeper Makenzy Terry, who was in the net first as Faith Christian got to kick first. But Terry blocked the Eagles’ first attempt, giving Sheridan an immediate advantage.

Senior Emma Alexander took the Blackhawks’ first kick, and she easily put it in the net. Terry then blocked FC’s second attempt, and junior Cecilia Timme made her kick. Two rounds in, Sheridan led 2-0.

“It’s really nerve-wracking, but I just think in my head that I can do it,” said Terry. “And I know I have all the fans supporting me.”

Faith made its third kick to get on the board, but Norah Stites also made her kick, putting the ‘Hawks up 3-1. The Eagles then missed their fourth attempt, giving Sheridan the win.

“This is the first time they ever went through that scenario,” said Blackhawks coach Brian Prange. “I was confident. I was confident in our goalie Makenzy Terry. She’s been phenomenal all year.” Prange also praised Alexander, Timme and Stites, noting that Stites “got injured early in the game, came in finished it off.”

Faith Christian scored its first goal in the opening half, then put in a second goal four minutes into the second half. Sheridan got on the board eight minutes later, with Mac Smith making a volley to put the Blackhawks on the board.

Alexander then scored in the 64th minute, putting in a penalty kick to tie the game at 2-2. That would be the score at the end of regulation, and neither team would score during either of the two overtime periods. Terry made sure of that, as she made a huge save with 41 seconds left in the second overtime.

“I can’t be more proud of the whole team because they pressed and they did everything I told them at halftime they could do,” said Prange. “They let two goals go in and they just turned it back up. And once we got the one, we knew. You just saw the lights click on that we were going to do it.”

There was a standing-room only crowd at the game, which made the victory even more exciting.

“It’s a lot of fun,” said

Terry. “We were so glad that we had so much support like we did.”

Sheridan will travel to Taylor on Saturday for the regional championship game. The Blackhawks, now 13-5-1, play No. 6-ranked Canterbury, who beat Eastbrook 1-0 in its regional semifinal game.

Tony Kanaan may have retired from the NTT IndyCar Series as a driver, but he is still spending a lot of time around the sport he loves.

The 2013 Indianapolis 500 winner has been at the track a bunch, working as a special advisor for Arrow McLaren. In fact, he was recently given a new title as the team’s sporting director. He’s not only spending time at physical racetracks, though, because he’s also spending a lot of time at virtual racetracks.

“Since the pandemic, we’ve been racing simulators a lot,” Kanaan told News 8 Sports’ Andrew Chernoff. “Simulators are a big part of every racecar driver and team’s life because you don’t get to test all the time.”

Kanaan is a big fan of the sim racing world, and a couple of weekends ago, he unveiled his new private simulator center in Westfield.

Kanaan says he needed a place to park his racing bus in the winter, so he used that as an “excuse” to get a warehouse.

Once he got the warehouse, Kanaan says he started thinking about everything he could use the facility for.

“Let’s build four or five (simulators) and invite some people to have some fun,” Kanaan said.

Kanaan says that down the road, the new facility could be used to host things like sponsor events, birthday parties, or watch parties.

“I’m really proud of it, to be honest,” Kanaan said. “I’ve always worked on my race cars, my go-karts and I’ve built everything that is here with three of my buddies. So, every single thing you see here apart from the cabinets, I built it... Every sim, every wire. So, I’m really proud to see it running.”

The sim center is also a look back at Kanaan’s racing career. There are plenty of memories on the walls, on shelves, and on tabletops. The sim center is also a look back at Kanaan’s racing career. There are plenty of memories on the walls, on shelves, and on tabletops.

“My first-ever trophy in go-karts when I was eight years old is here,” Kanaan said. “Some of my helmets are here. Every track that I had my big wins, it’s on the wall.”

In a sense, the new facility is a museum of Kanaan’s career as well.

Anticipation builds as Larson passes Indy 500 Rookie Test

Submitted by IMS

Another important step down, more to come in Kyle Larson’s Indianapolis 500 journey.

NASCAR Cup Series star Larson completed the Indianapolis 500 Rookie Orientation Program (ROP) on Thursday at Indianapolis Motor Speedway, a significant milestone as he attempts to become just the fifth driver to compete in the Indianapolis 500 presented by Gainbridge and NASCAR’s Coca-Cola 600 at Charlotte Motor Speedway on the same day. Larson’s “Hendrick 1100” – the moniker given to this “double” initiative – will take place Sunday, May 26, 2024.

“It was fun,” Larson said. “It was mostly what I anticipated, in a way. The speed and the grip didn’t feel, thankfully, scarier than what I thought it might.”

“Just how much the car wants to pull left and you have to kind of fight it back to the right on the straightaways and all that was something I didn’t expect. The weight of the wheel was a lot lighter than the simulator, but it was still a little heavier than what I expected. Other than that, I think it went really smooth.”

Larson needed a little more than two hours to complete the three-phase speed test on the historic, 2.5-mile oval, which also were his first laps in an NTT INDYCAR SERIES car. Drivers must start ROP with 10 laps between 205-210 mph, following with 15 laps at 210-

215 and finishing with 15 laps faster than 215 mph.

His top lap was 217.898 in the Hendrickcars.com Chevrolet fielded by Arrow McLaren in a joint effort with Hendrick Motorsports, Larson’s NASCAR team and 10-time winners of the Brickyard 400 at IMS. Larson turned 72 laps, with his fastest coming on his 65th trip.

2021 NASCAR Cup Series champion Larson joined NTT INDYCAR SERIES regulars Tom Blomqvist of Meyer Shank Racing and Chip Ganassi Racing teammates Marcus Armstrong and Linus Lundqvist in completing the traditional Indy 500 rookie test this week at IMS. Armstrong, Blomqvist and Lundqvist finished all three phases of ROP on Wednesday, with Blomqvist topping the speed chart at 220.176 in a Meyer Shank Racing Honda.

The presence of Larson at the test attracted plenty of stars in the North American motorsports galaxy to IMS on a sunny fall afternoon. Hendrick Motorsports owner Rick Hendrick and five-time Brickyard 400 winner Jeff Gordon – now the vice chairman of Hendrick Motorsports – observed the test, and Larson received plenty of advice from 2013 “500” winner Tony Kanaan, recently named Arrow McLaren sporting director.

“I’m certainly going to live vicariously through Kyle a bit through this experience and see how excited he is about it, and he clearly is,” said Gordon, who grew up in nearby Pittsboro, Indiana.

Said Kanaan: “It was seamless. We did what we were supposed to do today. Let’s come back here in April and get on.”

Larson’s next on-track step in this Indy 500 journey will be more laps in April during the Indianapolis 500 Open Test.

“It’s going to be really exciting next year when April and May come around because it’s going to be real then, race time, getting ready to race,” Larson said. “This is such a huge race for myself and my family, so I’m just glad I get to do it.”

2021 NASCAR Cup Series champion Larson hopes to join John Andretti, Tony Stewart, Robby Gordon and Kurt Busch in completing the “double.” 2004 Cup Series champion Busch was the last driver to successfully attempt the double, in 2014. Stewart produced the most successful double in 2001, when he finished sixth at Indianapolis and third at Charlotte.

The NTT INDYCAR SERIES tested the 2.2-liter twin-turbocharged V-6 engine with hybrid technology Thursday at IMS, with Alex Palou of Chip Ganassi Racing, Will Power of Team Penske, Colton Herta of Andretti Global and Alexander Rossi of Arrow McLaren turning laps.

Hybrid testing will continue from 9 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m. Friday, with David Malukas of Arrow McLaren and Marcus Ericsson of Andretti Global joining Palou and Power on track.

Fans can watch hybrid testing Friday from the grandstands inside the short chute between Turns 1 and 2 of the IMS oval, near the IMS Museum, and the spectator mounds inside Turn 2.

Visit IMS.com for more information and to buy tickets for the 108th Indianapolis 500 presented by Gainbridge and all Month of May activities at IMS.

Victor McCarty

Republican for Westfield City Council, District 2

I'm just a kid from the trailer park that wants to serve the community I love. As a lifelong Shamrock, my love for Westfield started when I was mascot at WHS. At that time, I had lost 100 pounds and didn't know where I was going. By being mascot, I was out in the community interacting with businesses and our residents. It gave me a sense of purpose. Simultaneously, Westfield became a city. Since then, I have had a deep passion for our community and every step I have taken has been to ensure that I am prepared to be a positive leader for Westfield. Through my experiences, I have learned that if we RISE together anything is possible. By building positive Relationships, investing in our aging Infrastructure, supporting our public Safety teams, and providing Engagement opportunities, we can create a welcoming community for all to live, work, and visit.

In my time on City Council, I’m proud to say I’ve done just that, by always trying to the best of my ability to listen to my constituents and take their opinions into account. When I decided to run for re-election, my motivations were the same. I’m running for re-election to the Fishers City Council SW District in order to keep Fishers on the right track financially and with safety and amenities.
