happens gradually but seems to go by so quickly. We grow and get a little older and wiser. Well, definitely older. The wiser part doesn't necessarily come for all people, but that's another column for another day. It seems like yesterday I was a 20-something who could stay up late and do all the sometimes fun, sometimes stupid things that people do at that age. Somewhere along the way, I acquired more responsibility (i.e., wife, kids, dogs, house, good job) and became a 40-something.

This is by no means a complaint. I much prefer my 40s to my 20s. I don't often look back on my "glory days" because as far as I'm concerned, I'm living them now. But there is no doubt I was a very different person back then.

In my 20s I went to all the parties, sporting events, reunions, and gatherings. I'd say I was considered to be what some call a "social butterfly." However, since I'm a knuckle dragging, chest beating man, I'd prefer to be called a "social dragonfly." Or maybe more like a "social 007-hulk-skywalker-superfly."

Nowadays I consider myself to be more of a "social hermit crab."

In my extensive, top-of-page-one Google search, I found that hermit crabs are not true crabs; they are a type of decapod crustacean more closely related to squat lobsters and porcelain crabs, belonging to the infraorder Anomura, while true crabs belong to the infraorder Brachyura (thank you, AI Overview!).

While I have no clue what that means, or even how to pronounce half of it, I believe what it's telling me is that hermit crabs are crabs that have grown older and wiser and no longer like large crowds, which is exactly what I've become.

Easter fun with Nickel Plate Express

Make like a bunny & hop aboard for

The REPORTER

Families looking for a springtime outing will find a unique and memorable experience aboard the Easter Express and Bunny Brunch trains departing from Hobbs Station this April.

Presented by Nickel Plate Express, these themed rides offer an Easter experience complete with an onboard storyline, treats and a visit with the Easter Bunny. During the 75-minute Easter Express, passengers help the conductor track down 2, and 4 p.m. Farmer Brown, a mischievous stowaway looking for his missing eggs. Along the way, kids receive complimentary "bunny juice" lemonade and bunny grahams, with activity sheets and interactive moments throughout the ride.

The Easter Express travels along the historic Nickel Plate Railroad through Cicero and Arcadia, crossing Morse Reservoir before returning to Hobbs Station in Noblesville. Train rides are scheduled for: • Saturday, April 12: noon,

Tipton receives $10K Teaching Artist Residency grant

Submitted by City of Tipton

The City of Tipton has been awarded a $10,000 Creative Convergence Action Grant from the Indiana Arts Commission to support its Teaching Artist in Residence program.

The initiative, organized by the recently established Tipton Public Arts Commission (TPAC), will bring a professional artist to engage with the community through workshops, presentations and creative activities.

Schmicker

"This grant provides a tremendous opportunity to enhance our community through the arts," Mayor Kegan Schmicker said. "The Teaching Artist in Residence program aligns perfectly with our goals of bringing people together across generations while fostering creative expression in Tipton."

The Creative Convergence Action Grant program, developed in partnership with the Indiana Communities Institute of Ball State University, supports projects that embed arts and creativity in community and economic planning. Launched in 2024, the program emerged from research showing Indiana municipalities needed support in leveraging the creative sector to

Deep breathing: the key to less stress & better living

"He lives most life whoever breathes most air." - Elizabeth Barrett Browning In our ever-present 24hour news cycle, it is often difficult to remove ourselves from the stresses of it all.

The next time you feel stressed or anxious, pay attention to your breathing. Chances are when negative emotions run high, your breaths become short and shallow. In fact, I would bet that many of us rarely take more than a couple deep breaths during an entire day, even when we're not feeling stressed (and when is that?). And if you're not taking deep breaths, you could be missing out on one of the simplest ways to drastically improve your health.

Stress management is an important key for improving your health and quality of living, and I believe deep breathing exercises are a foundational principle of ing out the juices (namely adrenaline and cortisol) that fuel this response.

pump-

So, what exactly do deep breathing exercises do for you? When you learn to take deep, slow breaths, your body reacts in many positive ways:

#1 - Your muscles relax. You'll find it's hard to maintain a lot of physical tension when breathing properly.

#2 – Oxygen delivery improves. When you breathe deeply and you are relaxed, fresh oxygen pours into every cell in the body. This increases the functionality of every system in the body. You will also notice improved mental concentra-

managing life's tion and physical stamina.

3 – Your blood presexperience sure lowers. As your muscles let go of tension, your blood vessels dilate and vour blood pressure can return to a normal level.

#4 - Endorphins are released. Deep breathing triggers the release of endorphins, which improves feelings of well-being and provides pain-relief.

#5 – Detoxification improves. Good breathing habits help the lymphatic system function properly; this encourages the release of harmful toxins which cleanses the body to be more productive.

Deep breathing exercises are very easy to do if you take the time to do them properly. Here is a basic routine that will help you learn the ropes of deep breathing:

1. Lie down in a comfortable, quiet place. Allow yourself to be free from distractions for at least five to 10 minutes.

2. Inhale deeply, filling your lungs with air. Bring fitness activity.

the air into your abdomen, not just your chest. Count slowly to five as you inhale.

3. Exhale deeply, emptying your lungs completely. Again, count slowly to five as you exhale. As you exhale, release tension from your muscles.

4. Continue to inhale and exhale deeply for several minutes, counting slowly to five each time. Concentrate on your breathing and counting. Let your mind take a break from distractions.

Try and do this exercise (or something similar) at least once a day. During anxious times we need to rely on coping mechanisms which are healthy and beneficial to our bodies and our minds.

Trump tariff strategy By TIM SPEARS WISH-TV | wishtv.com

wants clarity on

Sen. Todd Young, R-Indiana, wants to see the Trump administration clarify its strategy on tariffs.

News 8 reached out to Young on the heels of last week's large stock market sell-off, following President Donald Trump's sweeping new tariffs on foreign goods.

Young said he agrees America needs to "push back" against other countries' trade activity, but said in a statement tariffs "also carry downside risk if applied without a clear strategy – especially for Hoosier farmers and manufacturers who need certainty. I've consistently emphasized the need for greater clarity in our trade approach so that those directly affected aren't left in the dark."

On Sunday, Trump made clear to reporters aboard Air Force One that he has no plans of changing course on his tariff strategy, saying, "Sometimes you have to take medicine to fix something."

"I spoke to a lot of leaders, European, Asian, from all over the world," Trump said. "They're dying to make a deal. And I said, we're not going to have deficits with your country. We're not going to do that, because to me a deficit is a loss. We're going to have surpluses or at worst, going to be breaking even."

Trump claimed the new tariffs are already creating significant revenue for the U.S., and the trade pressure has brought European countries to the negotiating table for new trade agreements.

When asked, Congressman Rudy Yakym, R-Indiana, wouldn't directly comment on the market's reaction to tariffs, but told News 8 in an email he's in close contact with Indiana businesses and White House officials.

"I look forward to passing pro-growth policies that increase manufacturing and jobs to ensure our shared goal of a level playing field," Yakym said.

In an interview for All Indiana Politics, U.S. Rep. André Carson, D-Indiana, criticized the impact tariffs will have on consumers, saying, "Even Trump supporters disapprove of tariffs because we know they're only going to drive up costs."

Business groups, including the National Retail Federation, assert the cost of tariffs will be passed along to U.S. shoppers, not foreign countries or companies.

Young wants to see a legislative strategy compliment the new tariffs.

"I've pushed for my Leveling the Plaving Field 2.0 Act, which offers a targeted and enforceable approach to addressing unfair trade with greater predictability," Young told News 8. "My hope is that these efforts - both the strategic pressure of tariffs and the enforcement tools in my legislation - can lead to negotiated outcomes that strengthen America's position on trade and the economic prosperity of our country."

Kindness in crisis: how generosity shines in today's world

With kindness often in short supply in our polarized world, generosity shines brightly. Anonymous generosity shines even brighter.

This month, the number of neighbor gifts has been nothing short of amazing. Thank you. Our mission would be impossible without your volunteerism and continued pantry donations.

Recently, a new corporate food donor, South Atlantic Packaging, connected with a Feeding Team volunteer offering a donation of popcorn, water, and pancake syrup. Two of our folks made an appointment to meet the donor at his business along with our friends from Gaylor Electric, who graciously provide truck transportation and logistics support for the Feeding Team.

Setting the scene, they arrive to discover that this was not a normal donation. Upon arriving the team learned that this was 17 pallets of food.

Yes, 17!

Each pallet held 400 items for a total of 6,800 individual food items. Thank goodness Gaylor brought a pallet jack, or we never would have been able to load and unload this much food. Fast forward a couple of hours and amazing volunteers had unpacked and moved 10 pallets of food, or 4,000 items. There were large boxes of food in the box truck, in the shed, in the trailer and in the offices. Oh, and seven pallets still outside tarped up for overnight protection.

The next day, volunteers descended on the 2,800 remaining items, scurrying around to get the pallets cleared and the food stored as a storm approached. The

In a day and age when many corporations only worry about their ROI, I am happy to write about companies that worry about neighbors, too. They took extra products and put them into The Feeding Team model to serve hungry neighbors in central Indiana.

These are wonderful reports, and they offset an unfortunate truth: food charities sometimes have to get through people's greed in order to get to other people's need. We have learned to take the good with the bad. On the same day we celebrate the people who made the magic of the day happen, SUV lady showed up. That is what we call her. SUV lady. She and her partner come to our pantry once or twice a week and clean it out. We have spoken with her a few times when she engages with a volunteer. SUV lady knows that the pantries are there to provide a few meals for many people, not many meals just for her people. Yet, she proceeds to take and take, even giving the security camera at the offices the joy of a middle finger salute.

These are the challenges of an honor system food pantry. There are some people to whom honor does not matter.

It's Orville Redenbacher's dream come true ... 7,000 bags of popcorn!

Undaunted, we proceed celebrating the wins and people's generosity. We celebrate getting through greed to needs. We have learned over the years that for every SUV lady, there are many families who respect the model, take what they need, feed their families, and often return later to give back some of what they have.

Generosity shines brightly here in our neck of the woods.

Students encouraged to apply for STAR Bank's 'Future of Agriculture' scholarship

The REPORTER

With less than two weeks remaining until the deadline, STAR Financial Bank is reminding eligible students to apply for the fourth annual Future of Agriculture college scholarship - part of its ongoing commitment to support the next generation of agricultural leaders.

STAR will award five Indiana students a $1,000 scholarship to apply toward their post-secondary education. Students passionate about agriculture and wanting to make a difference in the industry are strongly encouraged to apply.

To qualify, applicants must meet one of the following criteria:

• Be a high school senior planning to enter a trade or collegiate program within two years of earning the scholarship.

• Be currently enrolled in college or trade school with at least one year remaining in their program as of Fall 2025.

Applicants must complete the online application form on STAR Bank's website and submit a 250word essay. This year's essay question asks: "How do you plan to impact agriculture as it pertains to the past, current or future generations of farmers?"

The deadline to submit applications is Monday, April 21. The contest is open to students who reside or attend school in one of the following Indiana counties: Allen, Blackford, visit starfinancial.com.

Boone, DeKalb, Delaware, Grant, Hamilton, Hancock, Henry, Huntington, Howard, Jay, Madison, Marion, Noble, Randolph, Steuben, Tipton, Whitley, or Wells.

Submissions will be reviewed and judged by a panel of STAR Agricultural Banking representatives and winners will be selected and notified in May 2025. Since its inception, the Future of Agriculture scholarship program has provided 15 scholarships to students across Indiana.

"At STAR, we recognize the vital role agriculture plays in our state's economy and communities," STAR Bank Senior Commercial Banker Chris Stark said. "By supporting students who are passionate about agriculture, we're investing in their futures and in the future of an industry that sustains us all. This scholarship reflects our commitment to fostering growth, innovation, and leadership in agriculture across Indiana."

Connection Pointe Christian Church expands into Carmel

New location set to open Easter Sunday

Submitted

Connection Pointe Church Christian will launch its newest location in Carmel, opening on Easter Sunday, April 20. This expansion reflects Connection Pointe's commitment to bringing hope, encouragement, and life transformation to the growing community and beyond.

Located at 2599 E. 98th St., this new Carmel location will have two services available for attendees to join. Connection Pointe is finalizing its new renovations for the Grand Opening. The facility is an existing building previously owned by Lighthouse Tabernacle, which will continue to meet at the location for a period.

Chris Maloney will serve as the Location Pastor for Connection Pointe Carmel. helping to foster a welcoming and engaging environment for all who attend. The church believes this new site is a strategic step in reaching a rapidly growing area, making it easier for guests who have been traveling from Brownsburg and Fishers to connect closer to home while also welcoming new members from Carmel and surrounding communities.

"There are some amazing churches in the Carmel area, but the growth of the population is far outpacing the growth of the church," Lead Pastor John S. Dickerson said. "Our hope is to be a place of deep spiritual growth and quality Bible teaching for anyone who is seeking a healthy church home or reaching out for God."

The launch of the Carmel location aligns with Connection Pointe's mission by providing real and lasting change through impactful worship, encouraging messages of hope, practical life application, and deep spiritual growth. With existing locations in Brownsburg, Avon, and Fishers, this new expansion marks another step in the church's ongoing efforts to reach more people with the love of Christ. For more information about service times and upcoming events, please visit connectionpointe.org or follow Connection Pointe on social media.

About Connection Pointe Christian Church

Connection Pointe Christian Church is a local church with locations across central Indiana dedicated to helping people find and follow Jesus. Connection Pointe exists to connect people to Jesus and each other. With this simple and impactful focus, everything the church does is aimed at helping each person live the full life for which God cregone all-in to help them find their identity in Christ and to create environments where they experience unconditional love in the church. Connection Pointe members give their lives, fortunes, and prayers so that their kids will live in spiritual freedom, follow God's Word, and outdo their parents in changing the world for Jesus. Through community outreach, discipleship, and meaningful worship, Connection Pointe creates environments where individuals and families can grow in faith and experience God's transforming power.

Opinion & News

Humor (and murder) just took a bit longer in the '50s

Spider's Web premiered in London's West End on Dec. 14, 1954, and ran for an impressive 744 performances. It remains Agatha Christie's second longest-running play, after The Mousetrap.

The long-form three act play is a departure for Ms. Christie in some ways. It was originally conceived and produced as a theatre piece (not a mystery novel) for her friend, actress Margaret Lockwood. It was styled for the stage as a "comedy thriller." Its detective character isn't a famous faultless sleuth, but a sometimes misdirected and confused mortal. Still, there are plenty of broad and subtle clues and numerous red herrings to chew on in the tale.

For the Main Street Productions' offering, director Jan Jamison has collected a very well-fitting cast of local actors and actresses for the task. All are capable of playing Brits with apt affectations and accents. They roll through the meandering script with jolly-good senses of their adopted nationality, placing the story in a believable arena.

Phoebe Aldridge takes the role of Clarissa Hailsham-Brown, the mistress at Copplestone Court. Clarissa is a perky young woman who, due to a penchant for exaggeration, is often disbelieved by her friends and tangled plot. Alongside her for the adventure are a trio of gents

- Syd Loomis as Clarissa's former guardian Sir Roland Delahaye, Jim Simmons as local Justice of the Peace Hugh Birch, and Jeff Haber as the young and seemingly carefree Jeremy Warrender. All three do fine work with their roles; in fact, Loomis and Haber impressed me with the best efforts I have seen from either of them, while Simmons delivers his usual sharp effort.

In smaller roles, seventh-grader Ava McKee as Clarissa's stepdaughter Pippa shows great promise with her solid portrayal, Thom Johnson manages to get all the humor he can from his role as butler Elgin, Matt McKee is aptly despicable as the villainous Oliver Costello, Kevin Caraher is effective as Clarissa's husband Henry, and Erin Chandler is quietly engaging as Constable Jones.

Molly Kraus brings an energetic comedic touch to the family gardener, Mildred Peake, giving the lady a humorous extravagance. Larry Adams does admirable work as the not-always-on-topof-things Inspector Lord, doing his best to solve the I) simply cannot understand confusing circumstances the the words being said. inspector is presented with.

As I have indicated, the cast overall does a fine job with the Britishness of the characters they are charged with. My single negative note would be one I seem to consistently offer - enunciation. Doing an accent is a challenge for many actors almost like speaking a new language. Part of the work of creating the effect has to be detailing one's pronunciation so as to be understood. Actors Caraher, Loomis, Simmons, Kraus, and Adams all have this skill down pat. The rest lose some of their effective story telling at times because we (both Mrs. K and by Tessa Gibbons. Bottom line: This is an overall fun romp, albeit drawn out in 1950s style. The story itself is indeed a web, and my suggestion to those who plan to attend would be to read the synopses of Acts 1 and 2 in the play's Wikipedia entry. (Leave Act 3 out if you want to avoid the spoilers.)

Big Tobacco doesn't stand a chance against these kids with cameras

The REPORTER

VOICE, Indiana's statewide youth empowerment movement, is turning up the volume on youth activism by intersecting art and commercial tobacco control through a statewide initiative.

This statewide project harnesses the power of creative expression to expose the harmful influence of Big Tobacco on Indiana youth. The initiative mobilizes local VOICE Action Squads across the state to challenge tobacco industry tactics through storytelling, art, and advocacy.

This nine-month project, designed by VOICE Youth Ambassadors, will culminate in the premiere of a powerful short film and art show from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday, April 12 at the Phoenix Theater Cultural Centre, 705 N. Illinois St., Indianapolis.

Sunjana Malineni, a senior at Hamilton Southeastern High School, is a statewide VOICE Youth Ambassador, and she has been involved with this project since its inception. Local VOICE youth from across Hamilton County will be in attendance.

The project included:

• A Storytelling Project for Red Ribbon Week: a collection of personal stories from youth struggling with addiction and those committed to a tobacco-free lifestyle.

• A Day of Action at the Indiana Statehouse: collected commitment cards of why VOICE members are inspired to do this work.

• Artivism Campaign: a creative movement utilizing visual arts, video, and music to challenge the normalization of tobacco and vaping in communities.

'Combining art and activism is a powerful way to reach our youth and remind them of the devastating effects of tobacco and nicotine addiction," VOICE Hamilton County Youth Coordinator Erica Strahm said. "It also gives the youth creating the art a unique, positive way to express their passion for tobacco prevention and advocacy. This project has received support on a local, state, and national level, and we couldn't be more grateful."

At the national level, the Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids offered collaboration with its popular Take Down Tobacco initiative to help promote the premiere and also provided support through event sponsorship.

About VOICE

VOICE is Indiana's youth empowerment movement dedicated to educating and mobilizing teens to lead tobacco-free lifestyles. With 19 county-based chapters and partnerships with Indiana Black Expo and Indiana Latino Institute, VOICE equips youth leaders with the tools to create meaningful change in their communities through peer education and activism.

Not so happily ever after

By DANIEL SHOCK A Seat on the Aisle

I've seen Into the Woods before. I know the songs, the twists, the overlapping fairytales. But somehow, this production by Epsilon Theatrical Company - performed in the lower level of Broadway United Methodist Church – hit me like I was seeing it for the first time. And perhaps in a way, I was.

Director Jayson Elliott has delivered a production that honors the adult themes lurking just beneath the fairytale surface, and this cast he put together leans into them with honesty and heart

If you have never taken the journey, Into the Woods – with music and lyrics by Stephen Sondheim and a book by James Lapine – weaves characters from classic fairytales: Cinderella, Jack (the one with the beanstalk), Little Red Riding Hood, Rapunzel, and others, into an original story of a childless Baker and his Wife. Act I follows the familiar quests of these characters as they try to get their wishes granted. Act II reveals what happens after "happily ever after." The hard truth is, it's not always happy.

The first act plays like a familiar bedtime story-witty, musical, and full of wish fulfillment. But the second act turns inward, asking harder questions: What happens after we get what we want? What do we lose along the way? In this structure, Sondheim and Lapine give us a mirrored tale – first joy, then consequence; first magic, then meaning. It's a show that forces its characters - and its audience - to grow up, reckon with loss, and find community in the rubble. This production understands that arc deeply, and embraces both the whimsy and the weight.

with me most viscerally was unquestionably Cinderella, played with crystalline tone and aching vulnerability by Allison Williamson. Her voice was clear as a bell, her intonation was spot on, and when she sang "Mother isn't here now" in the penetrating "No One Is Alone," I found myself sobbing. It has been just over three years since my own mother passed, and that lyric – so simple, so gentle – pierced right through me. That moment alone was worth the price of admission.

As the Baker, Eric Thompson gave a deeply human performance. He didn't hit every note perfectly – but he hit what mattered. His anguish, especially in "No More," sung to the memory of his absent father (played by Chase Cornelius as the Mysterious Man), felt raw and relatable. You could see the weight of generational pain pressing on him, and hear his plea for clarity in a world that offers none.

Alyssa Linville's Baker's Wife was equally compelling. She is a character who can easily become a trope – defined only by her marriage, literally named for it – but this actor made her real. She played her desires, her temptations, and her underlying kindness with conviction. The performance didn't demand perfection - it asked for empathy, and earned it. She captured that human struggle between temptation and duty, freedom and fidelity, with heartbreaking reality.

Shawn Hunt (Cinderella's Prince) and Peyton Rader (Rapunzel's Prince) delivered consistent comedic charm. Their synchronized bravado in "Agony" and its reprise was hilariously self-absorbed and physically well-executed. They strutted with gallant absurdity, poking fun at the dramatic, puffed-up masculinity of storybook heroes.

The supporting cast was strong throughout: Isaiah Owens (Jack) brought youthful energy and vulnerability to "Giants in the Sky," Brynn Dunlap (Little Red Riding Hood) was sharp and witty, and Aleah Mutchman (Narrator) kept the story flowing with clarity and poise. Cami Zook as the Witch balanced comedy, menace, and maternal heartbreak with skill - particularly in "Last Midnight" and the final "Children Will Listen."

Elliana Rowls gave Milky White real personality, using movement and expression to make the cow feel sweet, sad, and even funny. The birds, brought to life with finger puppets, fluttered and flew with graceful motion. It was a small but magical detail that added to the charm of the show.

The church itself added to the immersion. The basement of Broadway United Methodist feels less like a traditional stage and more like the echoing hall of a kingdom. Framed by trees, a castle tower, and natural greenery, the set (designed by N. Scott Gibbons) cleverly used space and layers to suggest both intimacy and vastness. Lighting design by Mike Cowper and Daniel Oblak elevated the mood throughout, shifting reflect emotional turns and changes in setting as the characters journeyed deeper into the woods. Tim Reed's musical direction deserves praise. The music of Sondheim is famously complex, but under his guidance, the cast stayed connected and expressive, even when the notes tested their limits.

What lingered with me after the final chord wasn't just the quality of the production, but the way the themes landed differently than they ever have before. Perhaps it's age. Perhaps it's loss. Perhaps it's that I, like many, have lived enough life now to understand that wishes come with consequences - and that the real growth happens after the storybook ending. As Sondheim writes: "Witches can be right, giants can be good. You decide what's right."

Elliott's director's note calls Into the Woods "a journey into the heart of human desires and the often-unforeseen consequences that follow." This production lives up to that mission – and then some. It's heartfelt, funny, poignant, and, yes - adult. Strongly recommended.

Remaining performances of Into the Woods run April 10 to 13 at Broadway United Methodist Church

On Monday, The Daily Telegraph in the United Kingdom published an article with a headline that Congresswoman Victoria Spartz says intentionally misrepresents her position on Ukraine.

According to Spartz, the headline was "used by the Zelensky propaganda machine to smear" both her and President Donald Trump.

Spartz said the article used quotation marks to make it appear she said something she never actually said. After several interactions with Spartz's team, The Daily Telegraph deleted the quotes but still kept a colon to make an appearance of this false statement.

Congresswoman Spartz issued the following statement to clarify her current position on Ukraine:

WISH-TV | wishtv.com

Indiana Lt. Gov. Micah Beckwith showed support for President Donald Trump and Elon Musk with a Cybertruck in his parking spot at the Statehouse.

On the Cybertruck's windshield is a message saying, "Thank you, Presifor all you're doing for our nation! - Lt. Governor Beckwith."

News 8 reached out to Beckwith's office to learn ly published by WISH-TV if the Cybertruck is state property and if it was purchased with taxpayer funds, but they only commented on Beckwith's support for Trump and Musk.

"The Lt. Governor wants to show President Trump and Elon Musk that Hoosiers support everything they're doing," Beckwith's office said. "The 2025 Cyber Truck has a starting MSRP of $82,235 according to Car and Driver."

Beckwith recently faced criticism during a heated town hall in Franklin on March 31.

Marie Thérèse (Grether) Miller June 12, 1936 – March 30, 2025

Marie Thérèse (Grether) Miller passed away peacefully in her sleep on March 30, 2025, in Carmel. She was born in Montreal, Canada, in 1936, and was adopted by her loving parents, Paul and Germaine Grether, who brought her to her new home in St. Louis, Mo.

A lifelong Catholic, Thérèse graduated from Fontbonne College and began her career as an elementary school teacher. In 1959, she married Karl Miller, and they moved to Kokomo, Ind., where they started their lives and family together.

In her 50s, Marie returned to graduate school to earn her master's degree in counseling and later opened a private practice. Though she may not have called herself a feminist, she raised her three daughters to be independent, strong, and true to themselves.

Thérèse and Karl were married for 65 years, spending time in New Orleans, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Florida before ultimately returning to Indiana in 2023. No matter where they lived, Thérèse poured her heart into creating a loving home. For more than 50 years, the family gathered every Christmas Eve, celebrating together and enjoying the traditions she lovingly created.

She loved gardening, tending her flowers, and creating a sanctuary for birds - filling her yard with blooms, feeders, and birdbaths. Her idea of a perfect Mother's Day was a fresh delivery of compost and a day spent preparing her garden beds. Thérèse and Karl loved golf, building a community of friends across courses in Indiana and Florida. Thérèse never met a dog she didn't like or a person she wasn't interested in learning more about.

But above all else, Thérèse loved her family. In her final years, she was rarely more than an arm's length from her husband Karl.

She is survived by her daughters, Christiane Miller (Charles Petty), Karen Demerly (Danielle and Jared Schafer), and Kathy Moon (Tyler Moon; Nathan and Olivia Moon; Jessica Moon and Jake Treida). She was especially delighted to meet her first great-grandchild, Jack Karl Schafer, just months before her passing. She is also survived by her nephews, Dale Miller (Marilyn), Alan Miller (Kathy), and their families.

Thérèse's family gathered in Carmel on April 4, 2025, to honor her life, sharing memories and stories over some of her favorite foods. If you would like to celebrate Thérèse's life as well, then somewhere along the way: say a prayer or two, put on your soft clothes, pour yourself a generous glass of wine, and at the next family cookout, when no one is looking, slip a hamburger or hot dog under the table to your favorite dog.

Rocky Lynn Burgan

January 26, 1957 – February 19, 2025

Rocky Lynn Burgan, 68, Madison, Ind., formerly of Sheridan, passed away unexpectedly at his home, on Wednesday, February 19, 2025. Born on January 26, 1957, in Noblesville, he was the son of the late Tinley O. and Luette (Ewing) Burgan. He attended Calvary Baptist Church of Madison.

After graduating from Sheridan High School with the Class of 1976, Rocky hired on with Biddle Manufacturing in Sheridan. He later left the company to take a position with the Town of Sheridan. His official role was with the Street Department, but his duties involved a little bit of everything. Rocky was always willing to pitch in to keep things running smoothly, learning as he worked. Eventually, he became a Supervisor, and was one of the people who knew the infrastructure of Sheridan like the back of his hand. He helped with the installation of sewer lines, had a hand in addressing water leaks, took care of the streets, and anything else that needed to be done around town. If you wanted to know the ins and outs of how things were laid out in town, Rocky could show you. He retired from the town of Sheridan in 2013. Tinkering with things was just a way of life for Rocky. Be it cars, lawnmowers, or equipment for the town, he loved messing around with things. This (and his love of old cars) eventually led him to one of his normal haunts: the body shop uptown. He loved hanging out with Scotty and whoever else happened to wander in. You wouldn't know it at first, but Rocky was, in his own way, a social butterfly. He never met a stranger and seemed to be able to carry on a conversation with anybody. Whether it was up at Scotty's, over at Midwest Grill, catching a catnap behind the old Stafford place, cruising around town in the convertible, standing at an auction looking for a deal, or just stopped (in his work truck) in the middle of one of the streets in town, if someone wanted to shoot the breeze with Rocky, right now was as good a time as any. In later years, after moving to Madison, social media became his "lifeline" for keeping up with everybody back in Sheridan. For Rocky, there was nothing he loved more than his family. His nieces and nephews were everything to him. He loved following their adventures and spending as much time with them as he could. He also loved spending time with the rest of the family as well. One of his favorite exploits in recent years was a trip he took down to Pennington Gap, Va. (organized by his brother, Rick) for a "family reunion" to "re-connect" with their family members in the local cemeteries. Rocky enjoyed traveling (especially with family) just as much as he loved sitting around with family and visiting. He enjoyed his many trips out to Las Vegas, and loved finding good places to eat, wherever he happened to be. He was a kind and gracious man who was always willing to help anyone in need. His smile and his infectious laugh will forever be missed by everyone who knew him. Rocky is survived by two brothers, Rick Burgan (Athena) of Madison, and Jeff Burgan (Pam) of Frankton; three uncles, Kerman Ewing of Sheridan, Gale Bernard Ewing (Louise) of Sheridan, and Carl Burgan of Pennington Gap, Va.; nieces and nephews, Susan Anderson (Jason) of Madison, Scott Burgan (Amy) of Owensboro, Ky., Krista Harris (Rob) of Frankfort, Ind., Kara McQuern-Boles of Lebanon, Ind., Jill McQuern of Frankfort, Ind., Hanna Colvin (Drew) of Cicero, Joshua Burgan (Lauren) of Westfield, and Seth Burgan (Britta) of Princeton, Ind. He was preceded in death by his parents, Tinley O. and Luette (Ewing) Burgan; sister, Donna McQuern; and by his aunts and uncles. Sue Terrell and husband Sonny; Rita Ewing; Donna Swank and her husband Jerry; and Burlin Ewing and his wife Virginia. Graveside Services will take place at 1 p.m. Saturday, April 12, 2025, at Crown View Cemetery in Sheridan. Pastor Mike Hamby will be officiating.

Carmel announces key spring 2025 infrastructure projects

The REPORTER

The City of Carmel has provided the following anticipated schedule for the 2025 construction season. These projects include traffic flow improvements, roadway enhancements and continued upgrades to pedestrian safety. Construction schedules are designed to minimize disruptions as best as possible while delivering long-term benefits.

Click here to see the entire 2025 schedule.

"Prioritizing the safety and efficiency of our transportation network is paramount," City Engineer Bradley Pease said. "The current road and bridge projects are essential to meeting the evolving needs of Carmel. We appreciate the public's understanding during construction and are confident these improvements will create a safer, more efficient travel experience for everyone.'

College Avenue reconstruction

The first phase of the College Avenue Reconstruction project is underway with a full closure at 96th Street and College Avenue planned for May. The series of College Avenue roundabouts at 96th

Moontown Road to close at SR 38

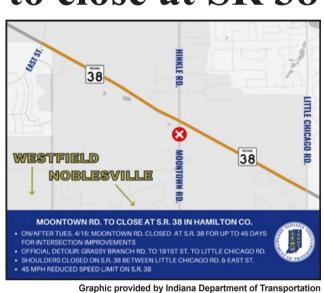

The REPORTER

Starting next week, contract crews will begin work on an intersection improvement project at State Road 38 and Moontown Road/ Hinkle Road in Hamilton County. The project includes the installation of traffic signals and turn lanes.

As soon as Tuesday, April 15, Moontown Road will close at SR 38 for up to 45 days though late May. The official detour will follow Grassy Branch Road, 191st Street, and Little Chicago Road.

During construction, both shoulders of SR 38 will be closed between East Street and Little Chicago Road. The speed limit will be reduced to 45 mph. Hinkle Road is scheduled to close once Moontown Road reopens. Overall construction is anticipated to be complete in October.

Drivers are reminded to slow down, use extra caution, and avoid distractions in and near work zones. All work is weather-dependent, and schedules are subject to change.

SR 13 to close between I-69 & Lapel for pavement rehabilitation

The REPORTER

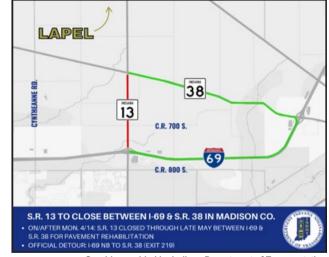

Starting next week, State Road 13 will close in sections between Interstate 69 and Lapel for pavement rehabilitation in Madison County.

On or after Monday, April 14, SR 13 will close to traffic between I-69 and SR 38 for milling, followed by full-depth reclamation work and surface paving. SR 13 is expected to remain closed through late May, weather permitting. The official detour will follow I-69 northbound to SR 38 (Exit 219). Access will be maintained for local traffic only.

The next closure will occur between County Road 400 South and Lapel and is scheduled to begin once the previous phase has reopened. Additional phased closures include the intersection of SR 13 and SR 38 and SR 13 between SR 38 and County Road 400 South. More information related to schedule will be shared at a later date. Overall construction is anticipated to be complete in September.

Families and funeral homes are asked to submit obituaries at ReadTheReporter.com/obitform.

TODAY'S BIBLE READING THE GRAIN OFFERING

"When anyone brings a grain offering to the LORD, their offering is to be of the finest flour. They are to pour olive oil on it, put incense on it and take it to Aaron's sons the priests. The priest shall take a handful of the flour and oil, together with all the incense, and burn this as a memorial portion on the altar, a food offering, an aroma pleasing to the LORD. The rest of the grain offering belongs to Aaron and his sons; it is a most holy part of the food offerings presented to the Lord.

Shigeaki Hattori, one of eight Japanese-born drivers to compete in the Indianapolis 500, died April 5 in a car accident in Huntersville, North Carolina. He was 61.

The native of Okayama in southern Japan, Hattori competed at Indianapolis Motor Speedway three times, earning a pair of starts. After serving as the first alternate to the 33-car field in 2001, he finished 20th in 2002 for Bradley Motorsports, completing 197 laps. The next year, he finished 30th driving for AJ Foyt Racing as the car's fuel system failed.

> Hattori's INDYCAR SERIES career featured rides with five teams using five different engine badging.

> Hattori also had a significant career in NASCAR, driving and owning entries. He made 10 Truck Series starts before turning his attention to leading Hattori Racing Enterprises. The team fielded Johnny Sauter, Alex Bowman and Ross Chastain, among other notable drivers. Brett Moffitt won the 2018 Truck Series championship for the team.
