Flu season isn't over, so don't let

The landscape has changed for the prevention of serious and life-threatening adult respiratory infections, especially for seniors and those with chronic underlying conditions. We now have the fall vaccination-responsive "tripledemic" of diseases - influenza,

COVID, and respiratory syncytial virus

There's a medical adage that patients don't commonly consider getting flu shots after Thanksgiving. But historically, influenza peaks in February, and in recent years the influenza seasons have been prolonged well into the spring. RSV is largely a fall seasonal infection. So far, COVID has not had a consistent singular seasonal component, but we anticipate as it becomes endemic, RSV will have a fall predominance, and boosters will probably become annualized.

There are now multiple formulations of influenza vaccines. Most importantly, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention preferentially recommends that those 65 and older receive one of three vaccines yearly - high dose, recombinant, or adjuvanted – felt to be more effective. The high-dose vaccine holds the most clinical experience and is the most studied, which I generally recommend.

Influenza virulence varies from year to year. From 2010 to 2016, the flu vaccine prevented up to 6.7 million illnesses, 87,000 hospitalizations, and 10,000 deaths yearly in the U.S. In a particularly severe season, there can be up to 60,000 deaths. Note: All data in this column are from the CDC.

The COVID vaccine unfortunately begrateful for the support of the success has been possible, she er, a dinner held in conjunction came controversial through politicization and disinformation promulgated by anti-vaccine advocates, conspiracy theorists, and some politicians. In truth, its amazing emergency development prevented an estimated 18.5 million U.S. hospitalizations and saved 3.2 million American lives.

The pandemic ended through increased immunity from vaccination, natural infection, and the evolution to a less virulent virus. But especially for older adults, COVID is a continued threat. COVID is still the major cause of severe respiratory infections with 15,000 hospitalizations and 1,000 deaths weekly in the U.S. Receiving updated vaccines are essential to maintain our collective societal immunity. The COVID booster significantly reduces the risk for "long-COVID" and is 80 percent effective in preventing hospitalization in adults.

There are RSV vaccines newly available to prevent lower respiratory infections in pregnancy and adults 60 and older and

Young artists have a home with Hamilton Co. Artists' Association

Did you know that the Hamilton County Artists' Association (HCAA) has a youth membership program that is open to all high school art students in Hamilton County? They meet on the third Wednesday of each month. This is a valuable opportunity for students to meet juried artists and learn new techniques and avenues to enhance their knowledge of art, from drawing to painting, and from realism to abstract to Impressionism. They even learned about spinning yarn from fresh cut and cleaned wool. Next month they will get a lesson in clay sculpting. Dad, why is the sky blue? Why is it dark at night? Why can't I have cake for breakfast?" If you have children you have likely faced these or similar questions from inquiring young minds. We will never find all the answers for all the questions, but God has given me all that I need to live a pleasant peaceful life. I find that information in the Bible. We invite you to join us for Bible Study and Worship as we seek a better understanding of God's answer book.

We meet at 15530 Herriman Blvd. in Noblesville. Our building is behind the doctor's office and at the stop sign.

At the Stony Creek Church of Christ, we assemble on Sundays and Wednesdays to seek a better understanding of Jesus and His ways. You are encouraged and invited to join us for those studies or call for a private study.

Carmel reader calls on Hoosiers to oppose state legislators' plan to legalize bobcat hunting

Bobcats, Indiana's last remaining native wildcat, are finally making a comeback. The shy, elusive critters are rarely seen as they go about their work of hunting rabbits, mice, and other rodents. Bobcats perform an essential (and free!) service to our backyards, farms, and ecosystems, and they are a delight to observe if you're lucky enough to spot one.

Given the benefits of letting bobcats return and thrive in our state, it's difficult to understand why there's a bill currently before the state legislature that would open a trophy hunting and trapping season on Indiana's bobcats. The bill, S.B. 241, would charge residents just $15 for a license to "take" a bobcat. Bobcats are not hunted for food; they are killed solely for trophies, for fun, or to sell their skins to the global fur trade. The steel leghold traps used on bobcats leave them in pain and suffering in the elements for hours.

Our treasured bobcats don't deserve to be cruelly, needlessly killed. Hoosiers came together in 2018 to resoundingly defeat a proposed bobcat trophy season. It's time to speak up for bobcats again and oppose S.B. 241.

Letter to the Editor -

Sheridan reader offers context for "waters of the United States" SCOTUS case

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the letter written by Alex Libby (Dec. 8, 2023) discussing the Supreme Court Case Sackett v. EPA.

The Sacketts are a couple who purchased land in Priest Lake, Idaho, to build a home. This case took 16 years in supporting the Sackett's claim against the EPA.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) became involved and told the Sacketts they had to stop their construction of their home immediately or be fined thousands of dollars per day if they continued their construction of their home.

The Sacketts had obtained all the permits in 2004 to build their home which was in a subdivision. Take note: "in a subdivision," which had to be approved by the local authorities. Were other homes already built in this subdivision or in the process? Why were the Sacketts

It may be that their lot was in the area of "the waters of the United States." The Sacketts had to level out the dirt by backfilling on their lot in preparation of building their home. The EPA declared this backfilling was against the Clean Water Act alleging the property was a protected wetland under federal authority.

The issue here is the definition of navigable waters. In this case their property drained into a ditch which drained into a creek which drained into Priest Lake, a navigable, intrastate lake. The Sacketts sued, alleging that their property was not "waters of the United

The problem with the act initiated by Congress in 1972 has caused confusion about adjacent wetlands and adjoining wetlands near covered navigable waters. Adjacent means side by side and adjoining indicates connecting.

In the case of Rapanos v. United States, "To assert jurisdiction over an adjacent wetland under the CWA, a party must establish "first, that the adjacent [body of water constitutes] ... 'water[s] of the United States' (i.e., a relatively permanent body of water connected to traditional interstate navigable waters); and second, that the wetland has a continuous surface connection with that water, making it difficult to determine where the 'water' ends and the 'wetland' begins."

Justice Alito delivered the opinion of the Court. He asked these questions about "waters of the United States." "The Act applies to "the waters of the United States," but what does that phrase mean? Does the term encompass any backyard that is soggy enough for some minimum period of time? Does it reach "mudflats, sandflats, wetlands, sloughs, prairie potholes, [and] wet meadows? How about ditches, swimming pools, and puddles?"

In the Sacketts' case, how much water will be coming from their property with a continuous flow from the pipe to the ditch to the creek continuing on to Priest Lake? Will their ditch be a seasonal puddle?

This Supreme Court case was very important to property owner rights and using common sense about ambiguous laws concerning government overreach. As stated in the facts of this case, the EPA provided the Sacketts "no proof of any violation and no opportunity to contest its claims."

Libby claimed, "With the snap of its fingers, land can be lost, water can be polluted, and humans can suffer." The Sacketts suffered for 16 years of court cases and most likely financial stress.

Cyber kidnapping occurs when victims are tricked into paying a ransom fee to free a loved one who they believe has been threatened with violence or death. In reality, cyber kidnappers have not actually kidnapped anyone, but they have instead obtained a photo of the alleged person alone in a secluded area.

The worrisome photos are used to create the illusion that an individual has been kidnapped and needs immediate aid. After the family members or friends receive this information, they are asked to wire ransom money immediately.

According to the FBI, these cases are extremely difficult to investigate since the calls typically come from outside of the country.

This crime often occurs when family members are unable to track the location of the person, contact them, or verify their safety.

Range Line Road Corridor in Carmel receives ACEC Indiana Engineering Excellence Awards

American Structurepoint and the City of Carmel have earned an Honor Award from the American Council of Engineering Companies of Indiana in the 2024 Engineering Excellence Awards for the Range Line Road Corridor.

American Structurepoint provided multiple engineering services to the City of Carmel to transform a 1.5-mile stretch of Range Line Road into a pedestrian-friendly, tree-lined, multimodal corridor with parallel multi-use paths and six new roundabouts that replaced existing traffic sig-

A landscaped median replaced a two-way, leftturn lane, improving traffic flow and safety by eliminating mid-block left turns. Raised crosswalks, accented by decorative brick pavers, were incorporated at intersections and at several mid-block locations to increase pedestrian safety and visibility. A cycle track, buffered by heavy-duty planters to protect bike traffic, was integrated into the project and replaced one vehicular travel lane.

The six roundabouts were designed to accommodate the future placement of corridor-defining public art features in the central islands of these circular intersections. The design team included public gathering spaces along the corridor to create an engaging, vibrant environment.

Phillip Ragan West May 22, 1946 - January 18, 2024

Phillip Ragan West, 77, Lebanon, Ind., and formerly of rural Kirklin, Ind., passed away on Thursday evening, January 18, 2024, at Signature Healthcare at Parkwood in Lebanon. Born on May 22, 1946, in Lebanon, he was the son of the late Thomas Ragan and Julia Ellen (Marlow)

He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of both Kempton and Ekin.

He was a 1964 graduate of Sheridan High School and continued his education at Indiana State University. Two years into his studies, Phil enlisted in the U.S. Naval Reserves. He quickly found himself aboard the USS Higbee and honorably served his country as a radar man during the Phil returned home with many stories to tell. He also returned with a newfound desire to seek out parts unknown. He enjoyed traveling to various states and never passed up a chance to hit the open road on his motorcycle (or do some drag racing outside of town).

Phil spent most of his working life in telecommunications. He was employed at Indiana Bell as a lineman and worked on nearly everything in the company's arsenal during his 30-year career. He enjoyed the people he met along the way and thoroughly enjoyed what he did (even if it meant shimmying through some very tight attics and crawlspaces). The company Phil worked for may have changed from Indiana Bell to AT&T, and finally Lucent Technology, but the attention to detail and the pride he took in his work never did. After leaving the phone company, Phil worked for CNH in Lebanon before finally retiring in 2019.

On September 10, 1972, Phil's life would change forever. He married the love of his life, Juanita Lynn Kirby, and together they embarked on a lifelong adventure of laughter and memories. A devoted father and husband, Phil never let his work take away from his time with his family. He and Juanita spent countless hours working on their home, which sometimes put his handy man skills to the test. There was also equal time devoted to the property as well. From working the garden to mowing on his and her lawnmowers, the hours spent taking care of the homestead was quality family time well spent. There wasn't too much that Phil couldn't fix or build, and somehow there always seemed to be extra hours in the day and days in the week to get everything done. However, no matter how busy things got, there was always time to sit and enjoy the wonder of watching a good storm roll in.

As the kids grew older and became more involved in sports and activities, Phil made his attendance a priority. Phil's AT&T van was usually in the parking lot at most of the kids' events, creating even more memories for the family to look back on.

Sports and politics were favorite topics for Phil. He Sheridan. would print out a monthly calendar, listing all the games, times, and channels, so he wouldn't miss a thing. Playing football, basketball (his favorite), and running track at Sheridan H.S. instantly made him a lifetime Blackhawk fan, but he was equally dedicated to IU basketball and the Colts. If IU wasn't playing, Phil would suck it up and turn on the Purdue game, just to get his basketball fix. And just like any self-respecting Hoosier, he loved the Indianapolis 500. Many a race day were spent in the backyard listing to the radio broadcast and cheering on his favorite driver, A.J. Foyt.

Family was everything to Phil. He was blessed to have gained even more family to cherish during his years at Parkwood. He enjoyed working large difficult puzzles, and his room became Vietnam War. After his time in the service was complete, the hangout for those who were in the know. He loved visiting with everybody and was a wonderful support system for those who didn't have anyone in their corner. Phil's room ultimately became a part of the facility tour, and with that came ample opportunity to brag on his grandkids to visitors, residents, and staff alike. His years at Parkwood also helped him reconnect with his older brother, Harold. There was always a fun time to be had when those two would hop on the golf cart and drive around Lebanon.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING

LABAN PURSUES JACOB

Laban answered Jacob, "The women are my daughters, the children are my children, and the flocks are my flocks. All you see is mine. Yet what can I do today about these daughters of mine, or about the children they have borne? Come now, let's make a covenant, you and I, and let it serve as a witness between us."

Genesis 31:43-44 (NIV)

Patti Ione Koerber

March 26, 1931 - January 20, 2024

Patti Ione Koerber, 92, died on January 20, 2024. She was born March 26, 1931, in Noblesville to Ione and Kenneth Pickett. At 18, she became Catholic, and her deep faith animated the rest of her life.

After Noblesville High School, she attended Antioch and Marian University, graduating from Marquette University. In Milwaukee, she met Leonard who shared her faith and intellectual curiosity. They were married 57 years until his death in 2015.

She reoriented her life after her first child, John, was born, becoming an advocate for people with developmental disabilities and their families. She earned a master's in special education from Indiana University and founded the Parent Information Resource Center (PIRC) in 1975, expanding it into a national network, Parentele. Pat and Leonard also won a federal civil rights suit against the segregation of developmentally disabled students at IPS.

In 1980, Pat realized a long-held dream, opening a used book business, Abstract Books, in her home. She was one of the early book dealers online and the business is still in operation.

Her love of architecture, seen in her work at each family home, helped shape the new church at St. Ann's in Indianapolis where the family became parishioners in 1989.

She was devoted to her family and is survived by her children Lisa Barks, Susannah Koerber, and Kin (Ravi) Koerber; grandchildren Caron (Tim) Phillips, Lauren (Trevor) Green, Edward Barks, Sameer and Arnav Kuber; and great-grandchildren Max, Archer, James, and Amelia.

She was preceded in death by Leonard, her son John, her sister Wanda Lee Chatel, and her brother Kenneth Kinsey "Bud" Pickett.

Visitation will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. on Friday, January 26, 2024, at Flanner Buchanan Decatur Township, 5463 Kentucky Ave., Indianapolis, with the Mass of Christian Burial on Saturday, January 27, 2024, at St. Ann Catholic Church, 6350 S. Mooresville Road, Indianapolis. She will be interred at Crownland Cemetery in Noblesville follow-

Golden Eagles roll past tough Liberty Christian

sports@readthereporter.com

NOBLESVILLE – The score of the Guerin Catholic boys basketball team's Tuesday victory over Liberty Christian on Tuesday night doesn't tell the whole story.

Golden Eagles coach Bobby Allen would be the first one to tell you that. Class 3A No. 3 Guerin Catholic had to battle with a Lions team that's receiving votes in the 1A poll. Liberty Christian had leads on GC in the first half before the Golden Eagles took over in the second half, sailing to a 78-61 victory at the Eagles

"They're a young team with nothing to fear," said Allen. "They have incredible energy. Their coach does a great job with them. They're a dangerous team and they showed it tonight."

The first half was almost all scoring runs from both teams. Guerin scored the first seven points of the game, with five of them coming from Robert Sorensen. The Lions responded with an 8-0 spurt, including five from T.J. English, one of three promising freshmen on the LC team.

The Golden Eagles blasted back, outscoring the Lions 17-4 in a run that carried into the second quarter and was led by Guerin Catholic's big men. Dylan Murans made a couple dunks, while Bryson Cardinal was good on a pair of three-point plays. Ben Grissom finished the run with a triple early in the second period, and the Golden Eagles led 24-12.

Liberty Christian responded with a 14-0 run, facilitated by five different players. English and Kendrick Martin, another freshman, both had four points. Murans stopped the spurt with a layin, then Sorensen took over, adding seven points in the final 2:45 to give Guerin Catholic a 33-30 halftime lead.

The Golden Eagles began to pull away in the third quarter, outscoring the Lions 20-13. Jack Cherry helped out with five points, including a 3. This was Cherry's fourth game back after missing the first part of the season with an injury, and he is coming back strong.

"It feels good to be back," said Cherry. While the senior said it was tough to be on the bench, he took a positive attitude, saying he was able to see what his teammates - "you get to see what they can do and it gives other people opportunities to play."

"Robert Sorensen does a really good job scoring the ball, and the teams take him away," said Cherry. "Then you just got to step up." Guerin Catholic led 53-43 after three quarters, then poured in another 25 in the fourth. An 8-0 run gave GC its biggest lead of the game at 69-49; Cherry hit a 3 and two free throws, then Murans nailed a 3. Cardinal had nine points in the quarter, including his third and-1 of the game with 3:12 left.

We also had 15 turnovers in the first half, which is too many," said Allen. "We came out in the second half, we only had three. So, when we take care of the ball and when we get the ball in sight first, then we find success."

Sorensen scored 23 points, while Cardinal earned another double-double, 19 points and 10 rebounds. Murans totaled 16 points and Cherry had 12.

The Golden Eagles outrebounded Liberty Christian Cherry showed everyone 38-19. Sorensen collected seven rebounds and Andy Caron had five. Guerin Catholic had 21 team assists, with Cherry dishing
