Fallen firefighters will never be forgotten in this county

Not perfect, but blessed

By STU CLAMPITT
news@readthereporter.com

Last Friday morning, the Hamilton County Fallen Firefighters Memorial was installed behind the Hamilton County Government and Judicial Center, 1 N. 8th St., Noblesville. Getting the memorial installed was a journey of several years, countless miles, and the contributions of many people in the community.

For the final leg of this memorial's journey, Steve and Lori Schwartz flew to Arizona to transport the statue to its Hamilton County home in a truck donated by U-Haul.

In 2008, the Hamilton County Fallen Firefighters Memorial Committee was formed after conversations with members of both career and volunteer fire departments in Hamilton County, who all expressed a desire to honor the Hamilton County firefighters who had given their life in the line of duty.

The committee worked with artists and members of the community to design a memorial that shows what firefighters do as all-hazard responders. The Blessed is the mother who has it all together and whose children walk in the way they have been taught.

I heard a speaker say this. That was 30 years ago. I still remember thinking, "But what about the mother who doesn't have it all together or who has children going in a direction they weren't taught?"

Is being "blessed" a mark of success that others give us or is it learning to live with happiness even in the midst of challenges?

Oh, comparison, how you sting my heart. In the world of social media, comparison has become a daily jab. We are deluged with pictures that show mothers with empty laundry baskets, no crumbs on the kitchen table, and a well-organized pantry.

There's always that mom who rises before the sun peeks over the horizon, works out, and prepares a hot breakfast for her husband and children. Then, off she goes with a full face of makeup and her hair in a not-so-messy bun to conquer the tasks her job requires. We all strive to be that mom but end up tired to the bone heart-weary and a hot mess.

Trust me when I say that is not the reality of most moms. Most are just trying to sustain a house that is not declared hazardous to their children's health. Show me a mom with expired food in her refrigerator, and I will declare her among the majority

First Farmers is about to get Carmelized

By STU CLAMPITT
news@readthereporter.com

First Farmers Bank & Trust (FFBT), which already has branches in both Sheridan and Cicero, is now moving to Carmel.

FFBT signed a lease for a 2,800 square-foot branch to be located at 111 S. Range Line Road, Carmel. The branch will be part of a larger mixed-used building which will also include office space for BSA LifeStructures, Teays River Investments and upscale restaurant 1933 Lounge.

The Reporter spoke to three members of FFBT's leadership about this new branch, the direction the bank is taking, and how they will continue to offer the level of service you can only expect from a community bank.

"After a long and storied history of Indiana roots, we are thrilled to open up our branch expansion in the heart of Midtown Carmel," President and CEO Mark "Doc" Holt said. "Our focus continues to be on growth and building relationships with our retail and commercial customers in the state of Indiana. Expanding into Carmel will make it easier for us to personally connect with our Hamilton County customers. We look forward to working with and serving the Carmel community for years to come."

Hamilton County Regional President Matt Maher told The Reporter Carmel is obviously a very good market to grow into. "We're in a lot of smaller locations up north," Maher said. "We stretch to Terre Haute and then to Illinois. But we've had a lot of our traditional footprints in smaller markets. I think it will give us a lot more visibility and brand recognition by going into a location in a vibrant area that's continuing to grow. There's going to be more growth along Creating audio or video content to promote your business takes a big investment. You need time, equipment and expertise. For small companies, that's a lot to ask. Thanks to a new studio inside Launch Fishers, now all you need is time.

Businesses throughout Indiana can use the new podcast studio at no cost, thanks to a lot of work from the Launch Fishers team and a grant from the Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC). The studio was one of only 16 projects selected for funding through IEDC's Community Collaboration Fund.

According to Launch Fishers Executive Director David Bolling, the studio has two separate footprints: one for audio only and one for video work.

On the audio-only side, there is a studio set up for up to four people.

Helping the hungry is everyone's responsibility

By AMY ADAMS
news@readthereporter.com

According to a recent report from 24/7 Wall St., Hamilton County is by far the wealthiest county in Indiana, followed by Boone and Hendricks, with a median income of nearly $115,000 and an average home value of more than $350,000. For reference, the average annual income in the state is less than $70,000.

"The prices of homes in Hamilton County are at a premium due to the great quality of life of our communities and schools," said Kurt Wanninger, Westfield City Councilmember.

Map the Meal Gap put out by Feeding America offers what is, perhaps, a more surprising statistic: there are more than 22,000 food insecure individuals in Hamilton County – many are children.

"That's mind-boggling for me," said Carrie Larrison, vice president and director of special projects at Open Doors in Westfield. "I'm sure it's mind-boggling for others as well because there's a lot of wealth in Hamilton County."

Wanninger, who also serves as vice president and director of operations at Open Doors, explains that many who own homes may be stretching their budgets to live in Hamilton County.

Fishers mayor fights food insecurity

The REPORTER

In the week leading up to the May 11 Stamp Out Hunger initiative, The Reporter spoke with Fishers Mayor Scott Fadness about his own work to fight food insecurity in his community.

"The biggest initiative that I personally throw my support behind is the Fishers Youth Assistance Summer Meals program," Fadness said. "There are 700 kids roughly that are on free or reduced lunch in the City of Fishers, and every summer they go home, and their source of meals goes away during that timeframe when they would normally be able to get at least a decent meal at school."

Fadness said he contributes personally to the program and also raises money from the private sector to help families in need.

"We are able to raise private funds to ensure that every week families can come pick up a week's worth of food to help get those

Heights’ Drew Hilton receives 2024 Nancy Herndon Award

Drew Hilton, a sophomore at Hamilton Heights, is the recipient of the 2024 Nancy Herndon Award of Excellence.

This award, created by Herndon last year, is designed to recognize a student who shows excellence in dedication to school, community, and the ideals of the Purdue Extension A Chance to Serve Program (ACTS).

Hilton was nominated by Carrie VanAlstine, a member of the Our Town Cicero Board on which Hilton has also served for the past year. Herndon, ACTS Emeritus, helps coordinate the ACTS programs in participating schools in Hamilton County.

“I am not surprised to hear that Drew won this award,” Hamilton Heights High School (HHHS) Freshman Counselor Lori Watson said. “He is always quick to volunteer and help in any capacity when I call on him at school. He has served on our Advisory Council, helped with tours and visits, and continues to be a leader in many areas. We are very proud of him here at Hamilton Heights.”

“Drew is an excellent selection for this award,” added HHHS Principal Jarrod Mason. “His involvement with ACTS has given him an avenue to use his talents for our community. We are proud of him and know he has great things ahead of him!”

“The ACTS program is a wonderful collaboration between the Purdue Extension Hamilton County and local schools that give several members of our freshmen class a chance to meet and learn from great leaders in our community while interacting with student leaders from other schools,” Heights Superintendent Dr. Derek Arrowood said. “My favorite session is led by Hamilton County Historian David Heighway and involves a bus tour of North Central Hamilton County. I learn something new every time I get to participate in this session, and I know the students really enjoy it.”

This leadership program, created in 1999, and sponsored by Purdue Extension/Hamilton County, offers freshman the opportunity to participate in five, day-long training sessions their first semester of high school. Graduates then get to apply those skills coupled with real-time learning experiences by serving as a

The First United Methodist Church of Noblesville invites the community to attend the Pipe Organ Dedication Recital at 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 19 in the sanctuary of the church, located at 2051 Monument St.

The guest artist for the recital is Martin Ellis, who served as Organist and Associate Director of Music at North United Methodist Church and at Second Presbyterian Church in Indianapolis before relocating to Portland, Ore.

Mr. Ellis will play a variety of musical selections that will demonstrate the many colors and voices of the new organ. In honor of this historic moment, he composed a new choral setting of the hymn “O for a Thousand Tongues to Sing,” and the church’s Chancel Choir will perform this new work as part of the dedication recital.

The new pipe organ was designed and built by Reynolds Associates of Marion, Ind., and the church is pleased to share this glorious new instrument with the community.

A reception will follow the recital.

BLESSED

of moms. I could be friends with her.

Mothers should consider running around like a crazy lady as exercise. Getting children to multiple practices on any given day is quite a feat.

Failure to pick up a child at the right time is not a demerit on the scale of successful mothering. I once (maybe twice) left my daughter at church, thinking her dad was bringing her home. I took it as a failure on my part, not his. I often drank the guilt that was not mine to swallow. It’s a mom thing.

When my kids were growing up, I fed them a hot breakfast and fruit. It might have been a toasted Blueberry Pop Tart. I fed them plenty of fiber on other days with a bowl of Cheerios. Judge me not!

I don’t see how moms today remember what days are e-learning, late arrival, and the oh-so-popular dress-up for a reason day.

When my kids were in the fourth grade, they had to design and build a cabin. I might have saved my son’s project, and three years later, I showed my daughter how to renovate it for her project. I taught her to be creative with what you already have in your shoebox.

The days (and nights) of a mom are long. The days we struggle to endure the hard times as a mother don’t get easier when our children are grown. We will always worry. We question if we could or should have done things differently.

We must realize that as moms, we won’t always have it together, and if we do, we will forget how we did it and where we put it.

My advice to moms ...

Photo provided
Janet spoke to a church group about being raised by a mother who wasn’t afraid to share her faith and lived it well. Four generations of hands were placed on her Bible, which was open to Psalm 71.

1. Don’t sweat the small stuff.
2. Pick your battles.
3. Comparing yourself to other moms is like running on a hamster wheel. You will get nowhere.
4. Your kids have a mind of their own. Don’t lose yours over trying to control them.
5. Train up your children in the way they should go, but remember, at some point, they take the wheel.
6. Do not judge other mothers, as you have no idea what they are going through.
7. You cannot wear the badge of success or failure because of your child’s choices. Children will arrive at their destinations in life because of their choices, not yours. You have influence, not control. Read that again.

8. Motherhood is not for the faint of heart. It is a blessing on the good days and a challenge on the bad days.

9. Every mother knows, from time to time, the exasperation of a frazzled nerve. Every child has the ability to frazzle. They also know exactly where their mother’s last nerve is located.

10. A child will never know how much love was poured into them while they were growing up or growing older. Love is invisible, but a mother’s heart knows what it looks like. She keeps pouring it on her children long after they leave home. It just looks different.

Blessed is the mother who doesn’t have it all together, and her child has taken a detour. She shows up and learns to be content, knowing she’s done the best job possible.

I hope all mothers reading this had a Happy Mother’s Day! May you feel blessed.

BGCN “Racing Past Construction” for summer program scholarships, avoiding detours for local kids

The REPORTER

After thoughtful consideration, the Boys & Girls Club of Noblesville (BGCN) has decided to postpone the annual Bed Race until 2025.

“Although postponing the 2024 Bed Race isn’t our ideal scenario, it was the right call to make this year,” BGCN Director of Club Operations Abby Stutesman said. “Our leadership decided that pivoting to a virtual cause campaign would still allow the community the opportunity to support youth scholarships in the spirit of the Bed Race.”

BGCN and the city of Noblesville are teaming up to wave the green flag to get summer started for kids. Summer is a time where kids just get to be kids, and they deserve that. But many need financial assistance to attend safe, fun, and engaging programs – which the Bed Race has been able to provide for the past decade.

While there may not be hundreds of onlookers lining 9th Street this year to cheer on their favorite team or favorite bed, there is still the opportunity to invest in the youth in the Noblesville community through a virtual fundraising campaign – the Race Past the Construction Campaign.

“Noblesville has a well-earned reputation as a community that steps up and supports neighbors in times of need – whether that is making sure kids have resources to attend summer camps and educational programs, or supporting our businesses during construction challenges,” Noblesville Deputy Mayor Matt Light said. “The city is honored to partner with BGCN to support this fundraising effort and its mission of serving our kids and our community.”

Will you help BGCN Race Past the Construction and reach the finish line?

in this memorial as a prominent reminder of the terrible loss of life that took place on September 11, 2001, and those who have subsequently died as a result in the years that followed.

Glenn Schwartz, who used to be a volunteer fireman in Castleton, donated the $20,000 and built the trailer and held that beam for the last several years.

According to Lori and Steve Schwartz, mounting the beam on that custom trailer allowed it to be transported to events at several fire stations.

“They could come and get it on the trailer and take it to different events and other fire stations, waiting for the bronze statue to be built because that took a lot of money for the firemen to raise that kind of money,” Lori said.

Regarding the trip from Arizona to Indiana with the finished statue, Lori told The Reporter, “The whole journey was just amazing. We even got to stop at Winslow, Ariz., and meet those firemen.”

Lori and Steve picked up the statue and drove it all the way back to Indiana over the course of nearly a week. Thanks to Hamilton County Tourism, the Schwartz’s had a route planned for them, which included a number of stops at fire stations along the way.

“It was an amazing journey back to Indiana,” Lori said. “The response from each individual fireman was amazing. It touched them to see the bronze statue for the fallen firemen.”

In Oklahoma City the Schwartz’s were given a 70-car police and fire escort into the city to allow the statue to stop at the city’s fire department. Several members of that and other fire departments along the way took the opportunity to touch the statue with reverence and to have their photos taken with it as it traveled to its final home in Noblesville.

After 28 stops along the way, Lori Schwartz said she and Steve they were given a police and fire escort into Noblesville with 50 or more vehicles.

Thanks go out to all the donors who contributed to this memorial, to Hamilton County, the City of Noblesville, to the artists who designed the memorial itself, to the Schwartz family, and to all the firefighters who have ever given their lives in the line of duty.

HELP

“This along with wages not keeping pace with the rise of inflation and increase in cost of rentals are just a few contributing factors impacting higher levels of food insecurity within Hamilton County,” Wanninger said. Larrison said that in years past, Open Doors might see an increase of 20 to 30 clients a year. “Last year, we saw a much larger growth,” Larrison said. “It wasn’t unusual to have 15 to 20 new clients a month. Over the holidays, we went up by 80 to 90 people. And even during COVID we never saw an increase like that. There were so many families that were barely making ends meet. When the cost of living increased drastically, those families that were right on the edge just couldn’t pull it together anymore.” Gleaners, the largest food bank in Indiana, also reported a spike in the number of households needing help, citing the peel away of COVID-19 pandemic-related aids, such as increased Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) eligibility and benefits, Advance Child Tax Credits, and school feeding programs. “Most of the people that are coming to food pantries are working,” Larrison said. “Some of these people fill needs that happen to be low paying jobs.” Anita Hagen, executive director with Hamilton County Harvest Food Bank, said that one statistic shows that more than 70 percent of the food insecure in Hamilton County are ineligible for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program due to their income levels. Hagen went on to explain that the average cost of a meal is $2.84 in Indiana, but in Hamilton County, that meal would cost $3.59. That 75-cent difference adds up over multiple days of multiple meals for multiple family members. “Then add in the cost of housing and transportation, “Everyone should have the ability to have their choice of healthy food. That should be a given, but we can only do that by working together. It takes the community.”

– Anita Hagen, Hamilton County Harvest Food Bank and the issues are pervasive,” Hagen said. Some families are one layoff, one car accident, one medical bill, one raise in rent away from food insecurity. “It’s not our place to judge,” Hagen said. “It’s our place to help.” While Hamilton County Harvest Food Bank doesn’t run a food pantry, the organization works to provide produce, meat, and dried goods to the food support network in order to keep food pantry shelves stocked year-round. HCHFB works with organizations like Gleaners and the Hamilton County Food Resource Coalition, which was started by the Hamilton County Community Foundation. Hagen also points out that restaurants and stores like Kroger work with organizations like Gleaners and HCHFB to redistribute day-old and close-to-expired food to pantries in Hamilton County at even higher rates than in Marion County. You have probably also seen the yellow Feeding Team food pantries scattered across Hamilton County. Feeding Families outdoor Free Food pantries is the corporate charity of TalentLogistiX, Tech Trades and PinPoint Resources. The idea behind these yellow boxes is “neighbors helping neighbors” by providing 24-7 access to the pantries so that people can “take what you need” and “give what you can.” Find more information at feedingteam.org. “We are so fortunate in Hamilton County that we have numerous food pantries,” Larrison said. A food pantry, according to Hagen, can be a support for people without judgment. “Everyone should have the ability to have their choice of healthy food,” Hagen said. “That should be a given, but we can only do that by working together. It takes the community.”

Range Line. That’s going to fill up pretty quickly from City Center to Main Street. It just gives us a great location as that area continues to grow.” FFBT Senior VP Tade Powell said it is unusual for the bank to lease space, rather than own a building, but for the Carmel market and for a post-COVID world, it is a good fit. “E-commerce platforms, specifically through PPP [the federal Paycheck Protection Program] and COVID, dramatically altered the style in which people are comfortable banking,” Powell said. “In major metropolitan markets it’s more likely that we would be looking at space with partners around us, with mixed use. The place that we just opened in downtown Lafayette is a space that is in a client building. It also is a great synergistic partnership if you happen to be doing business with the developer or the landlord.” In this instance, FFBT will be leasing space in a building that they are also financing for the developer, LOR Corporation. “We’ve financed some other properties for them,” Maher said. “He’s become a very good customer of ours. He’s going to be our next-door neighbor there as well. It’s become a very good partnership.” The Carmel branch will be FFBT’s 39th location. “We’re just north of $3 billion in assets, which is a pretty good-sized bank,” Powell said. “It’s right at that sweet spot that we feel that it gives us the capability to help serve a much larger client, but we are small enough to retain the community banking culture and atmosphere. We feel that we are right at that sweet spot from a high service level, but also able to offer the bells and whistles and e-commerce solutions that a modern customer demands, and to do it in the community bank model as opposed to a major multinational.” Maher has worked at banks large and small, and he told The Reporter he prefers being with an organization that has local decision makers. “They know what the market is,” Maher said. “I think we have the ability to structure our loans and our products to the individuals more so than some of the bigger banks. When you go to a bigger bank, for good reason, there are more policies and procedures because you have to manage all the people, so you can’t deviate from those policies as much. Here in community banking, we’re able to tailor our solutions a little bit better than the bigger banks.” Another benefit Maher sees in community banks is lower turnover. “A common complaint I get about big banks is that they’ve had four loan officers in the last three years because people keep rotating in and moving up and moving around, whereas in community banks, you’re in your communities and you’re staying there and continuing to serve your customers,” Maher said. “We community banks tend to focus on relationships. It’s very important to us. It goes both ways, that we want to have a relationship with you and you back with us so that when times are tough, we’re going to be here for you.” Maher said once the Carmel branch is open, if you call the bank you will speak to him or two one of only two or three other people who will take care of you. “There’s three or four people here that you can talk to, versus calling an 800 number, not knowing what state or country or whatever you’re getting,” Maher said. “I think you just have more of a personal touch and personal feel with a community bank than you do the bigger banks. Bigger banks are good for certain things, but I think for your small business owners and your mid-market guys, I think we do a really good job of that. I think that’s a niche that we fit in very well to tailor our solutions. It’s a little bit better, I think.” Look for FFBT’s new Carmel location to open by the end of 2024. ## PODCAST

“We wanted it to be user friendly, plug and play if you will,” Bolling said. “We don’t want to get into the back end of thinking about the hosting platform for your podcast. You can come right in, just turn on the microphones and the equipment. We have storage here for you and just get ready to speak and do your podcast. Or you can bring your laptop in, record directly to the laptop, and then take that away and post-process and put it on whatever platform you’re using.” For video or still photography for product promotion, there is another space available. “The other footprint outside is a longer area, a deeper space,” Bolling said. “It would be good if you want to do product demos and showcasing those, or maybe some short form video recording that’s going to go into social media. That’s more for one or two people talking back and forth on video. We’ve set these out as two separate and distinct footprints in the facility.” While Launch Fishers is not currently offering post-production services, Bolling did say that is something they may offer later. For now, he and his team would be happy to help anyone who needs post-production processing to find one of their partners in the community who has those skills. What they are currently offering is free use of a professional studio. “We’ve got it set up as a standardized lighting, photo capture, all the traditional setups,” Bolling said. “We’ve got it set up to what we think is the best look and feel. We have it set right now as a black backdrop.

You can also do greenscreen for chromakeying or white [for product showcasing].” While the space is available for any business owner in the state, they are focusing businesses on Blackford, Boone, Delaware, Grant, Hamilton, Hancock, Henry, Jay, Madison, Marion, and Randolph counties that would benefit from some free studio time to help them grow. You can learn more about the studio, including a full list of all audio and video equipment available at launchfishers.com/studio. You can book time in the studio online at pgi.formstack.com/forms/studio-booking. “In that form, then we’ll give a calendar, and on that calendar, it will showcase available times that they can slot themselves in,” Bolling said. “Then once they submit on that calendar, that will send an email over to our team that someone has registered to be in the space. Our time slots, and then we’ll reach back out to them.” You will be offered both training and the opportunity to come see the space before the studio for the first time. About Launch Fishers Created in partnership with the city of Fishers, Launch Fishers is a space for entrepreneurs, creatives, and innovators to flex their entrepreneurial spirit. # Westfield honors outstanding kids at Youth Recognition Breakfast

Sixteen Westfield Washington Schools (WWS) students were recognized on May 1 at the 14th annual Westfield Youth Recognition Breakfast (YRB).

Since 2011, the Westfield Youth Assistance Program (WYAP) has held the event to recognize local students. The honorees are youth in the Westfield community who have overcome adversity at home or school, have demonstrated a profound positive change in their attitude or behavior, or have made an extraordinary academic turnaround.

A counselor, teacher, principal, or other school staff submits the nominations to WYAP. A selection committee vets the nominations and chooses the recipients. Nominees can be from all grade levels, with this year's recipients spanning from first through eighth grade.

At the breakfast, Mayor Scott Willis, Former Mayor Andy Cook, and WWS Superintendent Dr. Paul Kaiser provided introductory speeches. This was followed by a speech from former YRB recipient Brandt Grabowski, who was honored when he was in fourth grade and is now a senior at Westfield High School. After a brief presentation of their accomplishments, the honorees received their certificates from WYAP Board President Tammy Havard and Mayor Willis.

"This annual recognition event hosted by the Westfield Youth Assistance Program Board of Directors is a reminder to us all of the strength of the students and how they find a way to succeed despite the challenges they are facing," Havard said. "It is an honor

Hamilton Heights own Emily Beechler named Colts Classroom Quarterbacks Finalist

The REPORTER

Hamilton Heights Middle School (HHMS) Media Center Specialist Emily Beecher is a finalist for the Classroom Quarterback Award presented by the Indianapolis Colts and Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Beecher has worked as a teacher at Heights for 23 years, spending the past 15 in the middle school Media Center.

The award recognizes teachers, administrators, nurses, and staff members who go above and beyond for their students, schools, and communities. Finalists were selected by a panel of educational professionals, the Indianapolis Colts, and Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Finalists were selected on such criteria as the amount of involvement in school and/or community, degree of positive impact on the school and/or community, and demonstrated commitment to education, health and wellness initiatives, and other programming.

"Emily is a pillar of the Hamilton Heights community," said HHMS Principal Jill Landers, who nominated Beecher for the award.

"She has made a positive impact that goes far beyond her daily duties and expectations. She is the brainchild and bus driver of our district bookmobile, to encourage students' love of reading, even when they aren't in school. She is also the district wellness coordinator, and her initiatives help to motivate and encourage staff to be their best. Emily's positive impact can be felt all over our community. I was so excited to see that she was one of the top 10 finalists. She is truly deserving, and I'm rooting for her to be number one!"

As a Top 10 Finalist, Beecher will receive a $100 Amazon gift card for school supplies, two tickets to the Colts' first regular-season home game this year, and a Colts Swag Bag.

One finalist will be named the Classroom Quarterback of the Year and receive a $2,500 donation for his or her school. In addition, the winner will also receive a $100 Amazon gift card for school supplies, four tickets to the Colt's first regular-season home game, and a Colts Swag Bag. The Classroom Quarterback of the Year will be announced later in the month.

Central Indiana Dance Ensemble wraps up 24th season

The REPORTER

Central Indiana Dance Ensemble (CIDE) is preparing to wrap up their 24th season. Dancers will present Snow White on May 18 and 19 at the Tarkington Theatre at The Center for the Performing Arts in Carmel.

Set to the music of Polish composer Bogdan Pavlovsky, CIDE's dancers' artistry and skill allow this beloved fairytale to shine with renewed vibrancy, kindling the imaginations of kids and adults alike.

Purchase tickets at tiny-url.com/CIDESnowWhite.

This performance will feature CIDE's four graduating seniors, most of whom are going to college for dance and/or plan to incorporate dance into their lives in the future.

Charlotte Van Dyke

Charlotte Van Dyke is a senior at Guerin Catholic High School. She's been dancing since she was two years old and has been with CIDE since 2015.

This past holiday season, Van Dyke danced the role of the Sugar Plum Fairy – a dream Nutcracker role since she was very young. She says she is excited to graduate and begin her freshman year as both a ballet and biology major at the University of Cincinnati.

"Ballet holds such a special place in my heart," Van Dyke said. "It is my passion, and I could never imagine my life without it."

In Snow White, she is performing as the raven, representing memory and ambiguity.

"The part of the raven has been challenging so far, but I have loved every minute and I can't wait to perform it in May," Van Dyke said.

Lily Guntz

Graduating from Carmel High School, Lily Guntz also plans to attend the University of Cincinnati as a ballet and biomedical engineering major.

"I have loved every moment of my 10 years at CIDE, but am so looking forward to my bright future," Guntz said. "This summer, I am kickstarting my post-high school career at Cincinnati Ballet's summer intensive to prepare for my next four years in the city."

Before heading to Ohio, she said she is greatly anticipating the upcoming performance of Snow White where she will be the Raven Pas de Deux.

"This role has been a wonderfully challenging experience where I have had the opportunity to work with a partner and expand upon my technique," Guntz said. "I am so excited to watch my friends and peers perform their respective roles as well, everyone has been working so hard and it has really been paying off."

Guntz has also danced since she was two. She has attended Regional Dance America and The Ballet Alliance, both with CIDE. She reflected on how much she has enjoyed the outreach portion of CIDE, including going out into the public with performances such as Nutcracker and sharing the love of dance with aspiring young kids, parents, and grandparents. She also shared the incredible community that is part of the studio at CIDE and how every dancer bonds in a special way.

"Overall, my time at CIDE has really shaped me as a person and as a dancer, teaching me how to persevere through challenges and smile while doing it," she said. "For that, I am truly grateful."

Gretchen Greener

Also from Carmel High School is Gretchen Greener. Dancing since the age of three, she joined CIDE after performing in her first Nutcracker as a Gingersnap at the age of six. Since then, she has attended Regional Dance America, Ballet Alliance, and the Butler Ballet Summer Intensive (twice).

Greener has also performed in Mixed Rep, which is CIDE's performance in March that shows not only ballet, but contemporary and modern dance. She was able to choreograph a piece for Mixed Rep that she is extremely proud of, called "Anam Cara."

"It allowed me to combine my passion and love of ballet with my love of Irish dance as I choreographed a piece en pointe to Irish music with traditionally Irish formations," she said. "This piece will be performed again during our final student showcase in June."

For Snow White, Greener will perform as The Owl.

"As a graduating senior, I've found each of these last performances to be bittersweet," she said. "It's always so exciting to perform, but also realize each show will be the 'last' – Nutcracker, Mixed Rep, Spring Show – with all the friends I've been dancing with. These friends are family and I'll miss them all so much."

Greener said she also plans to make ballet a part of her future.

"Ballet has always provided me discipline, and it has taught me so much outside of the dance world," she said. "It has created life-long friendships, taught time management and respect."

Greener plans to go to college to earn her BFA in dance with a double major in either business or fashion.

"I am so excited for college as it will expand upon my dance knowledge," she said. "The anticipation of the endless possibilities that the future holds is so exciting."

Greener's long-term goal is to become a studio owner.

Alayna Shea

CIDE's final senior is Alayna Shea from Westfield High School. She has been dancing for seven years. She has attended IU's ballet summer intensive and with CIDE has been to Regional Dance America three times and last year's Ballet Alliances festival. This year she will do a contemporary solo in the Youth America Grand Prix.

Shea's plan is to study Studio Art, Chemistry and Art History in hopes of becoming an Art Restorationist.

She expressed her pride that she has been able to continue the legacy of dancers who have danced in productions (such as Nutcracker) and how much she values the tradition of dance.

Channels of Connection in Carmel will be at the roundabout at Main Street and Lexington Boulevard.

Carmel High School students collaborating with international artist on public art project

The REPORTER

In a first-of-its-kind collaboration, Carmel High School (CHS) students are playing key roles in the design of the Carmel Redevelopment Commission's (CRC) latest art acquisition, which will be on bold display within steps of the school.

Announced in December, Channels of Connection in Carmel, an illuminated sculpture, will be positioned at the roundabout at Main Street and Lexington Boulevard. The dynamic piece features steel wires shaped into the head and neck of a student looking to the sky, hair blowing in the breeze. Designed by artist Casio Solano, who has work displayed in multiple U.S. and European cities, the artistic structure is slated for installation in the summer of 2025.

In the meantime, CHS students are actively taking part in the look of the final piece, submitting concepts that will inspire the tips of the sculpture's hair – various items or representations.

Jennifer Bubb, CHS art department chair, said students are brainstorming ideas through collaborative mural drawings and individual drawing activities, as well as through a recent video meeting with Solano.

Their sketches, poetry, and short stories include sentiments about what they love about Carmel and Carmel High School.

"What an incredible privilege this is for our students to collaborate with an internationally recognized artist," Bubb said. "My students and I were awestruck in our initial conversation with the artist's team."

With the ideas from students being sent to Solano in the coming weeks, the CRC and CHS are planning virtual meetings with students and the artist to discuss the creative process, as well as key steps for the ultimate installation. Beyond the art students already taking part in the project, students studying engineering and technology will be engaged, as well.

Mayor Sue Finkam, who last month announced the formation of the Mayor's Advisory Commission on Arts, is staying closely engaged in the partnership and is pleased with the early progress.

"Student involvement makes it more than a sculpture; it makes it a Carmel story about the power of art and its ability to inspire our community," Finkam said.

CRC Executive Director Henry Mestetsky touted the enduring impact of the project and others like it.

Students hard at work on their contributions to the project.

"We know public art empowers economic development and public involvement builds our community," Mestetsky said. "The sculpture does both, as it welcomes visitors to our education campus and our Arts & Design District."

Significantly, Bubb has seen her students' appreciation for public art expand and is confident the initiative will have an impact beyond the dozens of students already involved.

"Ultimately, we hope that all our students will be inspired by the artistic process in this collaboration project," she said. "Because this sculpture will grace the landscape of our school, students will be able to look at this sculpture for years to come, knowing that their voices were considered in the design."

May 3 to 5, eight Indiana high school FFA teams competed in the national invention competition, Make48, at Maker Playground, 8100 E. 106th St., Fishers, with Hamilton Southeastern FFA emerging victorious.

The four-person teams, comprised of three students and one adult team leader, were tasked with creating a working prototype related to agricultural education, recording a promotional video, drafting a sales sheet, and pitching their idea to a panel of judges – all within 48 hours.

On May 5, the Hamilton Southeastern FFA Team won first place for Best Innovation and Best Pitch against six other FFA chapter teams at the Make48 invention competition held at Maker Playground, 8100 E. 106th St., Fishers. They don’t have to operate any equipment. They just have to come up with the ideas. It’s all their vision. They have to collaborate, divide, and conquer all within 48 hours.”

The Make48 docuseries, currently in its eighth season, showcases a series of individual competitions throughout the U.S. in which diverse teams are given a broad topic and the means to design and build their innovation regardless of legal knowledge or skill level. Patent attorneys, Tool Techs, and mentors are on hand to support the teams during the entire competition. Not only does this support give inventors of all skill levels a fair chance at winning, it also reduces the chance of injury.

Although the competition is marked by a 48-hour countdown clock, the health and safety of the competitors remains a priority. The competition site is closed and the clock paused from midnight to 6 a.m. both nights to allow for all parties to have a mandatory rest period.

The Indiana Make48 competition, sponsored by Indiana FFA and Corteva Agriscience, marks the fourth of the 2024 Make48 season. # From napkin to tech innovation team of the year

By STU CLAMPITT
news@readthereporter.com

Fishers-based Pierce Aerospace was named the TechPoint Mira “Tech Innovation Team of the Year” at the 25th annual Mira Awards gala. The Reporter spoke with Fishers Mayor Scott Fadness and Pierce Aerospace Founder Aaron Pierce about the award, the company, and the city ecosystem that made it all possible.

Pierce

Pierce Aerospace’s team received the Tech Innovation Team of the Year Award for designing and producing remote identification beacons for unmanned aerial vehicles (drones) that enable the aircraft to meet federal regulatory requirements. They also make remote identification receivers to monitor airspace – a technology that is making a national impact.

Fadness

The company refers to this technology as “license plates for drones.”

“We’ve been working on it for a while,” Pierce told The Reporter. “The concept is that just like license plates on cars or transponders and other aircraft, we need to have a means to figure out who’s flying that aircraft and where it’s at in space and time. And that satisfies both a security and a safety question, just like those other technologies do as well. We started working on this back in 2017 and have been pursuing that ever since.”

Pierce called his company’s journey in Fishers – from an idea to the tech innovation team of the year – as “a good, fun, wild ride.”

“It’s always fun and very rewarding to build something new,” Pierce said. “Our whole team is very entrepreneurial. It’s a small team, but it’s a team that’s also really stuck with it and persisted through the grit and the grind to take what was effectively a concept literally on the back of a napkin, and then move that all the way into something. The government took it and helped build it from a policy standpoint, which turned into a rule. And now we’re building products to help the market meet the requirements of that rule.”

Mayor Fadness told The Reporter he is proud of Pierce Aerospace, not only for the Mira Award itself, but also for building a successful company out of nothing more than an idea and a lot of determination.

“Aaron over there at Pierce has been working on this for some time and continues to try to make big strides in an industry that can be pretty difficult to get into,” Fadness said. “It’s been fun to watch this company progress.”

Pierce called the Indiana IoT (Internet of Things) Lab in Fishers one of the best places in the state to do this kind of work and to grow a company.

“We’re surrounded by a community of like-minded entrepreneurs, highly technical people,” Pierce said. “It’s a place where we can tinker and break stuff. It’s an IoT lab, so it’s an inherently noisy environment. We were able, from day one, to build our technology in an incredibly spectrum-dirty environment, which helps us to really understand how to make sure that this technology would work in the real world.”

Pierce credits much of his company’s success to the entrepreneurial environment available in Fishers.

“The entire Fishers ecosystem is fundamentally built on collaborative entrepreneurship, which I think is an incredibly unique philosophy to build an entire city on,” Pierce said. “That’s one of those underlying, intangible secret weapon types of things that we utilize as a startup to be successful in our mission. We continue to look at it as a secret weapon to growth and how we attract people to the team, as we continue to bring aboard new people, and how we think about building a company that can make a global impact.”

According to Fadness, that environment exists by design.

“We’ve worked very hard and very intentionally to create an ecosystem that supports Fortune 100 companies all the way through to a backpack and an idea,” Fadness said. “That dynamic economic environment where commerce is happening either organically or when we’re recruiting companies to be a part of this ecosystem. It’s really, really important. We don’t take for granted and we try to celebrate to the best of our ability. The successes of all up and down that ecosystem – from the startup all the way through to the large corporation – if they have a success, we feel like that’s a success and it’s affirmative to the vision of our city. It is critically important. We may be in government, and we may have a different role, but I think we share a common spirit when it comes to being entrepreneurial.”

Heights YAP celebrates students’ success with IMPACT Awards

The REPORTER

Last Thursday, The Hamilton Heights Youth Assistance Program celebrated the success of 12 amazing students at the seventh annual IMPACT Awards Dinner at Hamilton Heights Middle School.

The event drew in students, their families, Hamilton Heights School Corporation personnel, and local dignitaries from the greater Hamilton County area and beyond for this special celebration of accomplishments.

The program recognizes one student per grade, K-12, who successfully maneuvered through a challenge in his or her life. Students can be nominated by a teacher, guidance counselor, administrator, or any staff member who feels a student is deserving of the award.

“I look forward to this event every year,” said Mary Ann Haymaker, Hamilton Heights Youth Assistance Early Intervention Advocate, who was an instrumental part of creating this annual recognition program. “This time is truly about the kids and recognizing the impact they have made on their teachers and classmates. It is a special time to come together and honor their hard work, resilience, and determination of these students to rise above a challenging issue that may otherwise have negatively impacted their life.”

The 2024 Hamilton Heights Youth Assistance IMPACT Award Recipients along with their presenters include:

In addition, Gus (HHHS ’21) and Tillman Etchison (HHHS ’24) presented Stephanie McQuinn, a Special Education Teacher at Hamilton Heights High School, with the 2024 Tony Etchison Memorial Award.

“Stephanie is an exceptional teacher who does so much to help her students,” Haymaker said. “She really exemplifies the traits that were important to Tony, loves everyone, be kind, and make a difference.”

The event’s emcee, Hamilton Heights School Corporation Superintendent Dr. Derek Arrowood, said the awards ceremony is truly a celebration of the accomplishment and triumph of these students, many of whom have overcome significant challenges in their lives.

“These are extraordinary students who have shown the will and grit to overcome despite their situations,” Arrowood said. “The adversities these students have faced did not limit their ability to succeed inside and outside the classroom. Their examples can be a lesson to all of us that anyone can overcome challenges in their life and become an inspiration to others.”

The memorable evening was made possible, in part,

MAKE48

FFA (Frankton), Clever Connersville FFA (Connersville), and winner, Hamilton Southeastern FFA (Fishers).

While each team worked hard to create a prototype capable of sharing agricultural knowledge with various target audiences, Hamilton Southeastern FFA's focus on educating young children about how more than just bees can pollinate, helped to solidify their win.

The four HSE FFA team members, Sam Uliczny (team captain), Eliza Uliczny, Ellie Taylor, and Meghan Haws won first place for Best Innovation and Best Pitch. They each come to the table with competition experience but admit that the unique design of Make48 is part of the allure of this competition.

“I think for all of us, it's the experience behind it,” said Eliza, speaking for the group. “We've done marketing and competed nationally for FFA. We've had some experience in creating a product and marketing it, but we've never done it in a weekend time or made a prototype. Transitioning those skills and doing something that is more hands on drew me in and drew in the others, as well. And it's just really fun.”

May ... it's the most wonderful time of the year

It's usually the end of April before the state of Indiana remembers that it is no longer winter. That's when we typically start having more consistent warm weather.

Of course it's still packed full of rain, then possibly snow again, then 80 degrees, then 40 degrees, but it's about as consistent as Indiana is ever going to get.

This is the time of year that I come out of winter hibernation, where I had been hiding in indoorclusion and packing away vats of chilis, stews, pastas, and all sorts of wintertime comfort foods. I walk outside and smell the fresh air and realize it's time to break out the grill, lawn mower and gardening gloves. That's right, it's that time of year again. It's MAY!!!!!!!!!!!!

Forgive my excitement, but it's only the greatest of all time, most amazing, spectacular, incredible month of the year. And now it's here! There's so much going on, I don't even know where to begin. I'm pretty sure this is the month Andy Williams was singing about, right? I should probably listen to the words of the song more closely, but I don't have time right now. So, since It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year, here is my tribute to the month of May!

TIM RATHZ
Forty-something in Fishers

By the fourth day, my month begins on a note that allows me to let out my inner nerd. That's right, I'm a Star Wars junky. I've seen every episode of every movie and show, from live action to animated. Yep, I've even seen the Star Wars Holiday Special. Granted, it was difficult to sit through, but I made it. All my old action figures sit on a shelf in my son Pat's bedroom. I'm in Facebook groups, subscribe to YouTube channels, and have read several of the books. I love it, can't get enough, and want more. If my wife, Megan, would let me, I'd walk around in Jedi robes on a daily basis. My minivan even made the Kessel Run in less than 12 parsecs just so I could come here and say to you, May the 4th be with you!! (Megan is definitely rolling her eyes hard at that one.) Once I'm over my blue milk hangover (another Star Wars groaner joke), the next day will be a celebración fantástica. We put up decorations and eat all the best Mexican foods.

What are we celebrating? You guessed it! It's my daughter Mary's fifth birthday! Since she was born on Cinco de Mayo, we like to celebrate in true style. The difference between a Cinco de Mayo and a Cinco de Mary celebration is the overabundance of mermaids we will have at our party. Happy golden birthday, my little girl!

A mere week later, we get to celebrate some of the most special people on Earth. No, not Taylor Swift and Travis Kelce ... sorry Swifties. It's all those mothers out there. Every Mother's Day, I put my big boy chef's hat on and go to work. I love spoiling Megan with a breakfast of eggs benedict and homemade scones. Once that is done, I make a deal with God for the weather to be nice, so she can go outside to do her favorite pastime, gardening. She even teaches our kiddos a thing or two about having a green thumb. While they are safely occupied, I immediately begin prep for yet another homemade meal. This time it's a magnificent dinner consisting of some sort of grilled, smoked, or slowly braised meat. Nothing better than eating like a king on Mother's Day. Or a queen, I guess. Either way, love you babe! Just a couple short weeks later, Megan gets to celebrate again. But this time it's with all her coworkers and their significant others. You see, Megan is a grade school teacher. And by this time of year, there is nothing a teacher is longing for more than that last day of school. Therefore, that last-day-of-the-year party is not to be missed. Since I've known Megan and all her peers, I've always said these two things about teachers. 1) No one complains more than a teacher who didn't get a two-hour delay. 2) No one parties harder than a teacher on the last day of school. It is so much fun to be part of the celebration of high fives and handstands, as the teachers say "sayonara" to all our snot-filled, germ-ridden bundles of joy. Well, for a couple months anyway. I salute our teachers and all they do. All that leads straight into one of my favorite weekends of the year. I may have misled you at the beginning of this column. While I am a huge Star Wars fan (and nerd), I should probably come clean about my other, bigger obsession. I LOVE the Indy 500 and everything to do with IndyCar. Most of the shirts and hats I own don the wing and wheel logo. If you have never witnessed the pre-race festivities, traditions, or that first ear-splitting lap of the 500, there is no way for me to explain it. It must be experienced. However, I didn't just say it was one of my favorite days of the year. I said week-end. The race on Sunday is amazing, no doubt. But I also get to take my kids to the parade on Saturday, which are memories I treasure. But, most importantly, Monday is Memorial Day. We mustn't forget the price that was paid for the cookouts, family parties, and games of cornhole we play. So, take some time to remember members of the military ... past, present, and future. They are some of the greatest Americans to ever live. The moral of the story is ... Do your best not to pass out in the infield in Turn 3, so you can properly honor those who gave (and give) us the freedoms we enjoy this month and always. Have a great May! Tim Rathz can be reached at 40somethinginfishers@gmail.com. Follow on Facebook or Instagram.

Rethinking “No Mow May” A ‘Thor’ subject

Have you dreamed of transforming your backyard into a vibrant haven for butterflies, bees, and beneficial pollinators? The idea of a lush wildflower meadow teeming with life is certainly captivating. The “No Mow May” movement has gained traction in recent years, encouraging homeowners to stop mowing their lawns for the entire month to promote wildflower growth and support pollinators.

It's important to understand that most of our yards simply aren't meadows waiting to happen. In the U.K., where No Mow May was established, lawns are much more likely to harbor seeds of native wildflowers compared to U.S. lawns. These wildflowers may have been present in the soil for years, waiting for the right conditions to germinate. Leaving a typical U.K. lawn unmowed in May allows the potential for wildflowers to emerge and bloom.

However, typical U.S. lawns are monocultures, dominated by a single type of non-native grass. Beneath the surface lies a seed bank unlikely to yield any native wildflowers. Stopping mowing for an entire month can lead to negative consequences, including allowing invasive weeds to grow and thrive. In addition, your neighbors will likely consider your unkempt lawn an eyesore and a potential

CURTIS HONEYCUTT
Wild by Design

H.O.A. violation. I'd like to suggest some realistic alternatives to No Mow May and the motivations behind each option. “Mow Less” May

You can encourage better lawn health by embracing a “mow less” or “mow higher” philosophy. A simple adjustment like raising your mower deck by an inch can make a big difference. Taller grass shades the soil and helps to retain moisture. Instead of mowing your lawn weekly, stretch your timeline to every 10 days. This allows your grass to grow taller, promoting a healthier lawn.

“Night Mow” May

Did you know that mowing your lawn in the evening can make a surprising difference for air quality? Ground-level ozone, a pollutant linked to respiratory problems, forms when sunlight interacts with certain chemicals in the air. By mowing after 7 p.m., you avoid adding to these chemicals during peak ozone formation times. Evening also brings cooler temperatures and often winds that help disperse any remaining emissions.

“E-Mow” May

Gas-powered lawnmowers contribute significantly to air pollution. According to the E.P.A., gas mowers account for 5 percent of the air pollution in the U.S. Each hour of operation from a gas-powered mower can emit as much pollution as 11 cars running for the same amount of time. Transitioning to an electric mower is a win-win for your lawn and the environment. Modern electric mowers feature advanced brushless motors that deliver performance comparable to gas-powered mowers. Lithium-ion battery technology has also come a long way, offering longer run times on a single charge. Plus, electronic lawn mowers are significantly quieter, allowing you to mow at your convenience without disturbing your neighbors. “Cool It with the Chemicals” May

Every year, U.S. homeowners apply an estimated 80 million pounds of synthetic pesticides to their lawns. These chemicals spell doom for pollinators. Instead, consider organic weed control methods like hand-pulling weeds. These methods may require more effort but are better for your lawn, the environment, and the delicate balance of your backyard ecosystem. For natural fertilizer, I use products from Sunday Lawn Care. Its fertilizer feeds and strengthens lawns without harmful chemicals. And while the allure of a mosquito-free backyard is understandable, traditional mosquito control methods do more harm than good. These sprays, even those marketed as “all-natural,” often contain chemicals derived from plants like chrysanthemums. These may sound harmless, but their extracted versions – pyrethroids – are insect neurotoxins. This means they kill not just mosquitos, but also a wide range of good insects like bees, butterflies, and ladybugs. It's also highly toxic to birds when inhaled. Enjoy a mosquito-free porch with a simple tip: use an electric fan. Mosquitos are weak fliers and struggle to land in a strong breeze. A fan can create a gentle wind current around your patio or seating area, making it difficult for mosquitos to land on you. “Less Lawn” May

This is, in my opinion, the most impactful change you can make to benefit your home landscape this month. Maybe you have a section of your lawn that you don't like to mow. Good news – you don't have to do it anymore if it's not there! Grab a shovel, dig up an area of grass, and replace it with some attractive native perennials and mulch. Native plants are perfectly adapted to our region's climate and soil conditions, requiring less water and maintenance once established. The “roots” of No Mow May are admirable but, in reality, we can make some adjustments to make an even bigger impact on the environment in our yards. Consider one of these changes for your lawn to make your patch of land a healthier, more vibrant place to live.

Until first grade, I didn't even know Marion was my real first name.

Marion III, to be exact. I was called Scott until then, my middle name. A kinder, gentler, male-sounding, monosyllabic name. And though my classmates were able to rhyme Scott with “rot” and “snot” and “pot” in their daily playground poetry, I could still live with the name Scott.

I remember the first day of first grade, that very first time I participated in that necessary evil known as roll call. From A to R, Mrs. Phillips' roll call went without a hitch. Then came the S's, which I anticipated with grand excitement because I would get to raise my hand for the first time, to be the center of attention for once, thus kicking off what was certain to be a stellar grade school existence. “Marion Saalman,” she said.

No one said anything. No one raised a hand. Everyone, including me, glanced around the room looking for the mysterious Marion Saalman. Maybe she was a cousin of mine I had not yet met. Finally, Mrs. Phillips informed the whole world that I was Marion Saalman. Talk about shock. My body had sunk so low that even with my hand raised, all you

Hamilton County Councilman Mark Hall's April Timesheet

Welcome to the Timesheet. This column is a report of work done on behalf of the people of Hamilton County. It's to be informative, too – a place to learn about projects and how our county government works.

As your employee, it's important to me that you know what is being worked on as transparently as possible in government. You hired me as your County Councilman, and my hope is that you'll choose to be informed by regularly reading this column, getting involved, and by asking questions. Council meetings are at 7 p.m. the first Wednesday of every month at the Judicial Center in downtown Noblesville. Meetings are also available to watch online for those unable to attend in person.

Here is where my time this past month has been spent.

The primary election season just ended, and campaign signs, television, radio, newspaper advertisements, emails, and texts inundated us for what felt like months on end. Personally, I don't remember a primary election with more mailers than this one. I am grateful to just be doing the work and not have to campaign at the same time.

*** In addition to council and RDC meetings, April's work included Finance and Personnel committee meetings. Many hours were invested researching and evaluating the Regional Development Commission's public safety training center project, upcoming County Council projects, bond financing, county debt, and the impact of pledging county-certified shares for projects.

April's personnel committee meeting dealt with several normal requests. Items included requests from the Sheriff and Auditor for position reclassifications and combining two positions into one. In other business, a position within Buildings and Grounds was reclassified as was one position within Human Resources. These changes were based on a thorough review internally and an outside review by the county's independent benefits and compensation vendor. Lastly, authorization to hire a new leader for the Weights and Measures department was approved.

Personnel requests are voted on as they occur – first, in the personnel committee and then at the next regular council meeting using a recommendation from the committee. The finance committee met and worked through detailed examinations of the county income, cash reserves, expected 2025 assessed values, and an initial look at expected 2025 expenses. The challenge ahead will continue to be balancing

Disability defined

Many of us have likely heard the phrase “my disability doesn't define me.” What comes to mind when you hear this? This is one of those phrases that can spark a lot of conversation and disagreements, even within the disabled community. I have been told over and over in my life, “your disability doesn't define you!”

That phrase no longer makes sense to me, and I am not sure it ever did. For a long time, I tried to make it make sense, but it never did. If I say that, how can I expect nondisabled people to not see disabilities as negative? In my humble opinion, I feel like that statement breeds negativity surrounding disabilities.

I think we must be honest in educating others that while we can do many great things, our disabilities do often present challenges. I think we must do that to have our needs met and continue to push for a more accessible world.

For me, it feels right to say, “my disability defines

Panic in the barn lot

Here's another story from my mother, Dorothy H. Adler.

He was large for his age, which was really not large at all, for he was too young to go to school. He was blonde and blue-eyed and usually wore an engaging smile from ear to ear. But these days he was lonely; it was hard to be the youngest when everyone else climbed into the big yellow bus and went out to conquer unknown worlds.

It was a busy season for mother. Well, what season is not busy for a mother with young children? Usually she knew right where the children were playing, but today she glanced at the clock with the start and realized she hadn't seen Sonny for at least an hour – perhaps more.

He was so reliable, even for a little tot, that danger did not enter her mind at first, but as she looked here, there, everywhere and he was not there, she panicked. Trying to keep her voice calm, she phoned Grandmother, though not really expecting him to walk that far.

She let the receiver fall back into its cradle and began searching for a police number to call. Something dreadfully surely had befallen her baby. With the number partly dialed, another thought struck. There's only one place she hadn't looked. Better check there first. The barn was off-limits because it could be reached only by going through the barnyard which might hold nothing worse than a frisky lamb, but a not-so-calm bull might be there. Little boys who are lonely sometimes forget about limits. They don't really understand danger, so it was not surprising that Sonny had found his way safely to the barn.

His occupation was a bit more surprising. He had heard Father say, "The barn needs cleaning; I'm going to have to get after that tomorrow." Little hands, when armed with an old broom and a small scoop shovel, can move a lot of dirt. The pile he had mounded up was nearly as tall as he was.

The blond hair wore a coating of dust, the blue eyes gleamed impishly, the engaging smile reached from ear to ear when he said, "I'm helping Daddy clean the barn floor. See my pile of dirt!"

DEFINED

me." It does. It's me and all I've ever known. It makes me, me. It affects almost everything I do. How does that not define me?

I am proud of that now. My disability doesn't always keep me from achieving things, but the lack of accessibility in our society often slows down the process or makes some things unattainable. If I'm saying my disability doesn't define me, to me, that seems like I'm shining a negative light on disabilities. That is not how I feel about my disability. I always must consider my disability when making decisions. I cannot separate from it. That seems definitive.

I spent far too many years trying to stuff away my reality of being disabled. It's not a fun way to live. Trying to cover something up that is impossible to hide. It's also exhausting on a whole other level – trying to pretend like your body doesn't have different needs and often demands a different pace than that of a nondisabled person. It makes me sad to look back and think of the emotional stress I caused myself by denying my reality and not advocating for my own needs to make things a little smoother. However, I felt a lot of shame surrounding my disability for a very long time.

Society has come a long way in recognizing those who live with disabilities are human just like anyone else. Still, a long way to go, but seriously a lot of progress has been made by those who live with disabilities as well as those who support us by raising awareness and educating. I feel seen as a human, and a lot of times respected, when the norm used to be that I felt dismissed, diminished just because I am disabled. There are still plenty of those kinds of experiences, but it feels better. Most days anyway.

I know my opinion on this matter isn't that of everyone who lives with a disability. I get it; this is just my take on that statement as a 49-year-old woman who has never known anything other than living in a disabled body. My opinion on this likely would have been different even 10 years ago. I've made a lot of progress in the arena of self-acceptance, especially since finally being diagnosed a little over five years ago after years of searching.

It takes humble courage to see and accept ourselves just as we are. However, it's a great start to moving more towards an inclusive world for all. If we can start by including our whole selves, I believe we have made a good dent.

Until next time ...

Let yourself be the helpee

I need to take a break this week from my Bringing Joy to the Workplace series to talk about a topic that's been on my heart lately.

Some of my readers may have noticed I haven't had regular columns in a few weeks. My father-in-law, who was 88 and had been battling throat cancer, passed away in our home on Sunday, April 28. Ron had been under hospice care for a few months in his home in Manteno, Ill., before coming here April 20. He died peacefully with both of his sons and daughters-in-law beside him.

If you've never been in this situation, it's sad, scary, and overwhelming. It was an honor to take care of him alongside my husband, John. But for a couple of weeks, our world was turned upside down.

Family and friends began to reach out saying, "How can we help?" One couple, Matt and Cindy, offered to bring us lunch.

At first, I would say, "Oh, we're good, we've got things under control." This was BEFORE hospice dropped off the hospital bed and table and things began getting real. I thought being the good planner that I am that I would have everything figured out.

Some of you are probably laughing out loud at that statement.

After Ron arrived and I juggled working from home with caretaking responsibilities, I began to realize we had NOTHING under control. One of us had to be here with Ron all the time, which meant we had to cancel a lot of activities and check each other's schedules constantly.

One day, Cindy texted me again to see how they could help. Tears sprang to my eyes, and I texted back, "I know you offered lunch ... could you make it dinner instead?" This was incredibly hard for me.

Fighting crime through environmental design

While safety through design has long been practiced through requirements of building codes and local ordinances, the impact of its use to prevent crime in public spaces is a relatively new concept. In urban environments, Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) combines urban design strategies and architectural elements to optimize safety in outdoor spaces.

This approach is guided by four key principles:

Natural surveillance
Designing spaces that maximize visibility allows behavior to be under constant observation. A well-documented example of natural surveillance in practice is the impact of tree canopies in cities.

While it might seem counter-intuitive, areas with more trees are proven to encourage people to spend time outdoors, creating easier areas of observation than settings that result in congregating inside buildings. A study conducted by environmental researchers at the University of Illinois revealed that areas surrounded by significant foliage experienced 48 percent fewer property crimes and 56 percent fewer violent crimes.

Territorial reinforcement
Territorial reinforcement in landscape architecture utilizes hardscape elements or natural barriers to define public and private areas. In simpler terms, design elements are strategically used to draw a line between "my space" and "your space."

I'm used to being the helper. I love to make meals and deliver them to people when they're experiencing difficulty. I'm happy to run an errand for a friend or family member. Helping people is, simply, one of my favorite things in the whole world.

In fact, when one of my grant professional friends emailed me to see how things were going, I replied, "They're okay ... but I'm used to being the helper ... not the helpee." I didn't think that "helpee" was a word, but it became one to me.

Soon my dear friend and business partner Anne offered to bring us dinner from my favorite Thai place. Our nieces Tyffini and Jessica ordered not just lunch, but dinner for us all on the Sunday that Ron passed away. Our sons Jonathon and Jacob mowed our lawn right after we moved Ron down here so my husband wouldn't have to worry about that chore.

So many acts of kindness lifted huge burdens from our shoulders. It was such a relief.

As I reflect on these, I'm reminding myself of how I've felt in the past when someone I love is hurting and there's nothing I can do to take away their pain. That's when I go into helper mode. I may not be able to remove the pain, but I can ease it. That's what our friends and family were doing for us. It was my turn to be the helpee, and I had to wave the white flag and accept that role with humble gratitude.

Please, if you're going through a painful situation in life, don't turn away help from your family, friends, and others. They're doing it with love that they're eager to share. Let yourself be the helpee and be grateful. I certainly was.

To Matt, Cindy, Anne, Tyffini, Jessica, Jonathon, and Jacob, I offer tremendous thanks. I appreciate that you were the helpers to get us through this time in our lives.

day of school experiences: "Call me, Scott."

I explained all this to my dad – Marion II – at The Carriage Inn.

"There's nothing wrong with Marion," he said. Then, in a flash of desperation, he said, "John Wayne's real first name was Marion."

"Yea," I rebutted, "but he was so traumatized by Marion that he made people call him The Duke. Look, Dad, you tell people to call you M.J. instead of Marion, and heck, you've never even called me Marion once."

That seemed to shut down the subject.

TIME

operating expenses with the cost of upcoming projects all while keeping our reserves strong and the tax rate one of the lowest in the state.

The Regional Development Commission met to review proposals received from vendors seeking to build the new Police and Fire Training Center. Serving as a member of the approval committee, we narrowed the proposals to two finalists and set a time to meet in person for vendor interviews.

In speaking with city elected officials we need to provide them with an initial operating expense budget for the training center by the end of July to allow them time to have budget allocations made for 2025 training center operating expenses.

In addition to the County Council public meetings, April work included attending a Council caucus session, a Regional Development Commission meeting, watching a Board of Commissioners public meeting, attending a Noblesville City Council meeting, and attending a Cicero Town Council meeting.

This month, there were three constituents service requests. Usually, requests require research with a county department, securing the correct answer and then following up with the taxpayer. April's first question was regarding Veterans benefits. Next, questions regarding property taxes, assessments, and deductions. Lastly, questions regarding a property tax credit in St. Joseph County.

A constituent needed assistance in securing their spouse's veteran's disability benefits. The resolution was to connect them with the right folks in the county's Veteran's Service Office. One of the most frequent questions I get is "why are my property taxes what they are?" The question is often accompanied by a couple of adjectives. The resolution is almost always the same process. Have you appealed your assessment? Did you know that you can appeal it? Next, have you received all the deductions that you qualify for? In this case, meeting with members of the Assessor's and Auditor's teams was the resolution to their question.

I showed the constituent that because they live in the Noblesville City tax district, 47 percent of their property tax bill goes directly to the schools, 41 percent goes to City Government, 10 percent to County Government, and the remainder to the Libraries and Solid Waste.

The third request was regarding a property tax relief program implemented in St. Joseph County. The research reveals that St. Joseph County is the first county in Indiana to implement a County Option Tax Credit. Authorized by the State Legislature, a county can implement a credit for up to three years. In this case, two options offer credits based on how long a resident has lived in the home, along with age and income restrictions. It is designed to limit the property tax liability increase to two percent annually for up to three years.

This month, it was an honor to represent you at the third annual Sherriff's Chaplaincy Breakfast, and in meetings admired me for taking a stand, something I think he lacked the courage to do when I was born; hence, the existence of an actual Marion III. I only hope it goes as easy for him when he shares my decision with Marion I.

I think I'm doing the right thing. I honestly do.

But why do I feel so bad? I'm the last of the Marions. Marion III. Call me Scott.

with Noblesville Mayor Chris Jensen, Ivy Tech Chancellor Dr. Rachel Kartz, and with Noblesville Public Safety Director Chad Knecht.

This is my timesheet. This is where my time went during month 16. There are many projects in the queue for 2024, and while my job is primarily the financial oversight of the county budget, it is important to understand the Board of Commissioners' priorities and balance them with the stewardship of taxpayer dollars. That is the job, and I am excited to do the people's business.

As a taxpayer myself, and listening to so many of you, our employers, it's important for the taxpayers to have access to all the information you want. I work for you and although you may not choose to do a deep dive into what your County Council does, it's important that you can always do so.

Feel free to contact me at (317) 832-1104 or mark.hall@hamiltoncounty.in.gov with questions, feedback or if you would like to talk about county business.

Westfield Washington Public Library opens registration for summer reading program

The REPORTER

Registration for the Westfield Washington Public Library (WWPL) Summer Reading Program is now open. The eight-week program officially starts on Saturday, June 1 – the same day as the grand opening of the library's new building. All ages are encouraged to participate. "We're inviting everyone to spend more time at our new library this summer," Summer Reading Program Coordinator Sara Perry said. "Come meet new friends, cool off while reading a book, or participate in one of our hands-on activities."

Summer programming will kick off on June 1 with Feller Express' three life-size dinosaurs and traditional Mexican dance by Fuego Nuevo USA Ballet Folklorica de Indiana. A host of animal programs and science experiments are also planned for later dates as well as visits from musician Jim Gill, storyteller Professor Watermelon, and magician Daniel Lusk.

Back by popular demand, the library will host the ever-popular Whalemobile, a 43-foot-long model of a humpback whale as well as three Foam Parties. Space is limited for all programs and registration is required. Event registration can be found on the library's event page. More than 3,000 Westfield residents – kids, teens, and adults – participated in last year's Summer Reading Program. They read a total of 2,875,881 minutes. This year's goal will be three million minutes. "We hope to see everyone at the library this summer," WWPL Executive Director Sheryl Sollars said. "I think everyone will find a new favorite spot to sit and read in our new building. Plus, reading over the summer helps keep young minds sharp."

Palou cruises to back-to-back wins at Sonsio Grand Prix

SPEEDWAY — Alex Palou flew to the finish at the Sonsio Grand Prix.

The Spanish star got stronger as he got closer to the checkered flag, and that culminated in a dominant win at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway road course last Saturday. Palou won his second consecutive Grand Prix with a 6.6106-second win over 2018 champion Will Power.

“It was an amazing week,” said Palou. “It’s great to be back-to-back from last year.”

Palou stayed in contention for the entire race, although it took him until the halfway point to get in front. Most of the first half belonged to Christian Lundgaard, who led the first 18 laps before making his first pit stop. He then led Laps 23 to 39 before Palou took over on Lap 40.

Once he got the lead, Palou was unstoppable, holding the front spot for 39 laps. The fact the race was smooth helped out as well: there were only two caution laps (66 and 67) when rookie Luca Ghiotto spun on Turn 10. Palou only gave up the lead for three laps during the last third of the race when he made a pit stop on Lap 63, but he was back in front on Lap 65 and stayed there until the checkered flag.

The Grand Prix victory was the first official win of the season for Palou, and it continued an impressive streak of 23 top 10 finishes, dating back to the 2022 season. Palou has placed in the top five in all four of his INDYCAR starts this year, and is now turning his attention to the Indianapolis 500, for which practice begins early this week.

Royals claim victory at county meet, five runners earn first-place event wins

NOBLESVILLE — The Hamilton Southeastern boys track and field coach got some good answers at the Hamilton County meet, which took place last Thursday at Guerin Catholic.

The Royals picked up a solid victory at the meet, winning the team championship by the score of 151.5 points. Southeastern picked up five event wins during the chilly meet.

“Honestly, we were coming in with winning being a secondary priority,” said HSE coach Garrett Lawton. “We had some question marks in some of the distance events.”

With the sectional tournament taking place next week, Lawton said that the Royals “put some people in off events to see what they could do.” Many of them did fairly well.

Freshman Mason Schmitz was one of those athletes, as he led a 1-2 finish for Southeastern in the 400 dash. Hunter Hoeft placed second in that event. Mason Alexander was first in the 100 dash, and Ian Ross led the way in the 800 run. The Royals also got two field wins, with Josiah Bird placing first in the discus (and second in the shot put) and Blake Braden winning the long jump.

Fishers took second, totaling 110 points. The Tigers were led by their senior hurdler Tyler Tarter, who set a new record in the 110 hurdles. Tarter won that race in 13.95 seconds. He also tied the meet record in the 300 hurdles, placing first in 37.02 seconds.

Tarter was part of Fishers’ first-place 4x400 relay, joining Matthew Kim, Korte Foster and Makell Wiggins. Kim had earlier claimed the 1600 run. Fishers totaled six event wins, with Joel Gates taking the shot put (and finished second in the discus). Joe Syrus, Carsen Eloms, JonAnthony Hall and Tristan Capps teamed up for a 4x100 relay victory.

Carmel placed third with 108 points. The Greyhounds got two event wins, starting with Gabriel LaBoyteaux winning the 200 dash. Anthony Provenzano followed that with a historic victory in the 3200 run: Provenzano’s time of 9 minutes, 1.75 seconds set a new meet record. The old record, 9:03.30 was set by Bill Shuey back in 1980.

Westfield finished fourth with 91.5 points; Robert Campbell claimed the high jump for the Shamrocks.

Noblesville placed fifth by scoring 86.5 points; the Millers started the meet with Sam Rinker, Jack Shinneman, Jude Naville and Jack Strong winning the 4x800 relay.

Hamilton Heights scored 33.5 points. Peyton McQuinn won the pole vault. Ben Grissom led Guerin Catholic with a fourth-place finish in the 800 run, while Sheridan’s Damon Winston tied for second place in the high jump.

PALOU

“We’re going to celebrate, for sure, but we’re going to switch this afternoon our focus to the big one,” said Palou.

Will Power finished in second place, while Christian Lundgaard finished out the podium with a third-place finish. For Power, it was the 2018 Indy 500 winner’s third runner-up finish of the INDYCAR season, and he called it “a very solid day for us.”

“Just didn’t quite have enough in the re-start,” said Power. After Ghiotto’s spin brought out the yellow flag, Power was in second to Palou, but the eventual champion steadily increased his lead over Power for the remainder of the race.

Lundgaard, the 22-year-old Danish driver who is competing in his third full INDYCAR campaign, said he was disappointed to finish third after leading so many laps in the first half of the race. But it was his best result of the season and his highest place since winning the Indy Toronto race last July.

“We needed a little luck today,” said Lundgaard. “I think we did everything we Veteran Scott Dixon placed fourth in the race, while young New Zealand driver Marcus Armstrong was fifth, his best official finish in an INDYCAR race. The 23-year-old is in his second full season on the circuit.

Southeastern hires Drew Tower as new co-athletic director

The REPORTER

Drew Tower has been hired as one of the co-athletic directors at Hamilton Southeastern High School. Tower's hiring was approved at the Hamilton Southeastern Schools board meeting last Wednesday night. Tower comes from Brownsburg High School, where he had been the Bulldogs' athletic director since the 2018-19 school year. Tower is a 2007 graduate of New Castle High School, then graduated from Taylor University in 2011 with a bachelor's degree in biology before earning a master's degree in educational leadership from Ball State University in 2018. He was an assistant coach for the Taylor men's basketball team from 2011-13 and a Brownsburg assistant coach from 2013 to 2016. Tower replaces Greg Habegger, who is retiring after 19 years as an HSE athletic director and a 34-year run at Southeastern. Habegger and Jim Self have been co-athletic directors at HSE since 2006. "I could not be more excited to work alongside Drew Tower," said Self. "I have been blessed to work with Greg Habegger for the last 19 years. Greg is first class! Drew is impressive and he is going to be a great fit in the culture of HSE Athletics."

UIndy Greyhounds qualify for nationals

With encouragement from family & friends, Noblesville's own Caroline Whallon finishes in top 30

CARMEL — The NCAA Division II East Regional ended in a tough way for the University of Indianapolis women's golf team, but in the big picture, the Greyhounds have much to celebrate.

UIndy was battling with Findlay University last Wednesday at Prairie View Golf Club in Carmel for the regional championship. The two teams finished the third round tied, with both totaling scores of 905 after 54 holes of golf. The championship was decided by a one-hole playoff, which Findlay won.

"It feels great," said Greyhounds freshman and Noblesville graduate Caroline Whallon. "Definitely it's a tough ending, so it's putting a sour taste on it. But, waking up tomorrow, overall it's going to be a really good feeling knowing that in two weeks we'll be back in Florida for nationals."

Whallon finished her third round with a 79, giving her a score of 234 for the tournament. She made three birdies during her last 18 holes, which gave her a total of six for the entire event.

"It was just getting the ball in the hole," said Whallon. "At the end of the day, keeping it simple."

Whallon tied for 23rd individually, one of four Greyhounds players in the top 30. Anci Dy led UIndy by tying for third; her total score was 226. Matilda Cederholm finished tied for 11th with 231; that included a hole in one during her third round. Jess Haines tied for 29th with 236.

Macey Brown totaled an 82 for the first day, then Ava Ray subbed in for the tournament's last two days. She scored a 72-74=146.

Since Prairie View is right down the road from Noblesville, Whallon had neighbors and friends, in addition to family, out there to cheer her on.

"They were able to come watch and support, which meant a lot to me," said Whallon.

place May 21 to 25 at the Orange County National Golf Center and Lodge in Winter Garden, Fla., a suburb of Orlando. The team took the day off after finishing at the regional, but will be getting back to practice soon.

"I think we're going to ease our way back into practice, but we're going to practice hard, practice a little bit of everything to make sure we'll be ready," said Whallon.

Cool experience

Whallon was a state qualifier for the Millers all four years of high school, so she is very familiar with the Prairie View course.

"It's definitely a very cool experience as a freshman, very exciting to be able to play at that level," said Whallon. "And it's a whole new level, different kind of stress and emotion, but it's also really fun and a really cool experience to be a part of."

Whallon played four tournaments during the fall season, with a best finish of T17 at the William Beall Fall Classic. In the spring season, Whallon has played five events and put together some nice results. She has three top 10 finishes to her credit, including a second-place result at the NC4K Classic on April 8 and 9 in Grove City, Ohio. Whallon followed that up by tying for fourth at the UMSL Spring Invitational the next week in St. Louis.

"There's definitely pressure that comes with it," said Whallon of playing in the top five. "We have a really good group of girls on this team that we're all fighting for a spot," said Whallon. "Having a chance to play top five definitely means a lot. You've earned your spot. It doesn't come without a fight." While there is pressure, Whallon said "there's also moments where you can trust your teammates."

And of course, Whallon had to balance golf with her academics. She is majoring in public health with a minor in business administration.

"It's been a balance, but this season has so far been a big learning experience, and I'm excited for next season," said Whallon.

Hometown Hero: Westfield's Cesare helps

Ball State to first MAC men's title in 38 years

WESTFIELD — With a little help from the hometown favorite, the Ball State University men's golf team ended a long championship drought.

The Cardinals claimed the Mid-American Conference (MAC) championship, completing the third round of play on April 28 at The Club at Chatham Hills. Ball State finished the event with a three-day total of 283-280-291=854, five strokes ahead of the runner-up, Miami University of Ohio.

It was the first time in 38 years that the Cardinals were MAC champions. Their last title came in 1986.

"It feels great," said BSU coach Mike Fleck. "We've had historically some great programs over the years, even in those last 30 years."

The Cardinals played consistently throughout the event, with four players finishing in the top 11. That includes the man who finished eighth, freshman Alec Cesare. The Westfield graduate had a large group of fans following him during the event, and he delivered with a two under par 70 on the final day of the tournament.

Cesare made two huge birdies on the third and fourth holes during play on Sunday, April 28. He chipped in from the bunker to make a birdie on No. 3, then placed his second shot just inches from the No. 4 hole for an easy tap-in birdie.

"Massive, massive chip-in on 3, and then unreal shot on 4 to a couple inches, tap in and then that gave me a lot of momentum going forward," said Cesare.

Cesare finished with four birdies for his round, also making them on Nos. 7 and 13. He also made a clutch putt on the 18th hole to preserve a par.

"I played phenomenal," said Cesare. "It was a grind. It was super hard out there with the wind and the conditions. I battled all day. That putt on 18 was a must-make, just knowing where we were."

"Alec's a competitor and he loves the competition," said Fleck. "He loves the challenge. I think one of the unique things about Alec is, when he does gets out of his comfort zone a little bit, he doesn't back away from the challenge that's out there in front of him He did a great job this week."

Cesare was also happy to see his friends, former teammates and coaches out there walking along with him during the tournament's three days.

"It was super cool and I fed off their energy today," said Cesare. "And I couldn't be more grateful and thankful for their support."

Ali Khan and Kash Belar both finished the tournament with four under par 212s, placing them on the All-MAC team. Cesare totaled a two under par 214 for the event, then Carter Smith was an event 216, placing him 11th. Braxton Kuntz tied for 29th with 226.

In addition to winning the MAC, Ball State qualified for the NCAA regionals with the conference-tournament victory. The Cardinals will be one of 13 teams that will play in the Chapel Hill Regional, which takes place at the University of North Carolina Finley Golf Course in Chapel Hill. There are six regionals across the country, and play takes place this week from Monday to Wednesday. The top five teams at each regional advance to the national championship, which takes place May 24 to 29 in Carlsbad, Calif.

Indy AlleyCats never trail, leave Mechanics broken down at Grand Park

The REPORTER

The Indianapolis AlleyCats got their 2024 AUDL season underway last Saturday by beating the Detroit Mechanics 25-16 at Grand Park Events Center.

The AlleyCats never trailed in the game, outscoring the Mechanics in each of the four quarters. Cameron Brock led the scoring for Indianapolis with four goals, while Levi Jacobs and Seth Gudeman both had three goals. Xavier Payne dished out four assists, with Jeremiah Branson and Rick Gross both handing out three assists. Payne, William Wettenge, Nick Hutton and Gudeman all had two blocks.

Second-year AlleyCats coach Drew Shepard said his team needed to "kick the rust off, come out here and kick some butt. By the end of the game, we were doing that, so I'm pleased."

The Cats host Atlanta this Saturday, May 18 at 6:30 p.m. for their "Back to the Future" game.
